PRESIDENT GETS TIGHTER GRIP ON INDUSTRIES

Views Bond Bids as Confidence Vote.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Convinced that his recovery program is succeeding and that the American people are solidly backing him up, President Roosevelt has ordered full steam ahead on the development of the new deal.

His promulgation last night of prison penalties for violators of the Blue Eagle regulations the President followed up today with conferences on the retail code of fair competition with particular reference to its price regulation provisions.

Pushes for 1,000 Codes.

The President is pushing the completion of 1,000 codes which are to constitute the charter of the new economic order redistributing the national income by decreasing the profits of employers and increasing the wages of employés.

With the government decreeing the price at which oil shall be sold, it became known that price fixing in the case of other commodities may be resorted to at no distant date.

What he regards as convincing evidence of the confidence of the country in the recovery program the President has found in the reception of the treasury offering of 500 million dollars of 10 and 12 year bonds at 4¼ per cent interest the first year and 3½ per cent thereafter. He announced today that the subscriptions up to last night were nearly two billions and that the conversion of the called Liberty bonds for the new issue was proceeding satisfactorily

Hailed Vote of Confidence.

The President considers this not only an impressive demonstration of the gilt edged credit of the government, despite the enormous volume of borrowing to finance the recovery program, but a refutation of the contention that there is widespread lack of confidence in the Roosevelt policies due largely to uncertainty of the President's monetary program.

By this more than by any other single circumstance of late has the President been encouraged to press his recovery program to the full extent of its uttermost implications. The regimentation of all the business activities of the people is now to go forward without hesitation.

By the same token stabilization of the dollar and restoration of the gold standard are not within the immediate purview of the Roosevelt program.

Business Seeks Stable Dollar.

There has been much pressure from business interests for stabilization or for a declaration committing the President against currency inflation directly or indirectly. The argument was that business recovery was being slowed down by uncertainty of the monetary policies of the administration. Such arguments do not impress the President in the light of the response to the bond offering and in the light of other circumstances which Mr. Roosevelt cited as indicating the steady progress of recovery.

The quadruple oversubscription of the 500 million dollar bond issue in two days compares with a quintuple oversubscription of an 800 million dollar issue in August in one day. Though this comparison is generally regarded as indicating that credit of the government today is not what it was two months ago the President is not disturbed thereby.

Encouraged by Statistics.

Mr. Roosevelt also found encouragement in the latest statistics laid on his desk by the government economists. These show that from March to September the prices of farm products rose 32 per cent above the average for the year ended in March, while the prices of the commodities the farmer consumes rose in the same period only 11 per cent. The President pointed with satisfaction to these figures indicating that the farmer is vastly better off today than last year, although he emphasized that the prices of farm products are still far too low.

Turning to industry, the President cited figures that in September, compared with 1929, factory employment had recovered two-fifths of the decline, while the income of factory workers had recovered 25 per cent and the cost of living had risen only 9 per cent since last March.

Other causes of encouragement to the administration are the 5 per cent decline in obligations for relief of the idle during September, compared with

ILLINOIS SENATE O. K.'S KEY BILL OF POOR RELIEF

Votes 36 to 13; Deal Made on Floor.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—By dint of a slow process of bringing in necessary votes one by one after an apparently decisive defeat for the second time, the first or key bill of the $30,000,000 bond issue plan for winter charity was passed by the state senate today. The vote was 36 to 13.

From 10 o'clock this morning until 1 p. m. efforts were made to break the deadlock which has tied up the senate for two weeks. At 1 o'clock a recess was taken until 2:40. The first roll call thereafter gave enough votes to pass the bill, but not the needed two-thirds to give it effect as an emergency measure as soon as passed by the house and signed by the governor. It was after that the change in votes gave the needed number.

The victory of the administration, the Democratic majority and the Cook county contingent, which were the front line of the battle, was not unalloyed. The required votes were not obtained until there was an agreement that senate action on the other five bills in the regular program would be delayed until final action has been had on the Lantz local tax bills revised to meet the demands of the majority.

Compromise Quickly Made.

This compromise, hastily adopted on the floor, threw the question of further procedure into turmoil. A bitter fight immediately was begun over the amendment of the Lantz bills that would make the proposed relief tax levying power permissive to Chicago and other municipalities in Cook county.

The bill passed was considered the most difficult one in the regular program. The scheme of operation for the relief plan is based on the proposed issuance of $30,000,000 in state bonds, the proceeds of which would be paid to the Illinois emergency relief commission. Each county to which part of these receipts is allotted would repay that amount by the state's retention of the same amount from its share of the state gas tax and the shares of municipalities within its borders. The vote on this bill is held as showing the stand toward the program.

The final result on the roll call was as follows:

Seem Beaten at First.

With thirty-four as the goal, the sponsors of the bond issue program found themselves at the end of the first time over the list with only thirty-two votes. The first man to change his vote was James O. Monroe [Dem.], Collinsville, who has insisted from the beginning upon certain concessions to his own ideas, including prompt action on the Lantz bills. He said he had been persuaded they would be given support and became the thirty-third vote.

Still short, Richey V. Graham, president pro tempore, caused the calling to the rostrum of Dewitt Billman, executive secretary of the legislative reference bureau, to explain the changes proposed in the Lantz bills by the administration. That talk and some discussion brought in three more Democratic downstaters, R. Wallace Karraker of Jonesboro, Wilber H. Hickman of Paris, and W. L. Finn of Iuka.

For Option on Taxes.

There was a flurry of excitement over the next step after this victory, but Senator Graham adhered to his construction of the hurried agreement on the floor. He moved that the

U. S. Places Embargo on Foreign Booze

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—An immediate embargo on imported medicinal liquors was ordered today by President Roosevelt on evidence that such importations had increased sharply in the last ten days in anticipation of prohibition repeal. The President also rejected a proposal to permit importation of beverage liquors in bond pending the date of legal sale. This is expected to be Dec. 7.

Wholesale liquor importers in New York had sought permission to bring in 1,000,000 gallons of beverage liquors to help supply the holiday trade. Officials estimated that other interests, legitimate and illegitimate, wanted to bring in 2,000,000 gallons additional. On this basis the administration refusal to permit legal entry was estimated by importers to sacrifice nearly $20,000,000 in potential revenue.

Good Trading Advantage.

The President believed he had no right to anticipate a change in the constitution, although he fully expects it. Moreover, he was unwilling to "give away" what he considered a good trading advantage in his international economic negotiations, especially as he believed it would be at the cost of a rejuvenated American industry.

The international aspects of his decision were emphasized by the presence in the negotiations of the state department as well as of the treasury and the department of justice.

Mr. Roosevelt is known to have suggested bargaining advantages of the new American liquor market for the benefit of France, which has had its eyes upon it, while defaulting its war debts and being cool to Washington proposals for economic cooperation. The President also had in mind the Canadian market, which is circumscribed by the Ottawa agreement.

Importers Fear Monopoly.

Wholesale liquor importers, in their pressure for lifting the bars on foreign whisky and wines, protested that unless regulations were issued for the purpose the domestic distillers would have a monopoly of the American market, which would be reflected in rising prices.

They said that since the restrictions on prescribing medicinal liquor were relaxed last winter by congress whisky prices had leaped from $24 to $68 and higher.

It also was contended on behalf of the wholesale liquor importers that the domestic liquor supply had dropped from 200 million to 9,000,000 gallons and that his would be entirely inadequate to take care of the holiday, with the result that bootleg and "cut" liquor would be smuggled into the country in great volume.

Rum Rows Established.

"Rum rows" of sixty ships each, thirty of them large, are reported to have been established off the Jersey and Florida coasts for similar purposes.

Administration officials insist that the situation is not serious and that the domestic supply will be sufficient to meet the early demand.

The orders to halt this flow of liquor were telegraphed today to all appropriate administrative officials by James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol. Importations already authorized will be allowed to come in, but the authorizations ceased at once.

The White House had sanctioned an importation of 500 cases of French brandy for medicinal use, where Commissioner Doran had recommended 2,000 cases and 500,000 cases of Canadian whisky. The lid was clamped down tight on Canadian liquor and raised only slightly on the French.

State Miners Plan March on Capitol Today

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Tension developed in the troubled mine situation tonight with reports that thousands of miners belonging to the Progressive Workers' union were planning to march on the state capitol in a mass demonstration tomorrow.

Leaders of the Progressives predicted 30,000 men would be in line. Observers for the United Mine Workers' union, against which, indirectly, the demonstration is to be directed, asserted there would not be more than 5,000 in the movement.

2,000 Miners in City.

However, it was said tonight that 2,000 Progressives from neighboring towns already were here.

The Progressives' demonstration is to voice a demand that they be permitted to work in mines now operated by United Workers. This virtually means the Peabody mines. Perhaps it is a coincidence, but the five Peabody mines in this region will be closed tomorrow.

Hold Conference Today.

It is a certain coincidence, however, that officials of the two mine unions and the Mine Owners' association are scheduled to meet tomorrow with Gov. Henry Horner. The governor expects to read a report on their differences recently prepared by Donald Richberg, general counsel for the National Recovery administration.

He visited the Illinois fields ten days ago to eye the situation. At the same time Mr. Richberg's report may be given out at Washington by Gen. Hugh Johnson, perhaps in the form of an opinion.

WIFE AND HER BROTHER SHOT; HUSBAND FLEES

Gartke is being sought for the shootings. Police said his 12 year old daughter, Charlotte, was with him.

According to Lieut. Steve Barry of the Sheffield avenue station, Mrs. Gartke got her brother to return home with her after a quarrel with her husband. They were met outside the house by Gartke, who opened fire, Barry said. Scherer was taken to the Alexian Brothers' hospital. He may die.

Yacht Club Attendant Rescues Girl in Lake

Miss Cecilia Howard, 22 years old, 1209 North Clark street, was rescued from drowning last night by an attendant at the Chicago Yacht club after she had fallen into the lake at the foot of Monroe street. The attendant told police he believed she had jumped into the water. She asserted she had fallen. She was held at the South State street police station annex.

Drive on High Salaries Seen in U. S. Queries

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Action to limit high salaries of big business leaders was privately forecast in official circles today after the federal trade commission announced it was asking 2,000 companies to furnish data on the salaries of their executives and directors.

Following President Roosevelt's inquisitive glance at movie salaries, the commission's inquiry was described in informed circles as a prelude to more definite action. The inquiry, authorized by a senate resolution, is immediately concerned with gathering facts for congress.

There have been demands from some members of congress for a redistribution of wealth. How far the President is inclined to go in this direction has never been definitely disclosed. Some economists have argued that it would be helpful if high salaries were spread in low wage brackets so as to increase the purchasing power of the people instead of increasing investments and speculation.

Quiz Banks and Utilities.

The same senate resolution ordered the federal reserve board to obtain salary data from all member banks in the reserve system, directed the Reconstruction Finance corporation to report salaries paid by banks borrowing from it, and instructed the federal power commission to learn about the compensation of public utility officials.

While no legislation has yet been formulated, some officials expressed the belief that continuous publication of salaries probably would have the effect of keeping them down.

The commission plans not only to require information about salaries but also all details of compensation paid in bonuses or in any other form from 1928 to 1933. It also will require data or capital and assets, on total pay rolls and on executives' salary rates effective Sept. 1, 1933.

Specific action to reduce salaries already has been taken in connection with loans to railroads by the Reconstruction corporation. Other borrowers were also understood to have had trouble in getting funds if their executives seemed to be receiving unduly high pay.

Railroads Cut Salaries.

A ruling by the Reconstruction Finance corporation that no public money would be loaned to railroads whose executives were receiving $100,000 and over a year unless they cut their pay soon brought the compensation of four men well known in the railroad field down to the maximum allowed—$60,000. They are Hale Holden, chairman of the Southern Pacific; Paul Shoup, president of Southern Pacific; W. W. Atterbury, president of Pennsylvania railroad, and Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio system.

Among those said to receive $100,000 a year and over from their companies are names well known to the public, including James G. Harbord, Radio corporation; Walter C. Teagle, Standard Oil of New Jersey; Alfred P. Sloan, General Motors; Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope, General Electric; Walter S. Gifford, American Telephone and Telegraph; Cornelius F. Kelly, Anaconda Copper; George B. Cortelyou, Consolidated Gas; E. D. Tomlinson, National Biscuit; Stephen Birch, Kennecott Copper.

Insurance Salaries Large.

Strikingly large salaries are now being paid to life insurance heads, according to Alfred M. Best & Co., insurance reporters, who estimate that the average president's salary of the large companies is $135,000 per year. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company is said to have paid for a time $200,000 yearly to its president.

Among professional people are many whose incomes exceed a half million dollars yearly. Max D. Steuer, noted trial lawyer, is said to receive $1,000 a day while he is in court; Samuel Untermyer, another New York lawyer, is reported to earn more than a million dollars a year.

The inquest into the death of Gus Winkler, slippery bank robber who became head of the north side gangs a few months ago, will be used as a lever to pry the lid off political racketeering and graft. Gamblers and police will be quizzed on crooked political alliances.

This was clearly made known yesterday afternoon by the jury of business and professional men called by Coroner Frank J. Walsh to sit in the Winkler case.

"We favor going under the surface to find out if Winkler's death was due to a gambling war," asserted William Schlossman, one of the jurors. "I am not against gambling, but if his death is due to gambling we should so determine."

Want Skidmore to Testify.

The jurors said they wanted to hear from William Skidmore, reputed head of the gambling syndicate; Bill Johnson, well known west side gambler; Marty Guilfoyle, northwest side gambler and beer dealer, the police captains of the north side zone and any one else who might tell of Winkler's gambling activities.

"We'll call in every person you want," Coroner Walsh promised the jury. "We'll make the investigation as broad as you want it and if his death is due to the beer racket, the gambling racket, or whatever it is we'll investigate it.

Promises to Get Witness.

"Personally, I believe he was killed because he was informing on ... robbers to the government, but it will be for you men to make the finding and you may go as far as you wish. You give me the names of the witnesses you want and I'll subpoena them. If the newspapers have any additional names to suggest we'll call any one they want to testify."

The jurors said they would probably name every person mentioned in connection with the various theories on the murder. Coroner Walsh said he didn't want the names revealed, even to him, until the jury was ready for the issuance of subpœnas, in order to guard against any criticism of possible political favoritism.

Visit Scene of Shooting.

Although no formal inquest session was held yesterday, five of the six jurymen, accompanied by the coroner, visited the scene of the Winkler shooting, the beer distributing warehouse operated by County Commissioner Charles H. Weber at 1414 Roscoe street.

They were met there by Commissioner Weber, who was voluble in his denials that he ever knew Winkler or had had any dealings with him.

"I am as anxious as any one else," said Mr. Weber, "to clear up this crime. But I had never had any dealings with the man and I have no idea why he should be calling at my office."

Bullet Proof Windows.

The jurymen evinced great interest in the surroundings of the crime. They discovered that the Weber building office, which is at the southeast corner of the warehouse property, was equipped with bullet proof glass windows and that employés within could talk to visitors in a small anteroom behind the outer door without exposing themselves in any way.

When the coroner's jury wanted to know why all this special equipment had been installed, Commissioner Weber explained that he wished to protect the employés from holdup men.

He then explained the workings of the beer business to the jurymen, asserting that he was not interested in any saloons and sold his beer to retailers on a strictly competitive basis. He had a number of solicitors out, he said, and none of them had reported any trouble due to gang interference, he added.

Recalls Winkler Ambush.

"But," insisted Juror Bertram J. Cahn, chairman of the board of the Kuppenheimer company, "our information indicates that the killers of Winkler waited near this plant for an hour or more before he showed up. They must have known that he was coming here."

"I couldn't tell you whom he was coming to see," replied the county commissioner. "He couldn't have been coming to see me, as I was in Florida. I am here every day when I'm in town, and Winkler never appeared here that I know of."

Juror Schlossman then asked Commissioner Weber, who had told of

CHICAGOANS PERPLEXED

Chicago corporation officials and attorneys are perplexed in trying to decide on how to handle the latest questionnaire of the federal trade commission, which demands a report on the salaries of executive officers.

Corporation attorneys canvassed yesterday were almost unanimous in declaring their opinion that the commission has no right to ask the information.

Nearly all the companies canvassed have referred the matter to their attorneys. The attorneys in turn are trying to decide whether their clients can afford to defy the trade commission rather than viewing it from a legal standpoint.

"I don't know," was the reply. "But Conrad is a fine, clean fellow and would not have any connections with men like Winkler. He's never been in trouble in his life. Stories that he is the new boss of the Winkler mob are just bunk. And if I thought Conrad was mixed up with gangsters I would be through with him."

Other Jurors Present.

The other jurors present, aside from Messrs. Cahn and Schlossman, were Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, managing director of the Chicago Crime commission; Prof. Ernst W. Puttkammer, teacher of law at the University of Chicago, and Charles W. Berquist, an executive of the Western Electric company. Prof. Ernest W. Burgess of the department of sociology of the University of Chicago was absent.

Having finished their inspection of the Weber premises the five jurors went into conference at the Crime Commission headquarters. There they communicated with State's Attorney Courtney, who assigned Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty to aid them in their investigation when the inquest is formally resumed next Monday at 10 a. m.

Mr. Courtney, as well as Coroner Walsh, pledged complete assistance in anything the urors wanted to find out.

Will Question Goldblatt.

In addition to Skidmore, Johnson, and the police captains the jurors indicated that they wanted to question David Goldblatt, the ostensible owner of the automobile in which Winkler rode to the Weber office.

They had learned, they said, that the car was not locked and that Winkler had no auto keys on his person. It was their opinion, they indicated, that some one had driven there with him. They said they hoped that Goldblatt could throw some light on the possibility that this person had put Winkler "on the spot."

It is expected that the coroner's jury will also go into the reports that Winkler was slain for conveying information to the government about the mail robbery of last December in which $250,000 in bonds was stolen. John J. [Boss] McLaughlin, Joseph Sans, and Edgar Lebensberger, who was found slain in his Lake Shore drive home, were indicted on charges of disposing of the loot.

Federal Judge Woodward yesterday refused to lower the bonds of $50,000 on which Sans, a business agent of Lebensberger, has been held.

Judge Dismisses Petition.

A petition to discover assets, brought by the public administrator against Lebensberger's widow, Mrs. Louella Lebensberger, was dismissed yesterday by Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. Auctioning of furnishings in Lebensberger's home at 1258 Lake Shore drive began on Sunday and A. L. Rosenthal, in charge of the sale, testified yesterday that $600 has been received.

Mrs. Lebensberger testified that all the furniture in the home belonged to her, having been purchased by her with $10,000 her husband gave her. Mrs. Lebensberger said that her only object in selling the furnishings was to get money to pay current bills. She said her husband had arranged for the sale before his death.

Dominick Marzano, 106 Polk street, and James Spanos, 837 South Racine avenue seized for investigation after the murder of Winkler, were dismissed on charges of disorderly conduct yesterday by Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry.

TRUE BILL NAMES "BUBS" QUINLAN IN AUTO DEATH

Michael (Bubs) Quinlan, south side gangster, was reported named yesterday in a true bill charging him with manslaughter. The reported grand jury action grows out of the death of James Berkovec, who was struck by Quinlan's automobile and killed Jan. 14, 1932.

Quinlan is at present at liberty in bond of $5,000, and a similar bond was said to have been set by the grand jury. Berkovec, who was 45 years old, and lived at 6506 South Justine street, was killed when the gangster drove his automobile into a safety island at 65th street and Ashland avenue.

Mrs. Berkovec, who also was injured in the accident, was awarded a judgment of $20,000 recently in a civil suit against Quinlan. The damage suit contained a malice count, which means that Quinlan will be jailed if he does not pay the judgment.

SCHECK TO NAME GRUNDHOEFER AS BANKER'S SLAYER

Eight Jurors Chosen for Murder Trial.

An effort to place responsibility for the murder of a Niles Center bank cashier on Carl Grundhoefer was seen yesterday in the questioning of veniremen by attorneys for Grundhoefer's two co-defendants. The others on trial before a jury in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers are John Scheck, now under sentence of death for the murder of Policeman John G. Sevick, and Frank Keglovitz.

The three hoodlums are alleged to have shot down Harry Muller when he returned from lunch and interrupted a robbery of the First National Bank of Niles Center last May. The state has charged that Grundhoefer fired the fatal shot.

Obtain Eight Jurors.

This fact was stressed yesterday as attorneys for Keglovitz and Scheck continued the questioning of prospective jurors. The attempt of the state to obtain a jury qualified for the death penalty moved more rapidly yesterday and eight jurors had been accepted by state and defense at adjournment time.

Attorney Emmett Byrne, representing Scheck, told the jurors that his client had been in the bank, but stressed the fact that Scheck had fired no shots. Before that he had qualified jurors on the point that two or more defendants might take part in a crime with a different degree of culpability.

Attorney James M. Burke also indicated in his questioning of the veniremen that he would adopt the same tactics in behalf of Keglovitz. Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach, representing Grundhoefer, took little part in the day's examination.

The move of Attorneys Byrne and Burke was seen as tantamount to a plea of guilty for Keglovitz and Sheck in an attempt to escape the death penalty.

Garage Murder Trial Progresses.

The confessions of Kenneth Rucker and Russell McAtee to the murder of a colored garage attendant were admitted into evidence after a day long argument before Judge Benjamin Epstein. Rucker and McAtee are alleged to have shot and killed Leonard Smith, attendant in a garage at 5013 North Kedzie avenue, on March 5 because he was too slow in raising his hands during a robbery.

Police Magistrate James E. McBride and Chief of Police Henry Eggebrecht of Bellwood testified in vain as to the good character of three young bandits who appeared before Judge Harry B. Miller for sentencing.

"No one guilty of robbery can get a 'break' in this court," Judge Miller said. "All they can get is the penalty provided by the law."

One to Twenty Year Terms.

The three defendants—George Kaufman, Max Rachel, and Stanley Dyszkiewicz—were sentenced to one to 20 years on a charge of robbery. They were convicted of taking $5 and five gallons of gasoline from Walter Pankow, attendant in a gasoline filling station in Lyons. The fact that they had no revolver saved the defendants from sentences of one year to life.

Edward Wessling, 45 years old, one of the first automobile drivers to be convicted of manslaughter this year, was denied a new trial by Judge Francis B. Allgretti and sentenced to one to 14 years. Wessling drove his automobile into a group of workmen in front of 4847 Lincoln avenue last December and killed Anthony Lombardo, 2342 Roscoe street.

These sentences and six others yesterday brought to 439 the number of criminals sentenced since the opening of the Cook county crime war. The others sentenced are:

Isidor Kahn and Sam Katz, sentenced to 1 to 14 years by Judge Francis B. Allegretti on a charge of forgery.

Norman Runner, 17 years old, sentenced to 1 year, and John Masters, 23 years old, sentenced to 1 to 10 years by Judge Philip L. Sullivan for the theft of an automobile from Joseph Raymond, 2046 Flournoy street. Runner was shown leniency because he had no previous record.

Artist Dalbert, 24 years old, colored, sentenced to 1 to 20 years by Judge Michael Feinberg for the theft of an automobile from William G. Clark, 360 East Garfield avenue.

Harry Baird, 27 years old, sentenced to 1 year to life by Judge Harry B. Miller for the burglary of the home of Fred Nitfeldt of Homewood.

Charles Raymond, 26 years old, sentenced to two terms of 1 year to life to run consecutively by Judge James F. Fardy on two charges of burglary. Raymond was convicted of burglarizing the homes of Mrs. Helen Rogers, 5459 Cullom avenue, and Walter Reik, 5541 Byron street.

Richard Basile, 24 years old, was denied a new trial yesterday and sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Harry B. Miller on a charge of murder. Basile had been convicted of complicity in the slaying of Policeman Maurice Marcusson during a robbery in a dress shop at 323 West Jackson boulevard on Jan. 20. Tony Rocco, the actual slayer of the policeman, is serving a sentence of 199 years in the penitentiary.

PROBATION GRANTED TO THREE YOUTHS IN SCHOOL STRIKE

Three youths were found guilty yesterday by Judge Robert J. Dunne of inciting a riot and illegal assembly in connection with an attempted pupil strike in Chicago high schools on Sept. 20. Judge Dunne rebuked the trio and placed them on probation for one year.

The strike attempt occurred at the Marshall, Manley and Crane High schools on the west side. The youths convicted of instigating the disturbance are Morris Teitelbaum, 18 years old, 1319 South Karlov avenue; Myer Pretula, 19, of 1217 North Washtenaw avenue, and Joseph Arnstein, 19 of 2408 Division street.

Questioned by Arthur McGinnis and Frank Schneberger, assistant attorneys for the school board, policemen testified that when they appeared at Roosevelt road and Mozart street where some of the strikers had gathered Teitelbaum was at a microphone. He was alleged to have shouted through the microphone: "If the cops try to bust us up we'll bust them up."

Earlier in the day Jack Light, 20 years old, 2305 Diversey parkway, chairman of the "students' committee on education," was discharged as a defendant by Judge Dunne. He said he had no connection with Teitelbaum, Pretula and Arnstein, who the school attorneys contended were young communists.

TWO CONDUCTORS ROBBED.

Two bandits boarded a Racine avenue street car at Oregon avenue early yesterday and forced the conductor, Joseph Hoffman, to hand over $12. John Lynch, conductor of a Harrison street car, was robbed of $25 by a gunman who boarded the car at Lotus avenue.

ALTERIE GUILTY OF VAGRANCY; 6 MONTHS IN CELL

Louis [Two Gun] Alterie, hoodlum and labor racketeer, was found guilty of vagrancy under the new "criminal reputation" law by a jury in the Felony court last night. Judge Thomas A. Green promptly overruled a plea for a new trial and sentenced Alterie to six months in the Bridewell.

Defense attorneys announced that they would appeal and their client was granted a thirty day stay of mittimus. Meanwhile he will remain at liberty in bonds of $10,000.

Seventh to Be Convicted.

Alterie is the seventh well known gangster to be found guilty under the vagrancy law. Among those who preceded him to trial and were convicted are Maxie Eisen, czar of the fish peddlers; Machine Gun Jack McGurn and James [King of the Bombers] Belcastro. Edward [Spike] O'Donnell and James Adducci have been acquitted.

The jury in the Alterie case retired at 5:50 p. m. and deliberated three hours before reaching a verdict. It was reported that the jurymen divided eleven to one—the eleven being for conviction—soon after they went into chambers, and that the rest of the time was devoted to winning over the one holdout for acquittal.

Alterie Testifies for Himself.

Alterie, one time associate of Dion O'Banion, who was slain nine years ago, and of George [Bugs] Moran, deposed north side gang leader, was the only defense witness. He declared that his real name was Leland Varring and that he was president of the Theater Janitors' union with a salary of $333 a month. He added that he had owned a dude ranch in Colorado, but lost it during the depression.

Several members of the police force testified for the state. Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker told of arresting Alterie three years ago while he was carrying two pistols. Sergt. Thomas Healy said that he had arrested Alterie two years ago after a shooting in a restaurant and had found him with one pistol.

According to the testimony of Sergt. William Balswick, Alterie was known as a habitual law violator. Balswick added that the defendant had been questioned by the government in connection with a recent mail robbery.

This was on Oct. 12 when Alterie was seized in a raid by state's attorney's police in the Theater Janitors' headquarters at 509 South Wabash avenue. The state's attorney at that time said Alterie had been arrested on complaint of several persons that they had paid as high as $200 for jobs and had received nothing in return.

Alterie gained notoriety in Chicago gangland shortly after the death of O'Banion, his alleged chief. At that time Alterie was said to have flourished two guns and challenged his enemies to "shoot it out" with him at State and Madison streets.

A short time after the challenge Police Capt. John Stege found Alterie in a night club and demanded that he give up his two revolvers. Alterie at first refused, but capitulated when Capt. Stege slapped his face.

SURRENDERS GOLD HOARD OF $85,000; GETS RESERVE NOTES

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Surrender of $60,000 in gold coin and $25,000 in gold certificates by Mrs. Effie Martin, charged with hoarding in violation of presidential order, was announced by federal authorities here today.

Mrs. Martin, wife of John D. Martin, wealthy Fresno vineyardist, turned over the gold and received federal reserve notes in exchange shortly before she appeared before United States Commissioner E. E. Williams.

She was released on $5,000 bond and ordered to appear before the United States commissioner in Fresno Friday.

Three alleged gold hoarders surrendered a total of $18,000 here yesterday after warrants were issued for their arrest.

Visitor Robbed of $1,000 Just Taken from Bank

H. C. Childs of Gallatin, Tenn., was robbed of $1,000 which he had just withdrawn from the University State bank, 1354 East 55th street, by three men who stopped him yesterday in front of 5330 Blackstone avenue. He and his father and mother came to Chicago to visit the World's Fair and rented an apartment there.

BANDIT VICTIM TAKES COURAGE, NAMES SUSPECT

Alleged Thug Sentenced at Stormy Hearing.

Abe Donovtsky, a clothing merchant at 1209 Jefferson street, yesterday identified an alleged member of the "42" gang as a bandit, admitting as he did so that he was "scared to death." The identification was made at a stormy session in the Felony court of Judge Thomas A. Green.

The alleged bandit, Eugene Iscovetti, 21 years old, 901 South Loomis street, termed a "mad dog" by police, was sentenced to 90 days for contempt of court when he shouted that he "was being framed." The identification of Donovtsky and another witness resulted in the defendant being held to the grand jury in bonds of $10,000 on charges of robbery.

Donovtsky had been taken into custody Tuesday when he retracted a former identification of Iscovetti as one of the three men who had taken $1,800 worth of clothing in two robberies of the Donovtsky store.

Defense Attorney Objects.

Called to the stand yesterday Donovtsky at first repeated his refusal to identify the defendant. Judge Green turned to the witness and demanded: "Why are you afraid to point out the man who robbed you?"

Defense Attorney Frank A. McDonnell announced that he objected "to such intimidation by the court."

"Sit down or I'll cite you for contempt," Judge Green told the attorney, and then turned to his bailiff. "Take Mr. Donovtsky into custody," he ordered. "It is evident to this court that business men are being intimidated by tough hoodlums, and I intend to take steps to halt it. I agree with Capt. John Stege that these '42 gangsters' are mad dogs."

Has Change of Heart.

He ordered the case continued until today to give the complaining witness "time to think it over." Attorney McDonnell left the courtroom. Then James Marks, 1838 South St. Louis avenue, stepped to the bench and identified Iscovetti as the man who robbed him of $22 on Oct. 4.

Following this identification, Donovtsky had a change of heart and announced that "he wanted to tell the truth." He returned to the stand and pointed to Iscovetti as one of the bandits who had robbed him.

"You're framing me, judge!" Iscoveti shouted. "I demand a continuance until my lawyer can be here."

"Shut up!" Judge Green shouted. "You're just a tough punk and you can't intimidate this court. You're in contempt of court and I sentence you to 90 days in the county jail. Take him away, bailiff."

Iscovetti was led to a cell.

Vatican Newspaper Lauds Speech Made by Roosevelt

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Vatican city newspaper, Osservatore Romano, today editorially lauded the recent speech of President Roosevelt at the dinner of the national conference of Catholic charities in New York. The newspaper, which reproduced most of the text of the speech, expressed pleasure with such sentiments, particularly with the President's reference to the pope's encyclical.

Drops His Gun in Boat; Killed by Shot Charge

Frank Stanek, 13 years old, 4131 West Germak road, was killed yesterday in a hunting accident on Lake Marie, a mile and a half west of Antioch in Lake county. Stanek, who went hunting with his brother, Ray, and another man, dropped his shotgun as he stepped into a boat. It was discharged, inflicting a wound in his chest of which he died half an hour later.

MARYLAND MOB LYNCHES NEGRO ON 3D ATTEMPT

Guards Are Injured When Jail Is Stormed.

Princess Anne, Md., Oct. 18.—(AP)—A Negro, accused of attempting to rape an aged white farm woman, was dragged from the Somerset county jail tonight by a mob of more than a thousand men, women, and children and was lynched.

He was hanged to an oak tree just outside the town after the mob had stripped him of part of his clothing, attached a rope around his neck, and pulled him behind an automobile through the main streets of the town.

As the mob made its slow progress toward the scene of the hanging various members leaped at the Negro, screaming and cursing, and repeatedly knocked him down.

He apparently was dead when the crowd finally reached the oak tree.

Body Burned in Square.

Later the body was cut down and taken to the public square, where it was burned. The rope was cut into small pieces and distributed among members of the mob as souvenirs.

The Negro, George Armwood, was accused of attacking Mrs. Mary Denston, an 81 year old woman, as she returned to her home Monday after spending the night with her daughter.

He was brought to Princess Anne early today from Baltimore, where he was taken Monday night for safe keeping. County authorities informed the governor yesterday there would be no trouble and reiterated this belief this afternoon in the face of rumors that a mob would attempt to seize the Negro.

In breaking into the jail the mob overpowered a detail of 25 state police who had been sent to Princess Anne to guard Armwood. Eight policemen were injured, cut and bruised about the head by stones and bricks hurled at them.

Hanging Near Judge's Home.

The hanging occurred next to the home of Judge Robert F. Duer, who had attempted to dissuade the crowd early tonight when it first formed at the jail.

The crowd, apparently incensed at the judge's remarks, first went to the judge's home but moved to the neighboring house when they were unable to find a tree sufficiently large.

The march to the final scene of the hanging was wild in extreme. The mob members seemed crazed, continually leaping on the Negro, even after he fell to the ground and was unable to rise.

Under the oak tree, despite the presence of women and children all the Negro's clothes were torn from his body and he hung there for some minutes nude.

After they had taken the Negro to the public square and burned him the mob members disbanded.

Accused White Man Removed.

In the meantime John Richardson, a white man who was under arrest charged with being an accessory after the fact in the assault on the farm woman, was taken from the jail by officers and started for Baltimore.

He was accused of taking the Negro away from the vicinity of the alleged assault and transporting him to another section of the county.

The lynching tonight followed an afternoon in which rumors gained state-wide circulation that a mob was forming.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie talked to Judge Duer and the state's attorney and was assured by them that there would be no difficulty.

Sees Danger in Moving Negro.

Later the governor said he had been advised by Capt. Edward Johnson, head of the state police, that it would be dangerous to remove him. Capt. Johnson early in the day suggested, however, that the Negro be taken to Baltimore.

STEVENS TO KEEP HIS HOTEL JOB PENDING APPEAL

Arthur B. Hall, receiver for the Stevens hotel, yesterday announced that Ernest J. Stevens, recently convicted of embezzlement and facing a one to ten years term, would not be removed from his position as manager of the hotel pending an appeal from the verdict returned by the jury in the Circuit court.

Mr. Stevens receives a salary of $36,000 a year for his management of the hotel. Because of his knowledge of the hotel affairs, confusion would result at this time from a change in management, it was pointed out.

Stevens' attorney: have voiced confidence that the Appellate court will reverse the verdict of the jury.

AUTUMN LURES CHICAGOANS TO COUNTRYSIDE

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Lake Michigan as usual is protracting our autumn and holding back cold weather in Chicago this year, despite the fact that October to date has been somewhat cooler than ordinary, averaging two degrees below normal.

The frost which appeared Tuesday night was the first in the lakeside areas of the city this fall, according to C. A. Donnel, weather forecaster. Officially, he said, it was only a light frost. The western suburbs have had numerous frosts this autumn, however, some of them heavy and even killing, and the municipal airport weather bureau has registered several light frosts, with a heavy one on Oct. 13, when the temperature was 32 degrees. On Tuesday night the minimum temperature there was 34 degrees.

Autumn Lures Many to Woods.

Meanwhile October enthusiasts are touring the countryside nearby for a sight of October's brilliant handiwork. Bird lovers are roaming the forest preserves and the parks and hiking through the dune country in Indiana to learn what birds may be found stopping over for a while before traveling southward. Edward R. Ford and A. M. Bailey, associated with the Chicago Academy of Sciences, said that most of the smaller birds had gone south already.

"I haven't heard from the ducks," said Mr. Ford, "but some of them must be flying over now. Some killdeer are still here, reconnoitering on their way south, and I saw some jacksnipe the other day. The sora rail and the Virginia rail, which nest in our area, are still here. They will remain in the marshy spots until late this month."

Bittern Still Here.

"The American bittern, spoken of by poets—'the hollow sounding bittern guards its nests'—is still here, and the tree swallow and the black-poll warbler have not forsaken us," he said. "Birds seem later than usual, though. Most of the white throated sparrows have gone, but a rare few are here and may winter here.

"The hermit thrushes are preparing to depart southward. They are plentiful now, seen in the woods hereabouts, eating their fill before flying on."

A mocking bird was reported seen in Lincoln park, said Mr. Bailey, and the colony of ducks in the park had its visitors. The brown creeper, the quiet little bird which may be seen creeping up the trunks of trees in the parks, is flying south, and starlings are beginning to migrate, though blackbirds and meadow larks are still in the fields.

"Birds can't forecast the season, but they sense local conditions, always moving before a favorable wind," explained Mr. Bailey.

The ruby crowned and golden crowned kinglets, the nuthatches, swamp sparrow, Lecomte sparrows [rare], and the little brownish colored Myrtle warbler are still remaining in small numbers. The latter is one of the last of the warblers to leave.

Chicagoans should be on the lookout for wild geese today, which is the usual day on which the first of these honkers come through.

Mrs. Albert A. Jackson of Chestnut Hills, a Philadelphia suburb, who is visiting the World's Fair, reported to police yesterday that a diamond necklace which she values at $900 had been missing since Monday. She discovered her loss, she said, while riding in a taxicab from the Hotel Ambassador East, 1300 State parkway, to the Casino club, at 195 East Delaware place.

Security House Raided by State's Attorney.

Charging that customers of the Nelson Brothers brokerage house at 134 North La Salle street faced a possible loss of perhaps more than $100,000 in investments through fraud, the state's attorney's office yesterday was deep in an investigation to untangle the company's affairs.

The firm was organized by some of the officers of the Nelson Brothers Bond and Mortgage company, now in receivership, and once known to radio audiences through its radio station WIBO, now out of existence.

Officers Face Prosecution.

Three officers of the concern now under investigation and several of their employés face prosecution, it was indicated yesterday. They are Earl Nelson, president; J. A. Kroll, office manager, and Max Meyer, special partner. They were questioned at length, as were three subordinates, Philip Simon and E. R. Hart, salesmen, and H. E. Stark, head bookkeeper, who also operates a financial advisory service at 208 North Wells street. All except Meyer were reported at liberty last night.

Following an investigation into the affairs of the Nelson firm detectives, led by Assistant State's Attorneys James J. Cherry, Eugene J. O'Connor, and William J. Lynch, late Tuesday raided the company's nine room suite. They found half a dozen securities salesmen shooting craps in a rear room and Nelson and Kroll in another room protected by a secret door. Meyer was not found until yesterday.

Nelson Blames Meyer.

During the examinations yesterday Nelson told the prosecutors that he did not learn of any financial difficulties of his company until a few days ago, when Kroll informed him the business was $90,000 behind in its accounts. He added that Meyer had charge of the securities department and, with Kroll, handled the funds and books.

After talking with various witnesses and looking over records Mr. Cherry, who is head of the blue sky division of the state's attorney's office, expressed belief that investors in the Nelson firm stood to lose perhaps more than $100,000.

"The funds appear to have been dissipated," he explained.

The entire quiz, Mr. Cherry said, was motivated by complaints on the part of investors who had purchased stocks and bonds on a 90 day payment plan and had failed to receive the securities.

Has No Cash Balance.

Yesterday's quiz developed several interesting revelations. One was that the Nelson company has no cash balance in the National Builders' bank of Chicago, where it kept an account. Another was that Meyer was fined in federal court two years ago on a charge of conspiracy to defraud.

Meyer yesterday told investigators that he was not a partner of Nelson's, but merely an adviser. In answer the prosecutors produced the copy of a contract between him and Nelson. This allegedly showed Meyer was to make the Nelson company $50,000 profit a year and to receive back 40 per cent of it.

The background of the Nelson Brothers' company appears to be interwoven with the bond and mortgage house in receivership and the Nelson Brothers, Inc. The "incorporated" firm was formed after the receivership, but when it was denied a state license to deal in securities was succeeded by plain Nelson Brothers.

Preliminary inquiry traced part of its troubles to the bond and mortgage house's losing fight to preserve its radio station, WIBO, the firm's wave length being transferred to station WIND at Gary.

DRILLING FOR OIL NEAR HOMES ISSUE IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma City, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A long fight over whether Oklahoma City's residential districts shall be opened to the march of oil derricks brought the prospects tonight of another contest over the mayoralty in the wake of yesterday's recall election.

Mayor Clarence J. Blinn, recalled by a margin of 124 votes, said he would contest the election of Tom E. McGee, fusion candidate, opposed to extension of the oil drilling zone.

Blinn indicated he either would demand a recount or institute court action on the grounds the election was invalid.

Oil has been in politics ever since geologists reported several years ago that the richest part of the local oil gusher pool lay beneath city property.

The council from time to time has both approved and disapproved the boring for oil in back yards of homes and on the edge of the industrial area at the eastern fringe of the city. There is drilling now under certain zone regulations.

REYNOLDS' HOME FURNISHINGS ARE SOLD FOR $65,000

With the exception of a few articles that were passed on one bid, the entire furnishings of the George M. Reynolds home, 1444 Lake Shore drive, had been sold last night at the close of a three day auction sale. The entire lot, valued at around $300,000, brought approximately $65,000, it was announced last night by Gerald Grant of the Grant Art galleries, who conducted the auction. Mr. Reynolds, former chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, is now living in California.

The largest price was paid for a group of 14 dining room chairs upholstered in Aubusson tapestry, which brought $2,700. A grand piano sold for $1,025, and two fine tapestry covered arm chairs for $375 each. An elaborate gold fish bowl sold for $375, while a $1,500 marble fountain brought only $150. The dining room buffet sold for $775, but a $35,000 Austrian hand tufted rug that was made to fit the drawing room floor brought only $800.

The articles that were passed on one bid will be sold this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

ECUADOR SENATE OUSTS PRESIDENT AS MALFEASANT

[Copyright, 1933, By the New York Times.]

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Oct. 18.—The senate today removed President Juan de Dios Martinez Mera on charges of malfeasance in office. The twenty-two senators voted unanimously for the impeachment charges. The opposition did not attend the session.

President Martinez Mera was not present at the impeachment trial. In addition to the senators, the proceedings were attended by a commission of army officers pledged to secrecy.

Martinez Mera, in a manifesto to the people, said he would return to private life without rancor against his opponents. He said he had violated no law and that he relinquished his office "with a spotless toga."

JEWISH PAPER IS SEIZED; PRINTED LIFE OF JESUS

Poland Charges Insults to Christianity.

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 18.—[Jewish Telegraphic Agency].—The public prosecutor today confiscated issues of a Jewish weekly newspaper in which excerpts from "Jesus of Nazareth," a life of Jesus by Dr. Joseph Klausner, of Jerusalem, were published. The public prosecutor acted at the request of the Catholic archbishop. The prosecutor said action would be taken against the publisher and against the author for insults to the Christian religion.

PRAISED BY CLERGY.

Prof. Klausner's biography, "Jesus of Nazareth," appeared about twelve years ago. It was translated at once from Hebrew into many languages. Liberal Chicago clergymen have praised its scholarship highly and commended the attempt of a representative Jewish scholar and theologian to portray his view of the founder of Christianity.

Prof. Klausner's scholarly work is said by Christian students to have added greatly to the understanding of the rabbinic teaching of Christ's day and of Christ's indebtedness to the synagogue, particularly to the pharisees as a group for the religious ideas expressed in the Lord's prayer and in many other utterances found in the gospels.

Widely Used as Text Book.

The book was translated into English from the Hebrew by Canon Danby, well known scholar and dignitary of the Church of England. It is widely used as a text and source book in theological seminaries of nearly all Christian communions. Prof. Klausner pays tribute to Jesus as the "greatest ethical teacher to have arisen from the Jewish race."

Rabbi Solomon Goldman last night said that Prof. Klausner's book is passing into its second Hebrew edition, an achievement rarely attained by Hebrew books. It is possible, he said, that the announcement of the second edition in the Jewish weekly at Warsaw was the cause of the trouble.

MURDER VERDICT AT INQUEST.

BRITISH CABINET HEARS REPORT ON ARMS CRISIS

London Expected to Adopt Conciliatory Policy.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The British cabinet met for two and a quarter hours today to hear the report of Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, on the crisis caused by the German withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the league of nations. All members of the cabinet were present, but so far as can be learned they decided on no positive action. They did not even decide when to meet again. It is understood that no further meeting will be held until early next week.

As things stand now, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, has in diplomatic language called Sir John a "liar." Sir John, also in diplomatic language, replied yesterday, "You're another."

Pleads For British Isolation.

Great Britain reverberated tonight with pronouncements of an army of notables on the subject of the German situation. The most prominent was an address given by Lord Lloyd, leader of the extreme Conservative diehards, whose broadcast was postponed from last night to permit Simon to speak.

He began by denouncing scaremongers, declaring that "even if Germany is rearming as widely as is believed today, she is still in no position—whatever her policy—to attack France. There is, therefore, no European crisis but there is a dangerous atmosphere of fear and suspicion."

Lord Lloyd attacked the policy of long winded international negotiations and conferences. He urged Britain to concentrate its energies upon regeneration of the empire.

Fears Britain Not Prepared.

The peer questioned whether Britain, if bound by treaty or otherwise to enter upon war, is prepared and equipped so that its entry could be effective.

"What virtue is there in proclaiming to the world that we stand by our bargains, knowing all the time that we have not in fact the means to carry them out?" he asked.

There is no question, he added, that England would honor its commitments and if a wanton attack were made upon France it would be bound to proceed to France's aid.

A vigorous defense of Sir John's action in Geneva was made by Viscount Hailsham, minister of war, in a speech at Liverpool this evening. He insisted that the cabinet presented a united front.

He referred to a Berlin report that the German government had warned newspapers not to attack Great Britain as a country, but to confine hostile comments to individual ministers.

Says Simon Acted For Nation.

"I suppose the idea is, if possible, to create some division between the foreign secretary and his colleagues," the viscount said. "I think it is right that I should say at once that the foreign secretary in what he did in Geneva Saturday was speaking not personally or individually, but as a representative of the British government with the assent of his colleagues in that government."

A warning against precipitate action in dealing with the situation was delivered by the marquess of Reading, presiding at a dinner given by the English Speaking union in honor of Robert W. Bingham, American ambassador. Praising the efforts of the United States to induce Europe to disarm, Lord Reading said he felt "convinced that above all we and other nations should take care not to make premature declarations."

He admitted the gravity of the situation, but at the same time pointed out that "if it is true that Germany is for peace there should be no insuperable difficulty in arriving at some conclusion which will make for world peace."

Warns Against Disarmament.

Included in the wordy deluge was a strong plea against naval disarmament by Admiral Sir Ernle Chatfield, first sea lord, speaking at Sheffield. Britain's battle fleet, the backbone of its defense, is now getting past its prime, he asserted, pointing out that the country is now spending only 10 per cent of the income of the national supply services on the navy, as compared with 30 per cent in each of the four years preceding 1914.

In the last eight years the nation has saved millions on the navy and the money has helped Britain reduce taxation and survive financial dangers, but the navy is thereby weakened, he said.

"The nation must take stock of its defense position and consider whether in its present naval expenditure it is maintaining its naval strength in accordance with its policy," Sir Ernle declared.

Britain May Publish Documents.

The next official step to be taken by Britain is uncertain. Some believe the government will publish a reasoned statement with documents of the British case. It would be a good guess to predict that an effort will be made in this statement to prove that neither Sir John nor Baron von Neurath are really liars, but that they merely misunderstood each other.

As far as the British government is concerned, it is playing for time to ascertain how strong sympathy with Germany is among the British public. Every day there is evidence that the average British citizen thinks Sir John has been a bit rough and that Germany has been badly treated in being given nothing but unfulfilled promises ever since Versailles.

So strong is this feeling that when it was learned today that Sir John went to Sandringham palace to report to King George immediately after the cabinet meeting a rumor flew around that he had gone to hand in his resignation. This was promptly denied or rather laughed off as too absurd, which it is, for there never was a time when the national government needed to stick together more than now and Sir John and his Liberal group are an indispensable section of the national government.

German Press Attacks Simon.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—(AP)—With one accord today German newspapers scored Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, for what they called his attempt to shift the responsibility for Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference to other shoulders.

To Sir John's reference to "sample weapons" for Germany, newspapers reported that the idea did not originate in Germany, which had never budged from the claim to an immediate concession of equality.

"By an inescapable logic, it follows," said the Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz, "that arms allowed others must also be conceded to Germany. The German government from the beginning emphasized it would be ready to negotiate on the quantity thereof."

The paper further held that the definition of German demands concerning the so-called sample weapons could not be given because it depended on what arms were to be abolished or retained by other countries.

"It was untrue that Germany raised a sudden claim to rearm on a big scale," the newspaper added.

12 Killed as Indian Tribes Attack British Militia Post

GUETTA, Baluchistan, India, Oct. 18.—(AP)—As a result of renewed fighting on the northwest frontier, twelve combatants were dead today and several wounded. A band of Kharotas and Sulemankhels attacked the militia post at Nimparao, near Gulkach, Oct. 11. The attackers were repulsed.

Defies Nazi Menace

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Prime Minister Stauning's declaration before the folketing yesterday that the southern Danish frontier would be defended to the limit, was featured in the whole Danish press today.

In connection with reports that military units along the southern frontier in Slesvig had been reinforced, the premier told the folketing [lower legislative branch]:

"The frontier will be defended by all the means at our disposal!"

Coupled with comment on the speech, in line with Stauning's assertion that the Slesvig frontier is the frontier of the whole of Scandinavia, the Danish press quoted with evident approval an editorial reply from the Svenska Dagbladet of Stockholm to recent hints that Sweden was not behind the so-caled Scandinavian frontier. Svenska Dagbladet said:

"Sweden fully shares without deviation from other Scandinavian opinion the Danish conception of the 1920 frontier between Denmark and Germany."

GERMANY SLAMS DOOR ON PARLEYS MINUS EQUALITY

Chancellor Hitler Insists on "Place in Sun."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Chancellor Hitler announced today the one condition upon which Germany will reënter the league of nations and the disarmament conference. That condition is equality.

"Germany is determined in the future to attend no conference, enter no league, agree to no convention, and sign nothing as long as she is not treated equally," the chancellor proclaimed.

Furthermore, he made it known that he is not hopeful that this equality will be granted, at any rate through the ministrations of the league.

Pessimistic About Geneva.

"I am optimistic about my people," he said, "but pessimistic about Geneva and the league of nations."

The Nazi dictator's utterances, which were made last night to an audience of his lieutenants but only announced publicly at noon today, put a damper on hopeful reports which arose yesterday following the conference between Hitler and American Ambassador William E. Dodd of Chicago. These reports had it that Hitler was still open to persuasion to return to the world council chambers, from which he announced Germany's intended departure last Saturday.

The chancellor continued his campaign in today's proclamation for unanimous approval of his foreign policy by the German electorate in the plebiscite to be held on Nov. 12. He promised that all Germans who rallied to the support of the Nazi policy on that day would be forgiven their other shortcomings. The only condition, he said, is that they accept the Nazi principle of peace with honor.

Reiterates Desire for Peace.

"We are willing to meet our domestic opponents half way and stretch out a hand to them if they, too, stand for the German honor and love of peace," he said. "Germany desires peace and nothing but peace. Honor is something without which one cannot live."

This statement was in further support of the equality theme which he hammered at length to his lieutenants, striving to impress upon them that Germany means everything she says about sticking to her demands for equality.

"The battle will be for the nation's right to live," he said, "not for any imperialistic policy or aims of conquest."

Little propaganda will be needed to induce the Germans to approve Hitler's policy in the referendum, since opponents to the dictator's policies will not be on the list of candidates. The German voter is rather dismayed at the idea of getting only one list of candidates instead of a bigger variety. It is understood that a few non-Nazis, but sympathetic with the present régime, will appear on the list to "emphasize the unity of the nation."

Meanwhile, Dr. Gustav Krupp von Bohlen Halbach, in charge of the government plan to bring industry under its wing, uttered a mild disclaimer to the domination of industry by the state's principle of leadership.

"I deem it my duty to introduce the leadership principle into the organization of industry," he told the German Industrialists' league. "On the other hand I recognize that business and industry cannot simply take over this principle but that in the economic life the greatest importance attaches to the advice of the men in practical life."

He explained that it was for this reason he has organized a committee of 50 industrial leaders. He expressed hope that private initiative would not be stifled.

SWISS MILITARY MEN ASK $23,502,500 TO INCREASE ARMAMENTS

GENEVA, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Information from Berne, the Swiss capital, today indicated a determination to safeguard Swiss neutrality in event the peace of Europe was threatened. It was learned that the war department will ask an extraordinary credit of 85,000,000 gold francs [$23,502,500] to increase armaments.

Swiss military leaders have wanted an increased appropriation for a long time and seized upon recent European events as justification for their demands.

A plan to be submitted to the federal council provides for additional materials for infantry and artillery, and also for airplanes and projectors to be used in the Alps.

It was explained that this project would not be a contradiction of the disarmament conference because it does not exceed maximum limitations and has been under consideration for a long time.

Last summer the Swiss parliament appropriated 20,000,000 francs [$5,530,000] for modern military equipment.

INCOME TAX SUITS AGAINST MELLON RULED IMPROPER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today dismissed the 5 million dollar income tax suits filed four months ago against W. L. Mellon, president, and other officers of the Gulf Oil corporation.

The judge held there is no statute under which David A. Olsen of Washington and Albert R. Knight of Lansdowne, Pa., plaintiffs, could bring court action. The law under which the charges were filed apply only to cases where the government has been defrauded of something in its possession such as supplies, he stated.

Olsen, a former investigator for the senate banking committee, and Knight, former Gulf Oil employé, had asked for 10 million dollars including penalties, claiming they were entitled to share in the sum collected.

The suits involved alleged failure of the defendants to report for taxes moneys drawn from the Gulf corporation by claiming the deduction was for interest paid the Gulf corporation on obligations.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA WARNS AUSTRIA OF 'EXTREMES'

Lays Down Conditions for Friendly Relations.

VIENNA, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Edouard Benes of Czechoslovakia departed for home tonight after conferences with Chancellor Dollfuss, leaving his host and the Austrian public seriously pondering one of the strongest warnings this republic has received in post-war days.

This injunction was not to permit "extreme tendencies such as have been so loudly proclaimed recently" to get the upper hand.

Benes personally brought no ultimatum to Dollfuss—at least, a communique issued after the meeting mentioned only that they had discussed negotiations regarding a supplementary trade treaty and various political and economic questions "interesting to both countries."

Warning Issued Through Press.

On every Vienna newsstand, however, and in every Vienna café lay original or reprinted copies of Benes' own newspaper, the Prager Presse, which warned that "friendly relations of Austria and Czechoslovakia can be effectively furthered only if no extreme tendencies win the upper hand in Austria."

In quarters close to Chancellor Dollfuss it was believed the Czechoslovakian minister, either orally or in writing, did not repeat the warning to go slow, possibly preferring the more effective method of gesturing strongly and publicly through the newspaper.

Outwardly the visit was very cordial. Dollfuss met Benes on his arrival and took the minister to his train when he left. He spent the final fifteen minutes before the train pulled out chatting with Benes in the latter's car.

Text of Benes' Warning.

The warning in Benes' newspaper said:

"The friendly relations of Austria and Czechoslovakia can effectively be developed if no extreme tendencies get the uper hand in Austria.

"Particularly at this moment, when the danger of on international conflict has become even more acute, every government is compelled to seek support in the broadest possible masses of the loyal population, not in the individual exalted groups, but in the vital forces of the nation.

"Czechoslovakia sees in this method the greatest strengthening of those forces which would guarantee Austria's independence.

"Czechoslovakia is convinced the possibility of such a development exists in Austria. Benes' visit to Vienna is only an expression of this conviction."

The warning may have referred to Austrian measures against Nazis, hints of martial law, investigation of a reported nation-wide Nazi military organiztion, or disputes with Socialists who secretly have circulated plans for a general strike.

AMBASSADOR BINGHAM MAKES HIS 'HANDS ACROSS THE SEA' BOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Ambassador Robert W. Bingham of the United States made his second public appearance since his arrival in England last spring at a dinner given in his honor tonight by the English speaking union in London.

Praising the work of the union in drawing closer the bonds of English speaking peoples, Bingham told a distinguished audience that he had not regarded tonight's function as a gesture to an individual "but an expression of your cordiality and friendliness to my countrymen and my country."

He said he does not regard the recent world economic conference as a failure, but admitted the difficulty of tabulating results or calculating achievements. He asserted that the subsequent wheat convention was of the utmost importance in paving the way for international coöperation in other lines.

3 EDITORS JAILED IN GERMANY FOR CAPTION ERROR

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

ESSEN, Germany, Oct. 18.—Herr Girardet, publisher of a string of newspapers in western Germany, and the editor and assistant editor of the Essen Allgemeine Zeitung, one of the Girardet newspapers, were arrested today because by accident a picture was published under the wrong caption.

The picture showed the dedication of a storm troop banner, while the caption referred to a "comedy play" of a school festivity which took place the same day. Despite the explanation that this was a technical mistake, the publisher and his editors were charged with "insulting" the storm troops and were thrown into jail.

The chief competitor of the Girardet paper in Essen is the National Zeitung, official organ of Herman Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia and one of Chancellor Hitler's chief lieutenants.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Several hundred bodies of French soldiers were unearthed today on the battlefield of Esparges. They had evidently been buried in two deep craters in an explosion during the world war and had lain there ever since. Several have already been identified, but nearly all must remain unknown.

FRENCH DEPUTIES HOLD MUSSOLINI PEACE PACT DEAD

Say Germany Killed It by Geneva Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The foreign affairs commission of the chamber of deputies announced today that it is the virtually unanimous opinion of their body that Premier Mussolini's four power pact for European peace is dead. It was Germany's precipitate slamming of the door at Geneva on the way out which killed it, they asserted.

The four power pact, entered into by Great Britain, France, Italy, and Germany last July, was designed to bring these powers together to work for European peace for a ten year period.

Recall French Opposition.

The pact included provisions that work done within the framework of the pact should carry out the aims as well of the league of nations, the 1925 Locarno pact guaranteeing western European frontiers, the Kellogg anti-war pact, and the agreement of last December promising Germany equality in armaments.

Leaders of the foreign affairs commission pointed out that Germany's action now renders the pact inoperative. Their eagerness to declare the pact dead is found in the fact that it was only after considerable haggling that Premier Mussolini, principal agitator for the accord, was able to get the French to sign up. The French were fearful it would make Il Duce too prominent in European affairs.

When the French did sign it was only after they had succeeded in getting the provision inserted which had to do with working within the framework of the league.

Mussolini Urges Parley.

GENEVA, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini of Italy was credited with indefatigable efforts today to unite four European powers, including Germany, in a discussion of disarmament at Stresa, Italy.

The report reached here that the Italian leader had asked other powers regarding the feasibility of further conversations on disarming.

Poland was said to have been asked whether she would approve such a project and to have replied that she wants all the problems considered at Geneva.

Under the terms of a declaration by American Ambassador-at-large Norman H. Davis that the United States would not enter strictly European discussions, it seemed unlikely that the American delegates would attend the reported Stresa conference.

Talk of Calling Assembly.

One suggestion heard in league of nations circles was that Germany's announced withdrawal from the league would affect the peace fabric of Europe in such an important way that some nation should demand the immediate convocation of the league assembly, under article 11 of the covenant, on the ground that Germany's action affects international relations and the good understanding among nations.

This idea was that Germany would be told that many problems involving her interests were tied up in the league and that she had a sovereign but no moral right to resign.

There was no indication tonight that any nation considered following this suggestion.

One indication of the extent to which Americans here continued to support the league ideals was shown today in the signing of a lease whereby property owned by a group of Americans was turned over at a nominal rental to the Federation of League of Nations Societies, of which there is an American branch. The property, which adjoins the new league palace, was originally owned by James J. Forstall of Chicago.

BOSTON YOUTH CUTS LOOSE FROM HIS INHIBITIONS

Robert U. Johnson III., 23 years old, who hails from Boston and who speaks Bostonese fluently, explained to the South State street police yesterday how he had the misfortune to be charged with the kicking out the windows of three loop stores. He was arrested in front of a store at 205 South State street early yesterday after a watchman said he saw him break a window there. He is also charged with breaking the windows at 31 East Jackson boulevard and 226 South Wabash.

Blaming the incident on too much 3.2 beer, Johnson said he had come to town to visit the World's Fair. "I have been restrained from yielding to inhibitions," he said, "so I started out last night to give vent to the exuberance I felt at being in the city where I understand people do rather as they please."

Johnson was fingerprinted and held for the detective bureau showup. He gave his Chicago address as the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue.

COP HELD FOR $500 JUDGMENT FREED ON WRIT

Patrolman Ray Forrest of the Gresham police was freed from the county jail yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus issued by Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski. Forrest had been in jail since Monday for his failure to pay a $300 judgment obtained against him by Miss Anna Ohs in the Municipal court.

Miss Ohs had sued for false arrest, alleging that Forrest had held her for a traffic violation in April, 1930, when he should only have given her a summons. The judgment contained a malice count, on which Forrest was ordered to jail for six months.

Attorney W. G. Anderson, colored, filed the habeas corpus writ. Judge Klarkowski issued the writ on Anderson's contention that Forest could not be held because Miss Ohs had not paid in advance for his board at the jail. The attorney said that Forrest had $510 in salary due him from the city. Forrest is 36 years old.

GERMAN COURT INSPECTS TUNNEL IN ARSON TRIAL

Probes Charge Nazis Set Fire Themselves.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—(AP)—An underground passage from the reichstag building to the official residence of Hermann Wilhelm Goering, one of Chancellor Hitler's chief lieutenants, figured prominently in the reichstag fire trial today as the court sought to disprove "Brown Book" charges against Hitlerites.

One hundred newspaper men, including representatives of the foreign press, filed through the stuffy, narrow corridor, which entered the news on Feb. 28, the day after the blaze, when an official report said the incendiaries might have escaped through it.

The "Brown Book," published by a commission headed by the British Lord Marley and containing lists of alleged Nazi wrongdoings, declared that the passage was used by storm troopers during the fire, for which five men are now on trial.

Denies Tunnel Was Used.

After a night watchman testified today that nobody used the subterranean way just before the blaze, the six red robed judges and then the journalists inspected it.

The passage ended in the reichstag engine plant, with a single doorway leading off to the house of Goering, who is premier of Prussia and national minister without portfolio. And aperture through which the watchman said he could hear every sound made in the passage in his room was pointed out carefully.

"From the window of the communist reichstag faction," Torgler insisted, "groups of storm troopers were often seen in the palace garden" [the grounds of the Goering residence].

Tells of Mysterious Steps.

"Well, I went on duty at 8 p. m., and certainly nobody entered after then," the watchman retorted. He added that ten days before the fire he heard mysterious steps in the passage. Thereafter, he maintained, vigilance was increased.

Nevertheless, the witness continued, it had been ascertained, by means of strips of paper pasted across the door and other devices, that the passage had been used at least six times afterward by an unknown person.

The court today refused to give another defendant, Georgi Dimitroff, permission to read the "Brown Book," but instructed his counsel to give him whatever information from it that was deemed expedient. Dimitroff demanded permission yesterday to read the book.

SIAMESE GOVERNMENT QUELLS REBELLION; SEIZES REBEL CHIEF

BANGKOK, Siam, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Reports both from the north and south centers of the insurrection which broke out last week indicated today that the government forces have triumphed over the rebels.

In the north the rebels who attacked Bangkok have fled, while in the south the revolt at Petchaburi has been suppressed. The rebel leader and a number of others were arrested, including high army and civilian officers.

The anxiety of the foreign communities was relieved as business returned to normalcy and rail services were resumed.

SMALL TO FIGHT INTEREST SUIT IN COURT TODAY

Attorneys for former Gov. Len Small will make an attempt this morning before Judge Hugo Friend of the Circuit court to dismiss the suit recently filed by Attorney General Otto Kerner to recover interest on public money which was in Small's charge when he was state treasurer.

The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 o'clock. Attorney Werner W. Schroeder will appear for Small and Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton will appear for the state as a special assistant attorney general.

The Kerner suit was filed on Aug. 4. Named as defendant with Small was Fred E. Sterling, former state treasurer and former lieutenant governor. Both were sued for interest recoveries by former Attorneys General Brundage and Carlstrom. Carlstrom in 1927 settled with Small for $650,000 and dismissed the case against Sterling. At the time it was charged Small owed more than $1,000,000. Kerner in his new suit charges that the $650,000 settlement was insufficient. He asks Small and Sterling to account for $1,000,000. The Sterling case is pending before Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

Italy Seizes Engineer on Frontier as Jugo-Slav Spy

FIUME, Italy, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A Jugo-Slavian engineer, Francesco Dedek, was arrested today and accused of spying on frontier defense while touring the area. He denied the charge, saying he drove across Italian territory to a road construction project on which he was working.

3 GUNMEN GET $3,883 IN HOLDUP OF UNION OFFICE

Three bandits took $3,883 yesterday in a holdup of the office of the Chicago Photo Engravers' union, local No. 5, at 431 South Dearborn street.

Miss Betty Maher, cashier, and Miss Bernice Gunderson, a clerk, were in the cashier's cage when the robbers entered. Five members of the union, in the office to pay their dues, were standing outside. The bandits ordered all of them to lie on the floor.

"O, all right," growled the bandit.

He swept the cash into a brief case and fled with his companions. The union collects its dues on the third Tuesday of each month, and the collections, made the previous day, were to have been taken to a bank.

WAGNER WARNS NRA CAN RESORT TO FINES, JAIL

Points to Provisions of Law Back of Board.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Heavy fines and jail sentences provided in the licensing provisions of the recovery act were called pointedly to the attention of industry tonight by Senator Robert Wagner of New York as the authority under which the board is acting.

Wagner mentioned no names. Last week, however, he said western Kentucky coal operators could be compelled to attend a hearing.

Shortly before he spoke he had expressed confidences to newspaper men that the strike situation over the country would be worked out "if we keep our heads" and said a denial had been received from the Ford Motor company that Henry Ford "is unalterably opposed to collective bargaining" with his employés.

Discuss Edgewater Strike.

Wagner added that officials of the Ford company's Edgewater, N. J., plant had agreed to meet tomorrow—without NRA participation—with employés in an effort to adjust difficulties.

Wagner himself presided at a hearing today intended to conciliate the Michigan strike of die and tool workers in automobile plants, but the conference recessed without progress. Representatives of both employers and employés said the only result was that the strikers were told to return to Michigan and hold further conferences on the difficulties.

Wagner, in his speech, said:

"The question frequently is raised whether the national labor board has any power or compulsion over those who are reluctant to appear before it or to abide by its decisions.

Hates to Threaten.

"I do not like to answer this question because when you talk about compelling a man to do something you make him forget that it is to his best interest to do it voluntarily. Compulsion is necessary only when there is opposition, and there should be no opposition to a board which has demonstrated its willingness and ability to assist every group.

"At the same time I want to stress the fact that the board has power. It is an essential part of the recovery program and is working hand in hand with the recovery administration.

"Any group which flouts the decisions of the board may be placed under a code embodying the conditions approved by the board. If the code is violated the licensing provision and other penalties of the recovery act may be invoked.

"There will be no escape for the misguided minority who arise to interfere with every constructive program."

Again Wagner said "The strike should be abandoned as an instrument of first resort."

"Strike Is Not Coöperation."

"Industry and labor cannot cooperate by means of the strike," he said. "Such conflict may determine which of the two contestants is stronger at a given moment, but it is merely accidental if it produces a solution which serves the best interests of both parties and of the naers."

"It has been estimated that during September 5,000,000 working days were lost because of strikes. These tactics constitute a drain upon the potential wealth of the country which can never be replaced, and are unlikely to confer lasting benefits upon the workers."

Wagner added, however, that strikes should not be regarded with "unmixed alarm," as they have always accompanied industrial revivals "and they indicate that labor is filled with new hopes for the future."

The hearing here on the tool and die strike was complicated by the absence of Alvan Macauley, president of the national automobile chamber of commerce, and W. S. Knudsen of General Motors, who had been invited to sit as the spokesman of the automobile industry.

Informed official sources said the decision of the labor board to tell the strikers to return and seek conferences with their employers was based upon their statement that they had walked out without presenting formal demands.

Reject Rôle of NRA.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18.—(AP)—A spokesman for the Ford Motor company said today that the company is not conducting negotiations for settlement of the strike in its Edgewater, N. J., assembly plant through the national labor board.

"If there is any conference at the Edgewater plant tomorrow it will be conducted between the manager of the plant and the employés," he said.

He added that Ford is always willing to hear any of his employés and that if any men have asked for a conference with the Edgewater manager he has a perfect right to confer with them, but that such conference will not be arranged or conducted through the national labor board.

The spokesman said he "didn't know what there was to confer about."

"The Edgewater plant is running," he said.

TROOPS' CONTROL OF INDIANA MINE ZONE HAS BEEN MODIFIED

Sullivan, Ind., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Following insistence of civil officials and attorneys here that the exact status of military control in this coal mining county be defined, the stringent military control here was eased today.

The National Guard company stationed on the Sullivan county courthouse lawn since early last week returend home to Attica today.

Saying he appreciated the manner in which Sullivan residents had complied with regulations, Col. Albert H. Whitcomb, commanding troops still here, issued orders for withdrawal of the public square sentries and reduction of guards on fixed posts.

Col. Whitcomb made it clear today that departure of the Attica company did not mean the end of military regulations for the county, nor abandonment of military headquarters in the courthouse.

Besides the provisional battalion of Indiana National Guardsmen in permanent quarters at Shakamak State park near here, companies I and C of Terre Haute, will remain on duty at the Starburn and Hoosier mines for an indefinite period.

All military prisoners were released today.

PRESIDENT TAKES TIGHTER HOLD ON INDUSTRIES

August, the doubling of the pay rolls in the textile industry, the continued increase of employment in all industries, and the continued rise of wholesale prices generally.

Every way he looks at it, the President sees ample evidence that business is improving and that the credit is due to his recovery program.

In contrast with the view of the President is that of some industrial leaders that instead of increasing purchasing power the NRA has actually decreased it.

August Shows Decline.

The purchasing power of the individual industrial wage earner, as measured by average real weekly earnings, declined 1.8 per cent in August, according to the data of monthly changes in wages and cost of living compiled by the National Industrial Conference board.

The total purchasing power of the industrial wage earning population increased in August, because of an increase of 8.6 per cent in the number of employed workers, but the purchasing power of the individual wage earner diminished, because of the rise in living costs. While average actual weekly earnings increased slightly, 0.5 per cent, the cost of living rose in greater degree, 2.3 per cent. The net result was a loss of 1.8 per cent in purchasing power for the individual worker.

April Upturn Cited.

In the first three months of the business upturn that began in April the trend of real wages, or individual purchasing power, was upward. Average real weekly earnings increased 6.2 per cent in April, 7.8 per cent in May, and 9.6 per cent in June, the percentage increase in each case being measured from the level of the preceding month. The cost of living started to rise in May and continued upward in June, the increase in each month, however, being less than 1 per cent.

Meanwhile the national industrial recovery act, one of the main objectives of which is to build purchasing power by raising wage levels and spreading employment, became effective June 16, although the first code was not approved till one month later, July 16. The President's reëmployment agreement was launched July 27.

Real Wage Rise Halts.

In July the advance of real wages, or individual purchasing power, was checked. Average real weekly wages remained practically stationary in July, registering a negligible increase of .2 per cent. The cost of living rose 3.2 per cent in July. In the next month, August, the upward trend of real wages was reversed and for the first time since March the conference board figures showed a decline in average real weekly earnings.

"Briefly," says the industrial conference board, "what has happened to individual earnings and purchasing power of industrial workers is this: Living costs, rising steadily, have overtaken and passed weekly earnings in the upward movement of wages and prices, the rise of weekly earnings having been checked by reduction of working hours. As a result average real weekly earnings have declined. The average industrial wage earner was worse off in August than in July so far as the purchasing power of the contents of his weekly pay envelope was concerned."

THREE CHICAGO DAIRIES CLOSE THEIR DEFENSE

Seek Modification of U.S. Agreement Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Testimony that an official of the farm adjustment administration advised certain independent Chicago dairies that the federal milk code did not apply to their type of business today climaxed the defense of three of the independent dealers against government charges of violating the price provisions of the code.

The Edgewater Dairy company and the Lake View Dairy company of Chicago and the Wagner Dairy company of Cicero today virtually closed their respective defenses against the government charges.

At a public hearing tomorrow they will join in seeking a modification of the federal milk marketing agreement.

Final Arguments Delayed.

Final arguments in the three cases will be delayed pending the outcome of the modification request, after which Secretary of Agriculture Wallace will render a final decision as to the revocation of their federal license to operate. Such revocation would prohibit their continuance in business and entail a fine of $1,000 a day for each day of operation after the license had been rescinded. Counsel for the independents declared today they will fight the case through the courts if Mr. Wallace's decision is unfavorable.

From the witness stand Gus Palmer, 4226 Henderson street, Chicago, president of the Lake View Dairy company, declared today that W. C. McQueen, then enforcement officer of the AAA in the Chicago milk shed, had informed a group of independent dairymen that price schedules in the government marketing pact, through "a mistake," did not cover the "vender" business conducted by them.

Tells of Chicago Meeting.

Early in August, shortly after the blanket federal license had been issued to all dairies by Secretary Wallace, Mr. Palmer testified, he received an invitation from the Pure Milk association to meet with other independent dairy operators and officials of the association at "Little Jack's Restaurant" on Madison street. Fifty or sixty dealers were present, Mr. Palmer said, together with two representatives of the Pure Milk association and Mr. McQueen.

It was McQueen, according to Palmer, who suggested that the independent dealers establish a fixed price of six cents a quart for milk sales to individual "venders." Palmer explained that venders are private milk route operators who purchase from the independent dairies individually and peddle milk on their own routes.

Decide on Uniform Price.

In response to McQueen's suggestion, Palmer continued, the independents appointed a committee, decided on a uniform price to venders and submitted the plan to McQueen for forwarding to Washington.

It was a surprise, Palmer testified, that he received Secretary Wallace's order to show cause why his license should not be revoked for violating the price provisions of the government enforced marketing pact. He immediately called Mr. McQueen, he said, and the latter likewise expressed surprise.

Borah Silent on Order to Jail NRA Violators

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah, requested to give his opinions of President Roosevelt's new order that violators of NRA codes should be prosecuted and sent to jail, declined any extensive comment. The senator declared that he believed every one should support the NRA to the fullest extent, that it was the law of the land now and that he believed many phases of the program would be successful.

RETAIL DEALERS ASK PRESIDENT TO ACT ON CODE

Representatives of the retail dealers of Chicago yesterday voiced a plea for an early decision by President Roosevelt on the NRA retail code which was laid before him Tuesday by Gen. Johnson after a long period of bickering in Washington between the merchants and the economists attached to the NRA.

Nearly two months have elapsed since public hearings were held on the code. The ten per cent "cost plus" feature has caused the most dissension. The merchants have insisted upon this clause as a guard against business suicide but it is under attack by the NRA economists.

Briefly, this clause would prevent any merchant from selling goods at a price less than the invoice value plus ten per cent. It has been a practice in the past, it was pointed out, for certain stores to advertise items at less than cost in order to get customers into the store where they would be urged to buy other items upon which the prices have been raised proportionately. Big corporations can manage to withstand such competition but the little dealer goes under, it was asserted.

Chicago dealers heard yesterday that the President was to make an announcement on the code "Thursday or later" but they fear that further delay will result in confusion and perhaps disaster.

"The necessity of having some yardstick, such as the cost plus provision, is apparent if business is to be kept alive," declared Kenneth Barnard, general manager of the Better Business bureau.

NRA A 24 HOURS' JOB UNDER DICTATORSHIP, MANUFACTURERS TOLD

The work of the NRA could be accomplished in 24 hours under a dictatorship, Frederick Vining Fisher, a representative of the national recovery administration, told hardware manufacturers in convention at the Palmer house yesterday.

Under a dictator, he said, a policeman would go to a factory and command the proprietor to add 500 men to the pay roll, and the employer would have to do it whether he wanted to or not. He asserted that the only alternative to a complete partnership between American business and the government is Fascism or communism.

The NRA program is already a success in the Atlantic states and is an assured success in the rest of the country, the speaker said. He pointed out that 3,000,000 workers have been employed since the inception of the program.

2 St. Louis Breweries Cut Beer Price $2 a Barrel

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Two St. Louis breweries, Anheuser-Busch and Griesedieck, tonight announced a reduction in the wholesale price of beer from $16 to $14 a barrel. The reduction is the first by the breweries since 3.2 beer became legal last April. Anheuser-Busch also announced a reduction of 25 cents a case in the price of bottled beer.

MAYORS ON WAY TO WAGE BATTLE FOR 2 SEAWAYS

Mayor D. W. Hoan of Milwaukee and Mayor Samuel Snively of Duluth passed through Chicago yesterday enroute to the deep waterway convention in Detroit, where both cities will throw their weight behind the proposal to open the great lakes to seaway travel from the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic ocean. They said Chicago would benefit more than any other lake port if this is done.

Mayor Hoan was accompanied by City Attorney Max Raskin, City Clerk Frank Krawszak, Harbor Commissioner Boles and twenty-two aldermen. He predicted that the opening of the two corridors to the sea to seagoing boats would increase the inland tonnage to more than now crosses the Atlantic.

HIT THAT COLD A KNOCKOUT BLOW!

Don't Invite Serious Complications with Makeshift Remedies!

A cold is something to be dealt with promptly and decisively. You never can tell where it will end. Many a "slight cold" has been the start of a serious illness. Get after a cold quickly and get after it in the right way. A cold, being an internal infection, requires internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a "cure-all."

The wise thing to take is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine—for several reasons. Instead of a "cure-all," it is expressly a cold remedy. It is also an internal treatment which a cold, an internal infection requires. And it is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and helps fortify against further attack. Anything less than that is not complete treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't offer a substitute for the sake of an extra profit.

When a cold attacks, don't waste time with makeshift methods, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

PARKER OUTLINES A NEW DOCTRINE ON WORLD POLICY

Noted Soldier Acclaimed at Farewell Dinner.

In a stirring appeal for an adequate national defense, delivered before a patriotic assembly in the Palmer house last night, Maj. Gen. Frank J. Parker said the world war had given the United States a new doctrine of international policy, which he undertook to enunciate and placed on a parity with the Monroe Doctrine.

The occasion was a farewell dinner to the general, who is soon to leave his command of the Sixth corps area for the Philippine island command. Some 1,000 members of veterans' and fraternal organizations attended the banquet, which was held under the auspices of the American Legion.

Extension of Monroe Doctrine.

Gen. Parker called the new doctrine of international policy an extension of the defensive principle of the Monroe Doctrine.

"We must take it for granted that there is a doctrine which covers the facts of our entry into the world war, and that if it is not discovered it is only because the necessary consideration is not put forth for its discovery," said Gen. Parker. "I believe our people have really established this doctrine, for we have unconsciously and unavowedly adopted a new language and a new train of thought.

"What then is this doctrine under which we were acting when we entered the European war? In my own belief it is briefly this: The United States will regard as an unfriendly act the self-aggrandizement and the self-assertion of any nation by which our peace and safety are endangered."

Four Other Basic Doctrines.

Gen. Parker said the new doctrine was none the less important because time has not yet given it the clear form of four other basic American doctrines—the doctrine of neutrality, the freedom of the seas, the open door in China, and the Monroe Doctrine of immunity from the neighborhood of powerful armaments.

"Our participation in the world war is the greatest fact in our modern history," the general declared. "It is greater and far more reaching than the war itself. It has swept away the imaginary barrier that separated the new world from the old, and it has formally introduced to all mankind the truly Christian concept that a nation of unsurpassed power, which disdains conquest for itself, is instinctively and deeply hostile toward extensive conquest by other nations."

Reviews Past Wars.

Gen. Parker reviewed the past wars of the country and termed their "results of incalculable value." He said the nation was not adequately prepared for any of these conflicts and urged that their lessons be remembered.

David L. Shillinglaw, former state commander of the Legion, was chairman, and Charles C. Kapschull, present commander, was toastmaster. Among the speakers were Edward A. Hayes, newly elected national commander of the Legion; Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, and Mayor Kelly.

ORDERS TROOPS READY TO BACK WHEAT EMBARGO

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 18.—(AP)—North Dakota's national guard stands ready to challenge the railroads' announced intention to accept wheat for outstate shipment despite Gov. William Langer's wheat embargo, the chief executive said tonight.

Counsel for the four railroads operating in North Dakota at a conference in St. Paul today decided that wheat offered for shipment will be taken and that the roads would "abide by the laws of congress," when the embargo becomes effective at 12:01 a. m. tomorrow.

"It has been the law of the land," said the railroads' statement, "from the time of the founding of our nation, that a state has no power to place an embargo on the export of articles produced within the state."

"Orders have gone out to the adjutant general to enforce the embargo," said Gov. Langer.

The governor said he looked for some action to be instituted in federal court for a restraining order, but unless such action is successful his embargo proclamation will remain in effect indefinitely.

ILLINOIS AGAIN GETS BUT CRUMB OF EASY MONEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes today handed out slices of easy money aggregating 19½ million dollars and gave Illinois just $4,000.

Included in the helpings of cash passed out today was the longest list of non-federal projects on record, 67 allotments, of which only one went to Illinois.

Chicagoland as a whole fared somewhat better in today's allotments, receiving a total of $709,000, most of which is to be spent on a school building at Beloit, Wis.

Gets Less Than One Per Cent.

A survey of the easy money allotments since the allocation of eight million dollars granted conditionally to the Chicago sanitary district showed that Illinois has again fallen into the ranks of neglected states since that time.

More than 35 million dollars has streamed out of the easy money fund since the Chicago loan was tendered, and less than eight-tenths of 1 per cent of it has gone to Illinois, the state which yielded almost 8 per cent of the federal revenue last year. Illinois has had two allotments recently totaling $27,000.

For Geneva School.

The single allotment in Illinois today was an outright grant of $4,000 to the state. The money will cover 30 per cent of the labor and materials cost for a sewage treatment plant in the state training school for girls at Geneva, Ill.

Other Chicagoland allocations today were: Beloit, Wis., $550,000; Fort Atkinson, Wis., $9,300; Bloomfield, Ia., $3,200; Iowa City, Ia., $92,000; Dyersville, Ia., $700; Ottumwa, Ia., $50,000, and Randolph, Wis., $1,300.

The west was the favorite in the doling out of easy money today. In a single chunk it got 9¼ million dollars for the Fort Peck project on the upper Missouri river.

C.A.C. COMMITTEE DRAFTS PLAN TO CURB HIJACKING

Hopes to Increase Police Squad Personnel.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

A plan to curb the hijacking gangs whose raids on merchandise shipments have boosted insurance rates on Chicago trucks to double and triple the rates of other cities has been drawn up by the cartage theft committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce for presentation to Mayor Kelly.

The plan calls for increasing the personnel of the cartage theft detail of the Chicago police department to seventeen men, split up into four squads, each equipped with a high speed automobile. At present the detail comprises only two men, Lieut. James B. Kerr and Sergt. Arthur Guynn, who, with one outmoded car, have managed to make 118 hijacking arrests, procure 50 convictions, and recover $70,000 in stolen goods in the last two years.

Chairman Out of City.

C. A. Bethke of the Chicago Mail Order company, chairman of the Association of Commerce committee, was out of the city yesterday, but on his return he is expected to present the program to the mayor. Other concerns represented on the committee are Montgomery Ward & Co., Sears, Roebuck & Co., the Arthur Dixon Transfer company, Marshall Field & Co., Railway Express Agency, Inc., Cartage Exchange of Chicago, Willett Teaming company, Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., National Surety company, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, Firemen's Fund Insurance company, Freight Agents' association, and the Employers' association.

Under a system worked out by Lieut. Kerr for preferential trucking routes, with adequate police patrolling night and day, hijacking within the city limits has been brought within bounds, but this, the cartage theft committee asserts, has not solved the problem. The brigands preying on cargoes of butter, eggs, cigarets, and other commodities have merely transferred their hijacking operations to points outside the city limits and continue to dispose of their loot through Chicago fences.

Hopes to Uncover Fences.

While Lieut. Kerr does not expect the strengthening of his detail will alone prove sufficient to meet the situation, he is convinced that with the larger force he will be better able to uncover the fences and thus deprive the hijackers of their primary market.

Some of the more important measures being urged upon shippers are the following:

1. Never send a valuable load out without providing a convoy, consisting of one man in a car, following the truck at a distance of 200 feet, with orders to follow not the driver, but the hijacked truck itself, if a hijacking occurs. In this way, the hijacking lair can be discovered and the information conveyed to Lieut. Kerr.

2. Know your drivers and put no strangers on your loads unless well recommended. Require drivers to carry identification cards.

3. School drivers to be able to identify the hijackers afterwards. Do not allow them to leave loaded vehicles during the noon hour nor permit them to stop for lunch at speakeasies.

4. When a hijacking occurs, whether within or without the city limits, have the driver notify Lieut. Kerr at police headquarters so that the machinery for capture of the robbers may be set in motion.

Suburbs Fail to Coöperate.

This last instruction, according to the cartage theft committee, betrays one of the difficulties of the situation. Up to now, the committee asserted, sheriffs of neighboring counties and police chiefs of Cook county suburbs in many instances have failed to provide the proper coöperation for seizing the hijackers, either for lack of diligence or for lack of man power.

Interviews with Sheriff Meyering of Cook county, sheriffs of seven adjacent counties and with a spokesman for the state police at Springfield disclosed a total lack of coördination in meeting the problem. Most of the sheriffs were inclined to maintain that hijacking, if any, occurred in other counties than their own. All denied that their deputies might have been tempted into collusion with hijackers.

The Will county sheriff, Oliver Flint of Joliet, conceded there had been a few hijackings of brewery trucks since 3.2 beer became legal, but maintained the hijacking of other commodities was more prevalent in the neighboring county of Kane.

Half Dozen at the Most.

The Kendall county sheriff, Martin Kextell of Yorkville, averred there had been no more than "a half dozen hijackings at the most" in his county in the past year, but admitted the robbers invariably got away. He said he had twenty deputies, none of whom patrol the roads at night, but mentioned "a wonderful organization of 200 special deputies who were glad to be routed out at any hour for a bit of fun." None of the special deputies had been summoned on hijackings, however, he added.

Ed George of Sycamore, son and only deputy for Sheriff Isaac George of De Kalb county, recalled a hijacking of a $2,200 cargo of butter two weeks ago near De Kalb, but said the incident occurred so close to the Will county line that his neighbor, Sheriff Flint, beat him to the scene.

HIJACKERS SEIZE TRUCK AND $350 CIGARET CARGO

John Longo, a truck driver for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, was beset by a trio of hijackers yesterday at Trumbull and Chicago avenues. Brandishing pistols, the three clambered aboard and ordered him to drive into an alley where they forced him off before driving away with the load of cigarets valued at $352.

Joseph Corrado, 5729 West 63rd street, an alleged hijacker, who was seized by county highway police near the Willow Springs station Oct. 5, aboard a truck load of stolen poultry, was bound over to the grand jury yesterday by Justice of the Peace Ira P. Lambert in Summit under bonds of $15,000. Corrado and two companions, who managed to escape, had stolen the truck from Sam Echt, 9039 Muskegon avenue.

U. S. TAX CASE AGAINST MALOY NEARS ACTION

Investigators Find Some Witnesses Reluctant.

In spite of reluctant witnesses who say they fear reprisals if they talk, the government's income tax case against Thomas E. Maloy, czar of the motion picture operators' union, is being successfully completed, according to reports yesterday in the United States courthouse.

"It may become necessary," one of the investigators said, "to bring a few witnesses in the Maloy case before the court in contempt or perjury proceedings if they refuse to talk."

Method Used in Malone Case.

This procedure was used recently in the William H. Malone income tax case: One lawyer witness was sentenced to three months in jail for continued recalcitrance but three other witnesses agreed to go again before the federal grand jury and amplify their testimony.

"You can bet on this," continued the Maloy case investigator, "that when we do get Maloy—and we will—his trial will present the best expose of labor racketeering yet seen. But it's certainly difficult to make those witnesses talk."

Owners of motion picture houses, it was learned, figure largely in the investigation. The reports were that most of the sums Maloy received came from theater men who were willing to do almost anything to avoid a strike of operators.

Another difficulty said to have been encountered in the investigation is that Maloy had a "middle man" who received the gratuities in question. This has complicated the tracing of the money directly to the union czar, it was said.

Maloy has ruled over the union with an iron hand. There have been many threatened revolts but the leaders did not last long. Two rebels—Jacob Kaufman and Fred Oser—have been killed, Oser in Maloy's office at the hands of Ralph O'Hara, Maloy's tall and brawny assistant.

U. S. JAILS FLYER FOR ARMS DEALS IN THE FAR EAST

TIENTSIN, China, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Bert Hall, American wartime aviator and soldier of fortune, was arrested today by United States consular officials on a charge of engaging in illegal firearms importations into China for sale to military forces.

Hall, according to the charges, obtained from an obscure Chinese general and converted to his own use $10,000 Mexican, supposedly for a shipment of pistols.

GUARD FREEDOM OF PRESS, URGES COL. McCORMICK

Tells Editors New Perils Menace Guaranties.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Col. Robert R. McCormick counseled the Inland Daily Press association yesterday to guard well the freedom of the press.

"No men have ever had a greater duty imposed upon them than has come to the newspaper men of America today, to protect that freedom not in their own interest but in the interests of all the people and for all time," he said.

Long an ardent champion of the freedom of the press, Col. McCormick traced the history of newspaper publishing back more than three centuries to the reign of Henry VII. of England.

In all the years to the present, he said, there have been untiring efforts by absolute monarchs and politicians alike to control and muzzle the press to advance their own ends. He told the press association, members of which represent newspapers in 16 middle west states, they could consider carefully the national recovery administration code for the press.

Request Is Rejected.

"When representatives of the newspapers applied for a code," said Col. McCormick, "they included in their application a provision reserving to the applicant newspapers their rights of freedom of the press, guaranteed to them under the federal constitution and the state constitutions.

"This draft was made by me and for it I have no pride of authorship. It was submitted with the proposed code to the administration and was flatly rejected."

The publisher referred to federal licensing of radio stations "under a star chamber, without legal procedure, and without an adequate right of appeal to the courts." He spoke of a "group of men of political influence in Indiana" obtaining transfer of the wave length of station WIBO in Chicago to station WIND at Gary, Ind., without payment to the original owner.

Now There's Licensing of Press.

"My reason for introducing the reference to radio licensing is because we have licensing of the press now presented to us [under the NRA]. And it indicates how much rights we may expect to have under that method," he said.

Within a few hours after the recovery administration turned down the newspapers' proffered code, the Chicago publisher said, he sailed for Europe on a trip that took him to Germany. In that nation, he said, he found exemplification of the result of government dominance of the press.

In one newspaper editorial room, he recounted, was a Nazi representative originally sent there as a censor of the paper's news columns. He told how the publishers told him in confidence in a taxicab—after refusing to talk in the street, at his hotel, or in their offices—that the government agent had made himself "executive editor of the newspaper in every capacity."

German Press a Business Failure.

"I have learned from other sources," he said, "that the newspapers of Germany have not only failed in their literary functions, but are all complete failures in a business way." He described one of the functions of the newspapers as "to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

Col. McCormick said that within the last 10 years efforts to destroy the freedom of the press have been renewed. He spoke of an attempt to give judges the power to enjoin newspapers from publishing in Minnesota, of a pending law in Wisconsin which would make it unlawful for corporations to publish editorials, and of actions of judges in other states to use the weapon of contempt of court citations against newspapers on insufficient grounds.

PRAISE PROVISIONS OF CODE DESIGNED TO KEEP PRESS FREE

The Inland Press association, at the closing session yesterday of its meeting at the Morrison hotel, made public a resolution which praised the provisions in the proposed NRA newspaper code, designed to prevent infringement of freedom of the press:

"The freedom of the press is not merely the concern of the press itself," says the resolution, "but primarily the concern of the people. The guaranty of a free press was written into the constitution for the protection of the people's liberties, and today the public welfare imperatively demands that such freedom be maintained in its fullest vigor.

"Therefore it is not only to the interest of the publishers, but it is their duty to the public to strive to the utmost of their power to maintain that liberty unimpaired and to protest most earnestly and solemnly against any action tending toward its curtailment.

"We view with profound apprehension any policy or method designed to abridge in anywise the constitutional guaranties of a free press, or which, even if not so designed, might so operate in practice.

"We regard the insistance of the newspaper code committee upon sections eleven and fourteen in the draft of the proposed code for newspapers as a defense of rights absolutely vital to the nation at this time."

JOHNSON URGES BUYING

A plea for greater concentration on the production and sale of capital goods to publishers and editors of trade papers was made yesterday by NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson in a telegram he sent to the members of Associated Business Papers, who were holding their annual meeting at the Union League club. The session was attended by about 100 publishers of business papers throughout the country.

"Your group is informed as to the vast amount of purchasing of durable goods which has been deferred during the last three years," the telegram stated. "You understand that the industries producing such goods represent more than half this country's normal business.

Seeks to Spread Income.

"We are at a critical time in recovery. Confidence of the great mass of our people in their own future and in the future of the country has been restored. Men are going back to work; pay envelopes are fatter. We must insure this upward trend by making it practicable for the purchasing of durable goods to be resumed again, so that the industries that make such goods and the workers normally employed in those industries may again have an income.

"It is within your province to contribute mightily to the release of the dammed up demand for machinery and equipment and other goods required by mills and factories and our transportation systems for fully efficient operation under today's conditions."

Farm Journal Chiefs Meet.

Members of the Agricultural Publishers' association, representing twenty-six farm newspapers, met at the Stevens hotel yesterday and reelected three directors whose terms had expired. They are S. R. McKelvie of the Nebraska Farmer, Lincoln, Neb.; William G. Campbell of the Indiana Farmers' Guide, Huntington, Ind., and B. Morgan Shephard of the Southern Planter, Richmond, Va. P. E. Ward, publisher of the Farm Journal, Philadelphia, was elected to fill a directorship vacancy. Following the election the conferees discussed the agricultural marketing act's effect on advertising.

Col. L. W. Herron of the Evening Star, Washington, D. C., was elected president of the Major Markets Newspapers, Inc., at the close of their ninth annual meeting in the Stevens hotel yesterday. L. H. Barton, Chicago, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

MAJORITY VOTE FOR REPEAL TO DATE IS 7,575,370

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—(AP)—The thirty-three states which have voted for repeal of the 18th amendment have averaged a three to one margin.

Those states contain more than two-thirds of the nation's population. The vote represented one for each 5.6 persons in those states.

The total population of those states is 85,630,000, estimated as of July 1 this year by the census bureau. The nation's estimated total population is 125,693,000.

A total popular vote of 15,034,570 has been cast thus far in passing upon the repeal amendment. That does not include Wyoming and Nevada, which selected their convention delegates by precinct massmeetings or county conventions, and not by popular vote.

The population of those two states is 324,000. The total vote for President in the 33 states last year was 28,765,394, or one vote for every 3.2 persons.

Of the total popular vote on repeal, 11,304,970 were for the ratification of the amendment. That was 75.2 per cent of the total vote.

Votes cast against repeal totaled 3,729,600, or 24.8 per cent of the total vote.

The majority for repeal to date is 7,575,370.

BARRED EDITOR OF TRADE LETTER MINUS SUPPORT

Is No Longer Eligible for Correspondents' Body.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—James True, editor of a weekly business gossip letter out of Washington, who has been denied admission to the press conferences of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, today was without any support whatever from the organized newspaper correspondents of the capital.

The business paper corespondents' committee, composed of writers and representatives of trade publications, after a meeting today issued a statement that Mr. True no longer was eligible to membership.

True declares that in addition to his occupation in getting out the weekly business letter he acts as Washington correspondent for a number of trade papers, including the Grocers' National News. He had been issued a card of membership in the business paper correspondents' committee, but he declared today that he had surrendered it voluntarily.

Chairman Makes Statement.

The action of the committee today was described in the following statement by Paul Wooton, chairman:

"The eligibility rule of the business paper correspondents, committee does not admit to membership any person engaged in letter news services.

"As the correspondent of business papers Mr. James True was admitted to membership in the business paper correspondents' committee. Subsequently, he engaged in a letter service and no longer is eligible for such membership."

The rule referred to was quoted as follows:

"The applicant shall be the bona fide and accredited editorial representative, in reputable standing, of one or more periodicals of an industrial, technical or trade character presenting news matter relating to industry or business, but published for profit independently of any industry, business or association, whose entire attention is given to news and editorial correspondence."

Press Gallery Closed to Him.

Yesterday the standing committee of newspaper correspondents who control admissions to the senate and house press galleries discussed the True case with William V. Lawson, assistant NRA propagandist in charge of newspaper publicity. This committee decided that True, having no connection with a daily newspaper, had no right to press gallery privileges extended to accredited newspaper men.

Gen. Johnson barred True after charging him with making false statements concerning NRA in his news letter. True insists that his statements were true, and that he is being barred because he criticized the administration.

Al Smith and Raskob May Be Called as Witnesses at Trial

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Timothy J. Mara, sports promoter, who is being sued with Patrick F. Kenny, Yonkers contractor, for $70,000 on notes made during the Alfred E. Smith presidential campaign in 1928, told Supreme Court Justice McCook today that they were signed at the dictation of William F. Kenny when money was coming in too slowly. He said the signers were assured they would not have to pay. He explained that after Mr. Smith had failed to keep a promise to have the notes taken care of the former governor "washed his hands" of the matter.

L. Gainsburg, counsel for the defendants, told the jury that both Mr. Smith and John J. Raskob, who was national Democratic chairman, would testify if they were summoned; that the notes formed part of the Smith campaign financing, and that the late James J. Riordan, who was president of the trust company, told Mara and Kenny they would not have to pay them.

Told He Acted "Very Dumb."

"They all went up to the offices of William F. Kenny," Gainsburg said, "and there set the amount of the notes my clients were to sign. Mr. Kenny set down $50,000 as the amount of Mr. Mara's note and $20,000 as Patrick F. Kenny's note."

The attorney said that James W. Gerard, treasurer of the Smith campaign, was having trouble raising $4,000,000 by public subscription and had refused to borrow unless friends of the Democratic party agreed to make up any deficit.

Mr. Mara testified that Mr. Smith told him that he should not have signed the note, and that he "acted very dumb in the matter." He said he had done so only after being told he would not have to pay. He consented to sign one renewal, he testified, but when he was asked to sign another he sought out Mr. Smith, chairman of the board.

Smith Sees Raskob.

"I told him I could not afford to pay $3,000 interest in order to renew the note and told him how I came to sign it in the first place. Mr. Smith said he would see John J. Raskob about it; that he was sure Mr. Raskob would pay it as subscriptions were coming in pretty well."

Mr. Mara said that Mr. Smith told him to "go along with the note," and he did so for six months more. "When it became due I saw Mr. Smith again and told him I could not renew it," he testified. "He said he had seen Raskob and had had no luck, and was washing his hands of the matter." He told me to "do whatever you want to about it." The suit was brought against him in 1931, when he finally declined to renew, he said.

BOY, 3, PLACED IN ESCROW TILL SUIT IS ENDED

Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy yesterday placed Richard Dutton, 3 years old, in the custody of the bureau of welfare. In a contest between the parents for custody of the child, his mother, Mrs. Geraldine Reynolds Dutton, a parachute jumper, was arrested recently on a charge of kidnaping made by her husband.

Under an arrangement made by the bureau, the boy will be cared for by Mrs. Josephine Thomas, 5212 Dakin street, a member of the welfare bureau, pending the trial of the divorce suit between the parents. The father, Ralph A. Dutton, electrical engineer of Syracuse, N. Y., has filed a cross-bill to the divorce suit which Mrs. Dutton brought in the Circuit court here.

Judge La Buy ordered Dutton to pay $10 a week to Mrs. Thomas for the care of the boy. Both he and Mrs. Dutton were granted permission to see Richard.

Mrs. Dutton, it is charged, took the boy from Dutton's Syracuse home on Aug. 8. The charge of kidnaping, on which Dutton had her arrested, will be heard today by Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry.

The Columbian exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

The Fair, after a run of almost five months, yesterday began preparations for the final stretch, working out a program which will end the Exposition as it began, drawing from all of Chicago and the surrounding area for a colorful program of music, pageantry and fun. With the Fair extended twelve days so that it would end at midnight Sunday Nov. 12, all departments were working to make the final sixteen days the banner period of the Exposition.

Railroads entering Chicago yesterday announced that reduced rates, scheduled to come to an end Nov. 1, would be continued until the end of the Fair.

The final events will open Oct. 28 with the celebration of Harvest Home day. During the afternoon twenty contests will be held, embracing the time honored events of the country fall festival. There will be something for every man and woman and child. Every boy carrying a pumpkin and every girl bringing a live chicken will be admitted free. The pumpkin will be made into a jack o' lantern, but the girls will take their chickens home with them, still alive. In the evening free vaudeville will be staged.

Only 25 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair

Big Ten Day on Oct. 29.

Big Ten day will be observed Oct. 29 with university bands from Illinois, Michigan, Northwestern, and Chicago playing and drilling in the courts of the various buildings.

"On "I Was There" day, Oct. 30, wearers of buttons indicating attendance at the Fair during Chicago week will be admitted free to five concessions. They are: The Sky Ride, Fort Dearborn, "The World a Million Years Ago," the Lama temple, and the Enchanted island. Apples will be given away throughout the grounds all day.

On Oct. 31 the Fair celebrates Halloween, and the entire ground will be turned over to goblins and pixies, with a happy hunting ground of corn shocks and golden pumpkins provided. Parties will be given in most concessions and exhibits, but the main event will be staged in the Court of States.

Free cider and doughnuts will be provided for the celebration, and in the evening all Fair visitors will be given noise makers and confetti free of charge at the gate.

Week of Armistice Events.

Armistice week will be devoted to recalling events of the war, but with the program so planned that there will be ample time for a final round of sightseeing, Fair officials said. There will be the following special days, in order: Declaration of War day, Belleau Wood day, Chateau Thierry day, San Mihiel day, Meuse-Argonne day, and Armistice day.

For Farewell day, Sunday, Nov. 12, the officials are planning a surprise program that will not be announced until the preceding day, it was said.

AUTO OF FUTURE TO HAVE 3 WHEELS —ENGINE IN REAR

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Describing the automobile of the future before the Canadian section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, Frank S. Spring of Detroit said today it will have three wheels, two in front and one in back and the engine at the rear.

Spring said it was not possible to design a perfectly streamlined car with four wheels. He said another revolution in design would be placing the two front wheels outside the body so as to reduce wind resistance by cutting the frontal area of the vehicle.

Spring predicted engineers would soon have an automobile that could take off and fly. He flew to Toronto [in an airplane] and ran into two snowstorms en route.

COMING TO FAIR

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Weather conditions will not be suitable for the second stratosphere balloon ascension attempt from the Fair grounds before Monday night, Lieut. Commander T. G. W. Settle announced yesterday in a telegram from Akron, O. The message was received by Maj. Chester L. Fordney, U. S. M., who will accompany Settle on the flight.

Two hundred Indianapolis newsboys will arrive in a special train over the Big Four railroad tomorrow to visit the Fair. A special train on the same road yesterday brought 176 men who have been in conservation corps camps in the far west to Chicago for a stopover at the Fair. The conservation crew left later in the day en route to camps in the southeast.

When 60 children from Mount Morris, Ill., visit the Fair today as guests of the Kiwanis club of that city, the community, Fair officials said, will have earned the distinction of sending every child in town to see the Exposition.

Brig. Gen. Charles Carroll Walcutt, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Walcutt of Columbus, O., are among this week's visitors at A Century of Progress. Mrs. Walcutt's father, Col. Robert E. A. Crofton, was the first commandant at Fort Sheridan in 1891. Mrs. Walcutt and her husband were the first couple to be married in the new fort, the wedding taking place on Aug. 26, 1891. The Walcutts are staying at the Windermere hotel.

OPEN FAIR IN '34, ASK DELEGATES OF 100 GROUPS

Representatives of more than 100 Chicago business, civic, and social organizations met last night in the Congress hotel and formulated a unanimous request for the continuance of the World's Fair in 1934.

Mayor Kelly, who was one of the principal speakers, declared the reopening would show the city's confidence in the recovery program of President Roosevelt and added he was certain a 1934 Fair would be a bigger success than that of 1933.

Other speakers said they had heard of thousands of people who were frightened into staying away when they heard false reports that no parking space was available in Chicago.

Lloyd D. Miller, president of the Howard District Business association, expressed himself as greatly in favor of holding another Fair without peepshows or fan dancers. The general sentiment was that the Fair was wanted again, either with or without such shows.

Henry N. Fowler, president of the South Central Kiwanis club, presided at the meeting. Among the other speakers were John B. Reynolds, president of the Rotary Club of Chicago; Joseph Grayson, president of the Woodlawn Business Men's association, and Walter E. Beebe.

Sues to Stop Newspaper Presses as Noise Menace

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 18.—(AP)—An injunction to stop the presses of the Arkansas Democrat was asked for in a suit filed in Chancery court here today by the owners of a building adjoining the newspaper plant. It was alleged that the noise from the presses constituted a nuisance which prevented the renting of offices in the building across a narrow alley.

TELLS LIBRARY'S PART IN SAVING CIVILIZATION

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Conservation of the records of scholarship, particularly the doctrine of Ptolemaeus on the rotundity of the earth, resulted as a direct consequence in the discovery of America. It was the monks of the middle ages, working in the silence of their gardens over Greek and Roman manuscripts, who made possible the rise of modern Europe.

This was the theme taken yesterday by Msgr. Eugene Tisserant, director of the Vatican library, who discussed what such preservation of records means to changing civilizations at the conference of the American Library association at the Hotel Stevens.

In the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, he pointed out, such scholarship was confined to Roman classicism and scholastic philosophy and theology.

West Gets Greek Culture.

"And suddenly war, which brings destruction and kills civilization, gives to the western world what it wants," he said. "Greek monks and Greek scholars, bringing with them the books which are their only treasures, arrive in Italy in the first part of the fifteenth century, and while Constantinople is taken by Mohammed II., Florence and Rome become the theaters of the most extraordinary effort for rendering in Latin and making accessible to all, the monuments of Greek culture. Modern Europe is arising; it needs new culture and new thought, and it finds them in Athens—Athens forgotten for fifteen centuries. No one at that time did so much as Pope Nicholas V. for research of manuscript, for the protection of scholars.

"Aristotle and Plato became known exactly as they were; the history of antiquity was largely open to scholars and permitted comparisons between similar situations, which can be so useful for statesmen and leaders. Most of the ancient experiences in medicine and other practical sciences were given back to humanity.

British Librarian Speaks.

"Loss of records of scholarship means breaking the progress of civilization and preservation of records means continuity of civilization in a world submitted to continuous changes. Therefore, our task, as librarians, is similar to that of the priestesses of Vesta, to whom was committed the care of the sacred fire."

Arundell Esdaile, secretary of the British museum, vice president of the British Library association, discussed the social responsibility of the modern library.

"The modern library," he said, "took its rise with the Renaissance, round the turn of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. At that time the new spirit of nationhood, full of good and evil destiny for men, was rising up against the august receding shade of that ancient and venerable conception of the Holy Roman empire, though not yet could the latter be described as what it came in the end to be, the smile without the cat.

"The waters of knowledge have overflowed the neatly canalized beds in which they were wont to flow. The sciences are no longer self-sufficient: and the libraries are being brought together into a fellowship. In each country the problem is being solved in a different manner. In Britain we are building an arch made up of regional centers: the key of the arch is the National Central library.

Counsel for Democracy.

"If democracy is to mean more than the counting of noses, or the victory in a conflict of ignorant clamors, darkness and noises of night, it must mean a society which thinks and reads and discusses, and whose balance of judgment, rather than blind loyalty, directs its ends.

"Such a society cannot exist without free access to good books. The remarkable rise of the public library in the last generation is the healthiest omen for the future, even the material future, of our troubled world that I can conceive—short of the miraculous appearance of some one who could understand and with authority interpret economic phenomena."

The John Newberry medal, awarded annually for the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children, was presented yesterday to Mrs. Elizabeth Foreman Lewis of Baltimore, for her book, "Young Fu of the Upper Yangtze."

"WHERE'S ELMER?" WAR VETS TO SHOUT IN CONTEST AT FAIR

An "Elmer calling contest" for north side Legionnaires and women of the north side auxiliaries of the Legion is to feature Greater North Side day at the Fair tomorrow. The contest, which is to be held between 6 and 7 o'clock in the court of the Hall of Science, is to be without restrictions and open to all tree hand shouters.

Both amateurs and professionals are to be allowed to utter an inquiring bray as to the whereabouts of the mythical fellow, Elmer. Neither hog callers, college cheer leaders, nor members of the more untrammeled religious sects are to be barred.

Several schools of thought have grown up concerning the origin of the apparently irresistible witticism. The latest, offered by Fred W. Zei, president of the Past Commanders club of the American Legion, holds that "Elmer" was a lady when first heard of at a state convention in Peoria four years ago. At that time the name was "Elinor," according to Past Commander Zei, and the cry was originated by an exuberant member who had lost his girl.

PLAN FREE BEER FOR LIBERTY DAY AT WORLD'S FAIR

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that he would appoint a committee to cooperate with officials of A Century of Progress on plans to celebrate Nov. 8 at the Fair as Personal Liberty day. A large attendance on this day and at an Armistice celebration would give impetus, the mayor said, to proposals to continue the Fair next year.

"Personal Liberty day," said the mayor, "will enable us to rejoice that the people of the United States have been delivered from the bondage of the many evils which were brought upon us by the course of prohibition, the so-called 'noble experiment.'"

Preliminary plans are to have free beer and sandwiches for those who visit the Fair on Personal Liberty day. Although the mayor said he has not drunk any alcoholic beverage in many years, he recalled from earlier days that beer is an acceptable drink even on cold days.

INSULL 'FRAMING' CHARGES TO GET PUBLIC HEARING

Lawyer Seeks to Summon Bankers in Case.

An opportunity to let the public hear whether "framing of receiverships" took place in the private office of Samuel Insull, former head of the Insull utility empire, on the day before the first of his companies was placed in a federal receivership, was promised by Garfield Charles, federal referee in bankruptcy, during a hearing yesterday. The referee, however, refused to allow Samuel Ettelson, former corporation counsel, who now represents a group of debenture holders of the three Insull holding companies, to call to the witness stand the bankers who allegedly attended the secret meeting.

"I'll give you a hearing," said the referee. "I'll allow you to cross-examine the bankers, but all in good time. Let me pick the occasion. I don't want to throw anything in the way of suits now at issue in New York over millions of dollars' worth of securities while this matter comes into court over $20,000."

Charges by Attorney.

The promise was made after Attorney Ettelson had reiterated charges that the Chicago and New York bankers had "conspired, had from the very inception of the receiverships joined in collusion to frame the bankruptcy and receiverships so that men friendly to Insull could be put into key positions." He charged that although Insull, now a fugitive from justice in Greece and under a federal indictment on charges of embezzlement, was "exercising his malign influence" in the receiverships.

Attorney Ettelson had subpoenaed James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Abner J. Stillwell, vice president of the same institution; Edward E. Brown, vice president of the First National bank; John Wing of the law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale; Solomon Smith, president of the Northern Trust company, and Samuel Insull Jr.

They were to be brought into the case, he told the federal referee during the stormy session yesterday in the referee's courtroom on the twelfth floor at 100 West Monroe street, to prove collusion between Insull and the banks in the choosing of receivers. He said that the list of receivers for the three holding companies and their attorneys had been chosen at this meeting.

Opposes Fee for Receiver.

The immediate purpose of yesterday's hearing was to protest against a fee of $17,500 sought by Calvin Fentress as bankruptcy receiver and receiver in ancillary equity proceedings in New York, of the Insull Utilities Investment company, Inc., and against a fee of $9,000 sought by the law firm of Allen & Dalbey, his attorneys in the bankruptcy proceedings.

Ettelson asserted that the appointment of Fentress and of his attorneys was at the instigation of Insull and contrary to the direction of the United States Supreme court, which held that no individuals who had any connection with the bankrupt should be appointed to such positions by the courts.

MALONE CLAIMS POLITICS BEHIND TAX INDICTMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—William H. Malone, former chairman of the Illinois state tax commission, today informed THE TRIBUNE that he will return to Chicago to fight the income tax evasion charges against him as soon as he completes a mortgage deal that is detaining him here.

Malone declared he learned of his indictment by a federal grand jury through the Paris edition of THE TRIBUNE yesterday. He said he suspects that political opponents are using his absence to try to knife him as revenge for his reassessment reforms.

"I have always made an honest return on my income. The government never demanded one dime more than I paid," Malone declared.

Burglars Strip Cottages of Furniture and Silver

Burglars broke into two unoccupied cottages at Sand lake, near Lake Villa, early yesterday and stole furniture, linen, silverware, and clothing valued at several thousand dollars. The cottages belong to Thomas N. Donnelly, a diamond broker, living at 5314 Hyde Park boulevard, and one was occupied during the summer by his family and the other by the family of his son, Chris. The burglars, who drove a truck, fled, leaving part of their loot behind when his dogs aroused Andrew Wolf, a neighbor, and he turned on the lights in his house.

COLD WEATHER DUE HERE BY OCT. 29

According to records of the Weather Bureau for the past 20 years the average date for the first freezing weather here is October 29. Thousands of motorists who put off buying an anti-freeze till the last minute will be caught unprepared when the cold snap strikes. And many of them will pay for their carelessness. Frozen radiators and cracked engine-blocks cost money.

This year put in Eveready Prestone before the freeze. It won't evaporate or boil away. And at the new low price of $2.95 a gallon it's the most economical anti-freeze you can buy. In addition to giving dependable, all-winter protection against freezing, Eveready Prestone is definitely good for your car. It reduces the rusting-action of water in the cooling-system by 75% to 95%.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF A KINGFISH IS OFF THE PRESS

Critics Await View of Huey Long's Book.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—No copies of Senator Huey P. Long's autobiography were on sale in this state today, and only a few proven friends were admitted a preview of the Kingfish's literary effort—"Every Man a King."

The politician said he had not yet decided when the book would be available to the public here, which includes a sizable number of critics eager to compare some printed statements with facts.

The Cover Is Bright.

Yellow is the color chosen for the cover, which is further brightened with two pictures of the "Kingfish" and a crown. There is another picture of Senator Long, a large one, printed in the back of the dust cover.

More than an account of his rapid rise to political control of Louisiana, as far as he cares to describe that process, the volume is a vehicle for one of his vote getting themes: the redistribution of wealth. Political chicanery comes in for some space, but it confines itself to the activities of his opponents.

"Then no tear-dimmed eyes of a small child will be lifted into the saddened face of a father and mother unable to give it the necessities of life; then the powerful will be rebuked in the sight of man for holding that which they cannot consume, but which is craved to sustain humanity; the food of the land will feed, the raiment clothe, and the houses shelter all the people; the powerful will be elated by the well-being of all rather than through their greed.

"Then those of us who have pursued that phantom of Jefferson, Jackson, Webster, Theodore Roosevelt and Bryan may hear wafted from their lips in Valhalla—'Every Man a King.'"

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—His finger pushed forward beneath the folds of a sweater to simulate a gun served Robert O. Kelly as a weapon in the holdup of Carl Seward, restaurant proprietor here, early this morning. He asked for $10 to pay the fine of a girl friend. Kelly only averted his being shot by showing the police he was unarmed.

5 GREEK JUDGES PONDER EVIDENCE IN INSULL CASE

Extradition Hearing May Be Held Saturday.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 18.—The five members of the Greek Court of Appeals who have been chosen for the task of deciding whether Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities man, should be extradited met again today to ponder over the voluminous papers in the case. It was said by the legal talent on both sides tonight that the case cannot come up before Saturday, and possibly not until early next week.

It has been exactly one month since the United States government turned the papers over to the Greek government asking Insull's extradition on charges of fraudulent bankruptcy. This year the documents are longer than last year, when Insull's extradition first was asked by the state of Illinois, but it was recalled today that only eight days elapsed last year between the filing of the papers and the Greek court's decision that Insull was a "complicated bookkeeper" and not an embezzler.

Insull Has Strong Defense.

The 30 days that have elapsed in the present case since the filing of the papers ostensibly have been to enable the Greek prosecutor, Anthony Reganakos, and the judges of the Court of Appeals to study the case more thoroughly. The delay has also facilitated—although it would be wrong to say the delay was for that reason—the task of Insull's lawyers in working out a clever fight for the defendant.

Floods of loose talk are flowing around Athens that the Greek judges are going to find this case just a rehash of last year's case and that Insull may have violated the American bankruptcy laws, but not the Greek laws and that therefore he may continue to be the welcome guest of those who are the somewhat distant heirs of Pericles and still may look at Areopagus [the hill where ancient Greek courts held sessions.]

Insull Appears Unworried.

Insull's lawyers say this will be the case and Insull himself, outside the fact that he has been chafing under confinement in a hospital jail now for about eight weeks and has spent altogether about four months in the benign custody of Greek police, appears to have no worries about his future.

By way, perhaps, of calling attention to the fact that the extradition treaty is what it is called and works both ways, attention was drawn today to the fact that a Greek wife killer has just been caught in New York and will come up for extradition soon. The official Greek newspaper here today printed the following on the subject:

"The American legation in Athens has informed the minister of justice that the American police have arrested Demetrios Zavitzianos, condemned to death by default for killing his wife. The legation adds that the American government is ready to extradite the murderer to Greece."

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Artemio Basurto, a former member of the Mexican congress, was shot and killed today by Heriberto Perez Bravo, who said he was avenging the death of his father at the hands of Basurto. OPEN U. S. INQUIRY INTO NEW PHASE OF INSULL CRASH

Duncan's Charges Cause Prosecutor to Act.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green yesterday ordered an inquiry into the charges of Howard W. Duncan, confessed embezzler of $132,000 that funds of the Northern Indiana Public Service company were transferred to the Insull holding companies.

An Indiana grand jury investigation of Duncan's charges was ordered by Judge William J. Murray at Crown Point Tuesday, when Duncan's lawyer, Joseph Conroy, said he had enough evidence to "blast the officials of Northern Indiana Public Service and its holding companies out of the trenches." Duncan, who as assistant treasurer of the Northern Indiana Public Service company of Hammond embezzled $132,000 of its funds, pleaded guilty, but sentence was deferred pending the grand jury investigation.

Sends Agent to Crown Point.

District Attorney Green said he was interested in ascertaining whether any funds of the northern Indiana operating group went to Corporation Securities company, the officers and directors of which are under indictment on mail fraud and bankruptcy fraud charges. An agent of the division of investigation was dispatched to Crown Point for a conference with Prosecuting Attorney Robert G. Estill.

Northern Indiana Public Service is controlled, through the Midland Utilities company, by the Midland United company, a holding company formerly headed by Samuel Insull Jr. Midland United is controlled, through stock ownership and interlocking directorates, by the large operating companies and Middle West Utilities company, but a substantial part of its stock was held by the now bankrupt Corporation Securities company.

Company Officials Reply.

Details of Duncan's charges have not been disclosed, but they are understood to concern alleged substitutions of worthless for good assets in the Northern Indian Public Service accounts. A statement issued yesterday by G. C. Ellis, an official of the Midland United company said:

"I can state definitely that if Duncan's charges contain allegations of manipulations of the Northern Indiana Public Service company's assets by Midland United they are entirely false and utterly without foundation."

Morse DellPlaine, president of Northern Indiana Public Service, also issued a statement denying Duncan's assertion, made in mitigation of punishment, that he was the first to make known his defalcations and defending financial policies of the company.

DENY OCEAN LINER IGNORED SIGNALS FROM DRIFTING POWER BOAT

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Officials of the former Lloyd Sabaudo line today issued a statement denying that the steamship Conte Biancamano had failed to respond to distress signals from a small motor boat in which two men had drifted fifty miles to sea. The charge was made in a suit for $100,000 damages against the line, pending in the federal court.

No more worrying

*Teeth and gums are as safe as a dentifrice can make them when Squibb's Dental Cream guards The Danger Line

PUT worry behind you. Come back to the joyous certainty that your teeth are getting the finest protection a dentifrice can give.

Put Squibb's Dental Cream on guard at The Danger Line, and forget fear. Squibb's gives your teeth all-round, balanced protection—5-way protection that supplements the work of your dentist and leaves no loopholes.

It cleans the teeth thoroughly and polishes them safely, with absolute freedom from grit. It helps to prevent bleeding of the gums by safe cleansing, not by the use of astringents or other irritants. It combats the germ acids that cause tooth-decay. And because it gives most in protection, Squibb's Dental Cream is truly economical.

Squibb's, indeed, is a dentifrice for people who would be happy. You'll enjoy its delightful taste—so clean and refreshing that even children love to use it. And you can trust its scientifically balanced formula, backed by the house of Squibb and its 75-year reputation for reliability.

* The Danger Line is the area where the thin edge of the gum encircles each tooth. Here food particles collect and bacteria multiply, generating acids. These acids which attack the tooth-structure, also constantly irritate the gum tissues. Nearly all gum diseases are due to the effects of germs and irritation caused by ineffectual cleaning. Not one, but all your teeth are endangered when gums and teeth are unclean. And when you use Squibb's Dental Cream, you force into the sheltered areas countless antacid particles which combat the germ acids and protect the gums.

Advice

to Mothers

KEEP YOUR HOME IN THE HEALTHY COMFORT ZONE

easily... cheaply... safely... surely

YOU WILL ENJOY life more this winter. Everyone in the family will be healthier and more comfortable if you keep your home in the comfort zone. The United States Public Health Service says in Public Health Broadcast No. 309:

"It has been found that the most comfortable temperature, as well as the most healthful one, is between 68° and 70°."

You can keep your home in that healthy comfort zone, easily, cheaply, safely and surely by using Famous Reading Anthracite—the super-cleaned Pennsylvania hard coal.

HERE IS WHY

Because Famous Reading Anthracite is "HARD" coal, twice as many heat units can be put into your furnace at every firing than you can get in with softer coal or lighter fuel. That means far fewer firings each day . . . more time for other things. Because it is so HARD, it burns evenly and steadily just as you set the drafts.

Because it is "HARD" coal, Famous Reading Anthracite keeps your home clean. It burns without soot or smoke. It stores indefinitely. It never explodes to fill your house with greasy soot or, perhaps, set fire to it. It is almost impossible to clinker it. Your home is safe from fires caused by overheating. Furnace linings and grates are protected from warping. Order a trial ton of Famous Reading Anthracite today.

Learn for yourself how very good HARD coal can be. Ask your coal merchant for it, or write us for the name of the nearest Reading merchant.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $454,515, making a total of $79,214,643 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

Oct. 18.....$	33,332	$ 78,349
Uncollected ..	16,984,434	45,184,772
	1930.	1931.
Oct. 18.....$	75,655	$ 267,179

Angered at the appointment of a receiver for a tax delinquent property in another court while a tax receivership petition was pending before him, County Judge Jarecki yesterday threatened contempt of court proceedings against attorneys and others involved. Charges were made to the judge that the appointment of a receiver in the other court was an effort to deprive the County court of its right to collect taxes.

The property involved is a 22 flat building at 5601-09 West Madison street on which $11,000 in taxes is due for 1928, 1929, and 1930. The building belonged to James Arado, who died in 1930 leaving it to his daughters, Mae and Helen Arado of 310 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park.

Paul H. Altmeier is administrator. He made a $500 payment on the taxes on Sept. 27 to avoid the appointment of the county treasurer as receiver under the Kerner-Skarda act, and Judge Jarecki had continued the motion for a receiver to yesterday.

On Oct. 10, however, Attorney John Mulder of the firm of Crowe, Gorman & Savage went before Judge William J. Lindsay in the Superior court on the foreclosure petition of the holders of a mortgage of $157,000 on the property, and James Curtis, 5607 West Madison street, was appointed as receiver.

Attorney Thomas O'Grady, representing Mae and Helen Arado, charged yesterday before Judge Jarecki that the appointment of the receiver in the Superior court was an effort to deprive the county court of the taxes. J. H. Perkinson, counsel for Altmeier, said that the administrator had money on hand, but that other obligations of the Arado estate, including the payment of $15,000 to an uncle, had to be met.

"Have you the money to pay these debts?" Judge Jarecki asked.

"Yes," Perkinson replied.

Judge Warns Attorney.

"If you did not, this court might entertain a motion to advance you the money," Judge Jarecki remarked.

The judge said it was evident that "some attorneys are endeavoring to take advantage of the county court by applying for receivers in other courts."

"I am warning lawyers now that this conduct will be met with contempt citations," Judge Jarecki said, "and I will allow Altmeier and the attorneys until Oct. 24 to report on the receivership petition pending here. If there is any contempt it will be dealt with vigorously."

During the day Judge Jarecki appointed County Treasurer McDonough receiver for forty-six income bearing properties. The properties owe $94,000 in delinquent taxes.

Couple Sentenced to Jail for Failure to Pay Taxes

Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher yesterday sentenced Anton Szymczyk, 49 years old, and his wife, Constance, 42 years old, to the county jail for six months for contempt of court. The charge grew out of their failure to make a tax payment which the judge had ordered on their property at 4019 Melrose street.

Szymczyk was taken to jail immediately and his wife was on her way there when Judge Fisher learned that she was the mother of five small children and was also caring for the two children of a neighbor.

The judge then allowed her to return home to spend the night and say good-by to the children and ordered her to appear before him today. Sheriff Meyering said he would contribute to the children's support while their parents are in jail and would station a deputy at the home to care for them.

Story of the Case.

The Melrose street property is a 30 flat building in which the Szymczyks purchased a $50,000 equity with their savings when they moved in nine years ago. Afterward they paid $30,000 on a $90,000 mortgage.

The mortgage holders foreclosed on the property several years ago and four receivers had been appointed on different occasions until last May. At that time $12,000 in taxes had accrued on the property. The Szymczyks alleged that the receivers had collected the rents, but had not paid the taxes.

Judge Fisher allowed the Szymczyks to take over the property, but instructed them to apply the net income on taxes. In August Judge Fisher appointed another receiver. The Szymczyks reported that they had collected $1,400, of which $700 had been used for expenses.

Judge Imposes Sentence.

Judge Fisher ordered the balance of $700 brought in yesterday. When the Szymczyks were unable to produce the money Judge Fisher sentenced them to jail.

"We used all the money for repairs on the building to keep our tenants satisfied," Mrs. Szymczyk sobbed as she was taken into custody. "Now we're being jailed because we couldn't pay taxes on our home. What will my children do?"

The children are Marie, 8 years old; Stella, 6; Constance and Anton, 4 year old twins, and Leo, 14 months old.

Children See First Cow in Milking Demonstration

Children of the Beale school, 6043 South Sangamon street, some of whom had never seen a cow, were given a practical demonstration of milking yesterday. Spot, a cow, and her calf, Frisky, were taken to the school under the auspices of the Milk foundation and the University of Illinois department of dairy husbandry. The milking demonstration was accompanied by a lecture on the properties of milk.

START REVENUE ESTIMATES FOR COUNTY BUDGET

Fiscal Officials Face Tax Cut and Deficits.

County officials opened the 1934 budget making season for Chicago local governments yesterday when Michael J. O'Connor, deputy county controller, began to prepare the estimates of revenue showing how much the county board will have on which to base its appropriations. The county fiscal year ends Nov. 30, a month before that of other local governments.

In addition to the old bugaboo of tax delinquencies, Mr. O'Connor, in common with other governmental fiscal officers, has a new worry this year. That is the 25 per cent cut in 1932 real estate assessments which Assessor Jacobs has announced he will make.

The county, as is the case with the city and school board, has a tax rate for corporate purposes [general operating expenses] which is fixed by statute. The 25 per cent real estate assessment cut, according to estimates, means a 17 per cent reduction in tax revenue for the county. It has in recent years always levied to the limit of its maximum rate.

Deficits Must Be Absorbed.

Not only must the county absorb this 17 per cent cut in its tax revenue for 1934, but it must also absorb deficits growing out of failure to anticipate in full the reductions in assessments during the years 1932 and 1933. The taxes for those years were anticipated and spent, but they have not yet been collected.

Mr. O'Connor estimates that, with the 17 per cent reduction, the county must absorb a $900,000 loss of tax revenue for 1934. There are also heavy deficits in the $1,900,000 which was anticipated and spent for 1932 and in the $1,500,000 spent for 1933. Altogether, it is said, the board will have something like $13,200,000 for operating expenses during 1934, as compared with the $17,500,000 expected in revenue on which it is basing its 1933 budget.

The county gets a large part of its revenue from the earnings of its fee offices. But these, too, have declined. Those of the recorder's office, where land titles are registered, slumped sharply with the bursting of the real estate boom.

Tax Penalties Exceed Estimate.

During 1933 the county will get about $4,000,000 in tax penalties, whereas it was estimated that its income from this source would be only $2,500,000. This was largely balanced by the loss in collection and extension fees, due to the tax delinquencies which make the penalties possible. These fees are paid only when the taxes are collected.

"We'll try to make the lowest budget we can," said Emmett Whealan, president of the county board. "If we have to cut out some activities, we will, but I don't see where we can do it. The county hospital, supposed to house 2,300 patients, has 3,000 now. Oak Forest infirmary, supposed to house 2,800, has 4,200. We would have had to close these places already if it hadn't been for the free labor we got from the emergency relief commission."

Workmen began yesterday to wreck the old Harrison street pumping station, near Halsted street, to make way for the new station which will be built with an RFC loan obtained by the city some months ago. Because the neighborhood is closely built, it is necessary to tear down the tall chimney of the plant brick by brick.

KATHRYN KELLY DONS FASHIONS OF WORKHOUSE

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Kathryn Kelly today began to learn the details of her new career as a life termer in the city workhouse, which she entered last night as a government prisoner. She was the last, except one, of the six persons sentenced to life terms in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case, to take up prison routine.

There was no reminder within the gray stone walls of the workhouse that Mrs. Kelly had "roamed the country like the wife of a millionaire," to use a government prosecutor's expression at her trial. Her 16 cylinder car and smart clothes from exclusive shops, her jewels and new $30,000 home in Fort Worth were being held by the government or had been turned over to satisfy attorneys' fees.

Starts Work in Shop.

Here she wore a blue dress and a shapeless work smock. She was assigned to the sewing and tailoring shop. It developed that she knew nothing at all of these arts. A forewoman started at once to teach her, so that she can become a producing unit of the workhouse. She will sew and knit clothing for other prisoners after she learns how.

The auburn haired wife of George [Machine Gun] Kelly showed that she was under a strain to keep her poise.

Kelly, her fourth husband, was safely stowed away at Leavenworth penitentiary for his part in the $200,000 abduction. The daring criminals who, Mrs. Kelly once had boasted, would effect her escape "if I say the word" seemed just as remote today. Therefore she wisely attempted to offset the effect of those boasts.

Pledges Good Behavior.

"Don't get me wrong," she anxiously told one guard. "I was misquoted when they said I would have Kelly or my friends get me out. I'm going to try to be a model prisoner."

ANNOUNCE PLAN FOR TEACHERS' RE-EMPLOYMENT

Plans for rating teachers temporarily out of work through the board of education's economy program for their reëmployment in the Chicago school system were announced yesterday by Supt. William J. Bogan. The teachers will be assigned in the system in accordance with their seniority ratings as vacancies occur through deaths, resignations, and other causes.

There are 1,259 teachers taking courses at Chicago Normal college for regular elementary and high school teaching certificates. Their rating will be calculated on the basis of seniority, efficiency, previous training and work at the Normal college.

It is estimated that approximately 600 vacancies occur each school year. Officials of the educational department have expressed hopes that all the teachers now at Normal college will be back in the classrooms by the end of two years.

The cheerful little champion pictured here is Betty Elaine Emrick, 3 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Emrick, 7251 South Shore Drive, Chicago, Illinois. Among more than 400 entrants in the Children's Health and Beauty Contest at A Century of Progress this summer, she was adjudged the healthiest child.

WORLD'S FAIR WINNER BECAUSE SHE'S GOOD ALL WAYS

Tiny, golden haired, blue eyed Betty has charm. No doubt about that. What chubby little 3-year-old has not? BUT..

From the top of her curly head to the tips of her toes, the contest judges found every measurement just as it should be. THEN...

Proudly she wears the crown of "champion" not because she excelled her other small rivals in any single way, but because she ranked so high in ALL ways.

But when these desirable qualities are combined with excellence in all other directions, THEN you have something! "The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE ACCUSED IN WASHINGTON.

Milk dealers of three independent Chicago dairy companies are on trial in Washington. The court is a board of the agricultural adjustment administration. The law is a code adopted by the administration. The place, as said, is Washington. The offense is the sale of milk under the price fixed by the code. The evidence against the dairymen shows that purchases were made at eight cents a quart although the code requires that the dealer charge ten.

An agent for the agricultural administration testifies that he purchased eight cent milk at 35 depots in the Chicago region. The administrators who made the law are the judges hearing the case against the accused. Appeal, if any, is to Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture. He is the Supreme court and his appointees are the trial judges. Penalties to which the defendants are liable under the code if found guilty include the loss of license to continue in business and fines of $1,000 a day for selling milk without license.

The defendants are not being tried where the alleged offense was committed but have been required to present themselves with their attorneys in Washington. The law which they have offended is not a law but the rule of a department. The judges are not judges but are the employés in the department. The offense is that of conducting a business upon conditions satisfactory both to the seller and the purchaser and without evidence that the offense was against any public interest except as a lower price for the milk is alleged to be contrary to public policy.

These are some of the noteworthy features of the federal attempt at government control of business. The trade complained of is not in interstate commerce and it is not alleged that considerations of public health are involved. The right for which the independent dairymen are contending is their right to transact business legally in their own localities, upon terms satisfactory to them and to the consumer, and, second, if this be challenged, the right to be tried in the district in which the alleged offense has been committed, in the courts set up for the adjudication of issues under law. It is worthy of note that they are not being tried in law courts but in a bureaucratic court and that the issue is the privilege to do business and earn a living without violating any laws other than the rules of a federal department. The defendants admit the facts. They have sold their milk at a price below the code standard. That is the sole charge against them.

THE ROYAL SCOT.

Late visitors to the Fair will miss an opportunity to inspect England's famous train, the Royal Scot. The train left Chicago during the week on its western pilgrimage, during which it will visit all of our principal western cities.

This exhibit represents by far the greatest undertaking of any foreign corporation. It meant removing an entire train from service, assuming the transportation cost across the Atlantic, and of course the maintenance of a competent crew on this side of the water. Back in 1929, when Sir Josiah Stamp promised Mr. Dawes to exhibit the train, the financial condition of the London, Midland and Scottish warranted the assumption of the expense, and it is to the credit of the company that it carried on in 1933 despite the altered business conditions.

During its sojourn at the Fair the train was visited by over one and one-half million people, showing a high rating as a point of interest, and the Chicago public will join us in wishing the train and its crew a pleasant homeward journey.

AFTER DECEMBER 7.

The dubious feature of the Quebec liquor control system is government vending. A weak spot may be looked for in any system. In many respects the Quebec method of regulation is admirable. Beer and ale may be retailed in barrooms and wine in hotels and restaurants. The chief restrictions are on spirits, which may be freely purchased for the home but which are not legally retailed by drinks. The government enters as vender in such sales as of whisky and gin.

Advantages set up for this vending system are found in the elimination of private profit seeking, in the additional public revenue, in the restriction to package sales and the preventing of barroom practices. High taxation has kept the Quebec bootlegger alive, but mistakes in revenue hunting are not inherent parts of the scheme.

If an American state undertakes to adopt the Quebec system it faces the government vending system, and if objections to it prevail an alternative must be found. Some Americans will be certain that state vending of liquor will further corrupt the liquor trade or that the liquor trade will further corrupt the government, if either be a possibility. There will also be variations of opposition. Some people who will tolerate collecting a revenue from taxes on liquor will object to a state profit on sales. Others, fearing the busy fingers of government, will object to its appearance as a business man in any trade.

If objections prevail to this part of the Quebec system American states must provide something better suited to their own ideas and conditions. It may be found in special corporations of limited profits, in which little faith can be put, or in the licensed sale of package goods not to be used on the premises of the vender. Drug stores now are making such sales and would like to keep the privilege or even be given the monopoly. There'd be a nice business in corner lots for new drug stores.

American politics has made a mess of alcohol in both extremes, in one by permitting the liquor interests to do as they pleased and in the other by letting the zealots have a free hand. Within a few weeks the states will have the whole disturbing question back on their hands again hoping that they can find the middle way. After all that has happened they must find it.

CHICAGO AND ITS FAIR.

Our neighbor, the Boone [Iowa] News-Republican, makes some friendly suggestions regarding the plan for perpetuating the World's Fair. It bases its comment on the mayor's impromptu remarks the other day, which were susceptible to misconstruction as a demand to keep the Exposition open continuously through another year, and it asserts that "the people are in no playboy mood at present," being "too busy trying to discover what is meant by the flood of bootstrap legislation which has recently been passed."

We'll say they are. Nevertheless, the success of the Exposition under the most unfavorable conditions gives plausible grounds to believe that its most valuable features deserve perpetuation, and that the institution of an annual exposition which will appeal to the public is worthy of serious consideration. There is no thought of a continuous performance, of keeping the exposition open for a year. The cost would be prohibitive and the results insufficient. But the establishment of an annual summer event which would display the accomplishments of science, industry, agriculture and trade, and be a resource of recreation through the organization of high grade music, dramatic and sport features, promises, we think, success and benefits not merely to Chicago but to the American public generally.

We suggest that the spirit and intelligence which overcame the unparalleled difficulties met in the achievement of A Century of Progress are quite capable of establishing the annual event proposed. In spite of the circumstances which trouble the newspaper editor, and we are far from ignoring them, this country is not going to the bowwows unless the American people's character has somehow disappeared, and A Century of Progress seems to us encouraging evidence that it has not. It has been a warning to defeatism.

The history of Chicago is the history of conquest over difficulties, some of them seemingly ruinous. A well known eastern visitor, Roger Babson, the business analyst, has just said that Chicago's pioneering instinct and willingness to take a risk will make Chicago the world's largest metropolis with three times its present population in another century. In the mouth of a Chicagoan this would be jeered at as mere brag, but a hundred years ago a prophecy of the present reality would have sounded like insanity.

A LIVE ISSUE OR A DEAD RIGHT.

Dean Ackerman, head of Columbia university's school of journalism, says that editors who think the freedom of the press is guaranteed by the constitution of the United States ought to read Public Document 676-B: Registry No. 507-1-05.

This document contains the "proposed Code of Fair Competition for the American Newspaper Publishers' Industry as Revised for Public Hearing." Section 11 of the code reads as follows:

"In submitting or subscribing to this code, the publishers do not thereby agree to accept or comply with any other requirements than those herein contained, or waive any right to object to the imposition of any further or different requirements, or waive any constitutional rights or consent to the imposition of any requirements that might restrict or interfere with the constitutional guarantee of the freedom of the press."

"The Code for the American Newspaper Publishers' Industry in its present form merely reflects the proposal of the above named industry, and [the following words are in italics] none of the provisions contained therein are to be regarded as having received the approval of the National Recovery Administration as applying to this industry."

Sharing Dean Ackerman's opinion, we offer his comment as follows: "While it is true that this is a public document 'Revised for Public Hearing,' editors should recognize the fact that the freedom of the press is in the balance. The position of the United States government today is definite. Through the NRA it has not approved 'the constitutional guarantee of the freedom of the press.' As long as this situation exists the first amendment to the constitution is in danger."

Editorial of the Day

[The Bloomington Pantagraph.]

At the convention of the Illinois Press association at the University of Illinois last week the association voted to inscribe on a bronze tablet for the Hall of Fame in the journalism school the names of the first editors of Illinois newspapers.

The list already approved for that purpose includes Matthew Duncan, founder and first editor of the Illinois Herald, which was published at Kaskaskia in 1814, four years before Illinois became a state; Henry Eddy, pioneer editor and lawyer, who published the Shawnee Chief at Shawneetown in the year when Illinois was made a state; Hooper Warren, publisher of the Edwardsville Spectator, founded in 1819, it being the third paper in Illinois; James Hall, who edited the first magazine in Illinois, about 1830, at Vandalia; John B. Calhoun, first newspaper editor in Chicago, who published the Chicago Democrat, about 1833.

One can imagine the difficulties under which these newspaper men labored in those pioneer times. Money was scarce, materials hard to get, there was little advertising, there were few subscribers, and the paper was hard to deliver to them, the pay being mostly in commodities such as the country then produced.

But, nevertheless, the editors of Illinois newspapers in the first decade of the state escaped a lot of troubles which modern publishers must overcome. The people did not expect much from their newspapers in those earlier times, and life was simple. But each of the pioneer editors mentioned above probably richly earned his place on a tablet, a century after he lived and toiled among men.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE U. S. A., somewhat disturbed by Herr Hitler and the war clouds over Europe, talks of spending sixty million dollars in motorizing the army. Yes, but if all the horses are put out of the army what will the officers do with their spurs? They've just got to have their spurs. Maybe the army autos can be fixed so that the accelerator will be attached to the seat instead of up in front of a car. Then when the officer who is driving a car wants to step on the gas he digs his spur into the button right behind his foot. Charge, Chester, charge! On, Stanley, on! But remember, stop for the red light and no U turns.

HOW ON EARTH do they find time out in Hollywood to go out on the lot and make pictures? The cinema kings and queens seem to spend their time either denying they're going to get a divorce or getting a divorce.

SUMMER'S ENDED.

Silver clouds and the silver sand,
Sea of lapis and turquoise sky,
While a mackerel gull floats over the land.

Spears of beach-grass against the blue,
Clusters of golden-rod heavy with freight
While the last brown butterfly drifts into view.

Quiet the earth, and quietly pass
Bird and insect, etched on the sky;
Quiet my spirit as here I lie
At one with the sky and the sea and the grass.

ANCHUSA.

OGLESBY, Illinois, has flatly declared it will not ask for nor accept any of the easy money that is being handed out so generously down in Washington. What to do? Edmund Burke said there was no way of indicting a nation. Nor is there any way of sending the city of Oglesby to the psychopathic ward. Maybe the only thing to do would be for the RFC to put two or three hundred thousand dollars in a sack, drop it in the middle of Oglesby, and run like a jack rabbit. Then Oglesby would have to take the money.

"TEACH STUDENTS to Read, Plea of Librarians."—Headlines. Oh, at least that. And two or three of the multiplication tables.

OOH LA LA LA! Every thorn has its rose and every night its dawn. In other words, the law of compensation is always working. For instance, the nudist wife never says, "My dear, I can't go; I haven't a thing to wear!"

"WIDOW STILL HOPES for Promised Spirit Message."—Headline. What's the use? They communicate all right, but all they ever say is, "Do not weep for me; I am very happy here." When I cross the great river I am going to send back something different, if it isn't anything more than "Nuts."

Earl Mohney lives on the Snyder farm that used to be the Aus. Charles farm. He is a son-in-law of Mrs. Mary Shanahan of East Valley. He had his tonsils taken out last Thursday, but whereabouts I don't know.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS are just naturally scared to death all the time; look at news from the colleges: "Army Fears Illinois"; "Illinois Fears Army"; "Chicago Fears Purdue"; "Purdue Fears Chicago"; Northwestern Fears Indiana"; "Indiana Fears Northwestern"; "Michigan Fears Ohio State"; "Ohio State Fears Michigan." It's hard to see how a varsity team has the nerve to get out on the field and tackle the stuffed dummies. One would imagine they just sat around with white faces in their training quarters with their teeth chattering and screaming with terror every time they saw a mouse. And they're such big, husky looking boys, too.

A BLOODHOUND engaged to chase Eliza across the ice turned on Simon Legree and knocked him through the scenery and then tore the pants off of Marks, the Lawyer. The bloodhound was a bit of a critic, but he's a disappointment in a way because he didn't run dear old Uncle Tom and Little Eva out of the theater and chase 'em three miles. I always enjoy Simon Legree very much and Lawyer Marks' efforts to be funny always move me to sympathetic tears. But dear old Uncle Tom and Little Eva invariably give me the w. k. pain in the neck.

A WOMAN in Pennsylvania celebrated her one hundredth birthday by staying home and smoking her old, well blackened clay pipe. But wait; don't kid yourselves that tobacco won't hurt you. The reformers will tell you that if that hundred year old woman in Pennsylvania didn't smoke that old clay pipe that by this time she would be a hundred and fifty years old.

ADIOS.

Oh leave it there, oh leave it there;
Your gentle kiss upon my hair!
No longer shall your arms entwine—
I never can be truly thine;
And now that we have met to part,
A book I write within my heart,
Of hours we have passed together
In fair and showery summer weather;
And pages of this book shall be

DIVERTICULITIS.

A DIVERTICULUM is a pouch on the side of a tube. It is caused by errors or faults in development, and therefore is congenital, the exceptions being too infrequent to be of any consequence. All the diverticula that are of any practical importance occur in connection with the digestive tube. There are diverticula in connection with other tubes, but they go by other names. For instance, aneurysms of the blood vessels are diverticula, although they are acquired rather than inherited, but no one has them in mind when thinking of diverticula. In bronchiectasis there are diverticula of the bronchial tubes, but these are called bronchiectatic cavities.

Some of the bulges in the digestive tube known as diverticula are located in the neck, but most of them are in that part of the tract which is located in the abdomen. When we consider the many and complicated stages through which this part of the anatomy goes, and the many bends and folds and variations in size and in function of it after maturity, the wonder is that the builder's plans go wrong so rarely.

A diverticulum of itself is not a source of symptoms. Those who have them feel like other people and do not know that their insides depart in any way from the orthodox plan. Therefore diverticula are regarded neither as diseases nor conditions. We think of them as hazards. They are liable to fill up with food or food remnants and, since most of them open into the intestine by a small gateway, their contents are not easily emptied. It follows that local inflammations and infections are apt to occur. Diverticula are liable to get caught in hernia, or in twists or invaginations. This possibility adds another hazard.

There is no curative procedure except operation, and the need for that may be urgent. A strangulated diverticulum calls for prompt operation for the same reason that promptness of action is a necessity in strangulated hernia. If there is an impaction there is apt to be ulceration of the diverticulum with perforation, and that, too, calls for quick action. There is no treatment of them except that necessity for which arises out of emergencies. It is possible for a certain amount of filling to occur for this to cause colicky pains, for the diverticula to empty their contents into the intestines, and for the pain to subside. But this is effected by what we call nature, and nothing the patient can take or do makes any particular difference. There is no medical treatment or way of living that can cause a diverticulum to disappear.

The general use of X-rays and examinations of the digestive tract with the fluoroscope after a bismuth meal has taught us that some symptoms of obstinate indigestion are due to diverticula. Obviously, taking pepsin, regulating the diet, and pampering the gall bladder do no good in such cases.

HAMMERTOES.

E. R. G. writes: 1. What is the cause of hammertoes?

2. What is the cure?

REPLY.

1. The toes are pulled and bent by reason of displacement of bones and enlargement of bones in the foot. This causes the tendons to pull the toes out of position. The tendons are not as long as they need to be. Bunions are the most frequent cause of hammertoe.

2. In bad cases it is advisable to amputate the toe toward the base. Getting rid of bunions often cures. Wearing loose shoes or sandals should cure many cases. Going barefooted helps many.

ANY MAY BE CAUSE.

Mrs. E. S. writes: 1. Is it myocarditis or endocarditis which causes what is commonly called dropsy?

2. Can life be prolonged with this trouble by constant rest and quiet?

REPLY.

1. Dropsy may result from either. In myocarditis the heart muscle is of poor quality. In endocarditis the heart valves leak. Pericarditis is inflammation of the covering of the heart. It may cause the heart to work at great disadvantage. Any one of the three or two or more in combination may cause blood to stagnate in the tissues. Dropsy follows.

2. Yes.

COATED TONGUE.

W. M. writes: 1. Is there any other reason for a coated tongue besides constipation?

2. Will the average mouthwash assist in removing this coating?

3. How may the cause of this be determined?

4. Of what benefit is salt and baking soda as a gargle?

REPLY.

1. Yes. Among the other causes are sleeping with the mouth open, snoring, cases of reverse peristalsis other than constipation.
2. Somewhat. Scraping with a dull knife and chewing gum are also of service.
3. By observation and examination.
4. None.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

Inquiries on farm management, financing or governmental regulations addressed to this department must be accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

E. J. N. asks: Will the government loan enough money for the full price of a farm, or how much can be borrowed in buying a farm?

Answer: The federal farm loans are made only on a specific property. The amount of the loan is governed by an appraisal before the loan is granted. The loan may be up to $5,000, but not to exceed 75 per cent of the appraised value of the land and improvements.

O. F. A. asks: I am due to obtain a cash bonus for reducing my wheat acreage. Two of my creditors are demanding that I assign my bonus from the government to them. Am I permitted by the government to do this?

Answer: A specific warning has been issued from the wheat section of the AAA against farmers assigning wheat adjustment checks to creditors. The farmer receiving payment is to use the money at his discretion after he receives it.

B. T. asks: Is this the proper time of the year to replant young grape vines to a more desirable location?

Answer: For this section the young vines may be transplanted in October. Currant and gooseberry plants may also be reset, but purple and black raspberries and strawberries are more satisfactorily propagated in spring.

THE REV. MR. DIETZ REPLIES.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 17.—If any additional proof were necessary for my assertion that "the sacrosanct liberty of the press is an outworn liberal fetish," your editorial page of today would furnish it. In paragraph three, "Hitler as Advocate," you say that "the relations of nations are not finally governed by legal argument nor even disinterested considerations of equity and good faith. They are governed by interests and forces."

It is precisely this ethically underdeveloped sense of right and wrong which disqualifies the average newspaper from "molding public opinion and furnishing that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide." It is precisely this "not disinterested capriciousness" which makes modern editors "irresponsible" guides and lends full justification for attitudes assumed by Gen. Johnson and others. Crude individualisms cannot be permitted to stay the onward march of humanity, and the sooner we fully realize it the less taxes all the world shall have to pay.

With the evidence of facts before you, you deliberately misrepresent me in your other editorial on "Freedom of Opinion in Danger." You say I am a "German" Catholic clergyman of Milwaukee, when, in fact, I am at least as "American" as you are yourself. You make me say that "Hitler was right in compelling the journalists to praise and indorse acts of government" and by continued innuendo you suggest that I would force "conformity upon people in politics and religion," and "make my ideas the code of another man's conduct."

All of this is unworthy of the editor of the world's greatest newspaper. I did say that a press that "is lewd, vicious, subversive and unpatriotic had no right to existence anyway." It ought to be thrown into the ash can and turned over to the garbage collectors. I do not yield to you or any man in my passion for the preservation of liberties, but I shall never condone by word or act the "abuse" of liberty or the "license" that you have shown in dealing with me.

Your editorial ethics deserve to be "castigated and ostracized" for this, and I trust that your "American"ism, if you have any [fair play, you know], will do me justice and make an "honorable amende." Above and over that, I want you to know that the "world's greatest newspaper" is of any real value only to such "discriminate" readers as I hope I am.

THE OXFORD LANGUAGE.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—It is undoubtedly the multiplicity of English language dialects or accents that leads Arthur William Lambert and others to believe there is an American language. Basically the English language [Anglisch] is German, originating with the Low German tribes [Angles and Saxons] who invaded and occupied southern and eastern England [Angleland] during the fifth and sixth centuries.

Adown the years it has been greatly changed by the introduction, in a greater or lesser degree, of words, phrases, and idioms from all the languages of the earth. The best English is spoken in Dublin.

English dialects or accents, like the language itself, are subject to change, which accounts for the present prevalent Oxford accent of England, heard nowadays in this country on the stage, from movie sound projectors, and over the radio.

According to Prof. Zitz, a noted German philological authority, the Oxford accent was brought out in the interest of English language uniformity, particularly as regards verse; for instance, the English poets are thus enabled to make morgue, pronounced mawg, rhyme with the general American pronunciation of hog, hawg, or Missouri houn' dawg. Thus subtle vocal harmonies are stressed.

However, H. Patricius Brine, a prominent Irish professor of anatomy, does not entirely agree with Prof. Zitz. Prof. Brine thinks the Oxford accent came into being because of weary throat muscles. Students copied it and the so-called aristocracy imitated them. It soon spread through Oxford university, avows Brine, and finally overflowed into the outer world where, like scandal, it came to be copied as the real thing.

A had a cottage when he bought the bungalow and a few months before moving gave a quitclaim deed on the cottage to a relative. JAYWALKING.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—When did the first jaywalking law of the city of Chicago go into effect? Have there been any changes in this law? Is the same law in effect now?

C. M. J.

Section 1932 of the city code reads as follows: "At no place shall a pedestrian cross any roadway other than by the most direct route to the opposite curbing, and when crossing at any place other than a crosswalk shall yield the right of way to all vehicles upon the roadway." In effect this permits "jaywalking" and apparently is not what you have in mind. If you will state the fact on which your question arises we shall be in a better position to advise you.

M'KEE WILL TAKE STUMP IN BEHALF OF HIS CAMPAIGN

Cards Series of Speeches Opening in Brooklyn.

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Convinced that the campaign has not made quite the progress expected, supporters of Joseph V. McKee, nominee for mayor, planned today for more intensive work from now until election. Mr. McKee will make at least half a dozen speeches of a constructive nature and his backers will make every effort to improve his hurriedly put together organization for effective work on election day.

Mr. McKee will open his Brooklyn campaign tomorrow night with a speech in the Brownsville district and will speak on relief and welfare in the first of a series of speeches designed to present a constructive program. James I. Cuff, nominee for controller, and Nathan Straus Jr. also will speak at this meeting. Mr. McKee, in addition, will speak at two luncheons, one at the Rookery club and the other before the Professional Women's league.

Defends Schools Speech.

In connection with his repeated denials that he had urged that boys and girls should be put out of the schools at the age of 14, Mr. McKee was shown a transcript of his remarks at a board of estimate meeting in October, 1932, which quoted him as follows in a reply to Mrs. Elsa Elsaberg of the civic committee on adult education:

"Madam, if they were over 14 it is true that we have got a long distance away from American ideals. That is not what I call education. It is pampering the youth of America and nothing else, inclining the mind to look to the state for everything. Eighteen years, and looking for education in stenography. They should go out and learn it themselves. Boys 10 and 20 years ago were put to earning a living at 14 years of age. Let us stop this nonsense of what education means in this city."

"Pampering at Eighteen."

"Now, that's an example of the unfairness of the campaign," Mr. McKee explained. "They were all boys over 18. There was money left over from the year before for which there was no use, and they let these boys take stenography. Dr. Campbell recommended that the class be discontinued. Not I. There was this one class of boys studying stenography. They were not children. There's the crux of the whole thing, pampering. They should go out and learn it themselves. Why, they could take anything from the record against anybody."

Prial Gains Adherents.

The candidacy of Frank J. Prial, regular Democratic nominee for controller, which had lagged for the last two weeks, gained new impetus as a result of Mr. Prial's declaration of independence delivered at Tammany hall last night.

Numerous pledges of support from independent groups were received at his headquarters. In addition, district leaders in Tammany let it be known that Mr. Prial's denunciation of the leadership that denied him the controllership nomination when the city ticket was picked originally, would make to difference to the organization voters in their districts.

Abraham Kaplan, Tammany campaign manager, expressed the belief that Mr. Prial's statement that Mayor John P. O'Brien was not responsible for the conditions in the city government, would help the mayor's own campaign.

Associates of Mr. Prial had felt prior to the delivery of the Tammany Ha" speech, that Mr. Prial was in danger of losing in the event of a sweep either for McKee or F. H. La Guardia, fusionist.

La Guardia on Unemployment.

Mr. La Guardia took up the problem of unemployment relief and discussed it in detail at a series of meetings tonight in Brooklyn.

During the day he made public a telegram to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman urging him to appoint a special board of experts to study the equities and allocations of state taxes to New York City in order to give the city a fair proportion of return from income and other taxes contributed by the city to the state.

In the evening Mr. La Guardia, addressing a rally in New Utrecht, hailed the decision of Gov. Lehman and the state temporary emergency relief administration to reimburse city employment relief expenditures to the extent of sixty-two and two-thirds per cent.

TRADE LEADERS FIGHT TWO BILLS FOR NEW TAXES

Both Are Sponsored by Horner Foes.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Opposition of the Illinois Manufacturers' association today called particular attention to two of the many bills pending before the speical session of the general assembly as substitutes for the state administration's $30,000,000 bond issue plan for winter charity.

In a letter sent to its membership throughout the state and to all corporation which would be hit by the legislation the association urged united opposition to a corporation income tax bill introduced by Senator Noah Mason [Rep.], Oglesby, and a manufacturers' sales tax bill presented by Senator Charles H. Thompson [Rep.], Harrisburg.

Fighting Horner Program.

Neither of these proposals has been taken as a serious effort up to this time. Mason and Thompson are two of the Republican "bitter enders" who have been fighting the administration bill at every opportunity, and the majority leaders said the revival of these two bills, which were defeated in the regular session, are merely parts of the minority effort at obstruction.

Mason was attacked last week by Senator James J. Barbour [Rep.], Evanston, as coming from the stronghold of the "cement trust" which is said to oppose the diversion of gas tax funds from road building to relief purposes as provided under the bond plan.

Little Chance for Bills.

Because of the feeling of the Democrats neither bill has a chance for enactment. They have been allowed to advance on the calendar as part of the routine of pushing business ahead; a sort of truce agreement to let everything approach a final vote as rapidly as possible.

In that way the Mason bill has reached third reading in the senate; the Thompson bill has gone ahead to second reading. No final vote on either is expected this week.

The Mason bill would impose a tax of 3 per cent on the net income of corporations, except building and loan corporations. It specifies that this tax shall be in addition to all other taxes. It proposes that the proceeds shall go to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission until July 1, 1935, and that thereafter they be paid into the common school fund of the state. Mason is a school teacher.

Like Retail Sales Tax.

The Thompson bill, patterned after the present 2 per cent retail sales tax law, would impose a 1 per cent tax on the gross cash receipts of sales by manufacturers until July 1, 1935, the proceeds to go to the relief commission.

In discussing his proposal Thompson has suggested that if this bill was passed he might favor a reduction of the retail sales tax bill to 1 per cent, and possibly the extension for six months of the time during which the proceeds of the retail tax would be devoted to relief.

The Democratic majority and Republicans lined up with it behind the bond issue plan have refused to consider either of these bills favorably.

CALIFORNIA GOVERNOR ORDERS BIG DRINK FOR DOOMED MAN

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Gov. James Rolph instructed Dr. L. L. Stanely, acting warden of San Quentin prison, today to give Dallas Eagan "all the whisky he can safely stand up under" before he mounts the gallows Friday to be executed for a Los Angeles murder.

These instructions followed the governor's receipt of a letter from Stanely, quoting Eagan as inquiring "what brand of whisky" might be served him.

"You're a medical man," Gov. Rolph told Dr. Stanely by telephone. "I suggest you give him all the whisky he can safely stand up under. What brand of whisky have you?"

The physician named a brand of bourbon.

"Well, take care of him," the governor said, "and say good-by for me, too."

Eagan declined the governor's offer of a clemency hearing, saying that he "could think of nothing better than to drop through the gallows."

ILLINOIS SENATE PASSES FIRST OF RELIEF PROJECTS

Votes 36 to 13 as Deal Is Made.

Lantz bills be sent back to second reading for revision by the elimination of the provision making the levy of additional municipal taxes for relief in Cook county a mandatory duty. There was no fight against that motion.

The Lantz minority and some of the majority protested as Senator Graham presented the amendments to the four Lantz measures—amounting to a rewriting of them, a restoration to approximately the form in which they passed the regular session only to be vetoed by Gov. Horner—to be adopted in a group.

Lantz moved that Graham's motion lie on the table. The roll call showed the vote a tie—22 to 22. Lieut. Gov. Donovan cast the deciding vote by voting against tabling. The amendments then were adopted. The senate then took a recess until tomorrow morning. Then the remaining bond issue program bills are the first order of business.

House Receives the Bill.

The house, having marked time for two days, met, received senate bill No. 1, just passed across the hall, advanced it to second reading, and also recessed for the day.

There the motion tomorrow morning will be to advance the bill to third or final reading. There may be a small fight, but a big one is expected if an effort to be made to have the house pass the bill on Friday. Many of the leaders there favor the postponement of this battle until next week.

Before the relief bonds can be issued the legislature must pass a bill levying a general property tax of $38,000,000. That amount is higher than the total proposed for relief because tax warrants may not be issued in excess of the amount of the levy.

funds must be provided through the sale of state tax anticipation warrants—these to be taken up later by the proceeds of the bond issue. In order that such warrants may be issued in excess of the amount of the levy.

New York City Relief Bills Enacted at Special Session

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Swiftly, and with no apparent friction, the legislature in special session put through today the New York City financial relief program and the measure which had threatened to defeat it—the Monroe county [Rochester] relief bill espoused by the Republicans.

This result was due to a bargain struck by the legislators of the rival parties.

The legislature also adopted a number of other bills recommended in messages from Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. The session lasted four hours and a half, but the actual working time was less than two.

The bills affecting New York City were designed to prepare the way for the actual drawing up and signing of agreements between the city and a group of bankers embracing the terms on which the bankers have agreed to finance the city for the next four years to avert municipal bankruptcy. The financial settlement bill was put on final passage with practically no debate and was passed with all the 47 votes recorded in its favor.

Taxes Due Quarterly.

The second city measure, advancing the date for payment of taxes next year from May and Nov. 1 to April and Oct. 1 was then passed, with Senator H. L. O'Brien, Democrat of Brooklyn, alone voting in the negative. The bill also provides for quarterly tax payments beginning in 1935, the dates being the first day of February, May, August, and October.

When the bill embodying the terms of the settlement with the bankers was placed on final passage, Senator Dunnigan, who sponsored both city measures, read a statement explaining its provisions prepared by Samuel Untermyer, who had drafted the bills and was a spectator in the senate chamber.

"If this plan works out, and there is no reason to apprehend it will not," Mr. Untermyer said, "the city should find itself at the end of the four-year term with 175 million dollars of savings, so that thereafter it can be its own banker and finance its own tax anticipation."

Features Are Explained.

The main features of the legislation were explained as follows:

The sum that may be assessed against real estate in any one of the four years of the term of the bill is limited to the amount that the city collected from taxes under the 1933 budget. Under no circumstances can this exceed that which was levied for 1933.

The bill creates two separate so-called revolving funds. One has the effect of funding in three years the past due debts represented by revenue notes now owing by the city, amounting to 153 million dollars. The present arrears of taxes amounting roughly to 190 million dollars are pledged as security for this debt.

The other revolving fund, limited to 200 million dollars, is an obligation by the bankers to lend the city up to that amount over a period of four years, also at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, with the accruing taxes as security.

Certain reserves are required to be supplied by the city and added to the budget, to be obtained either from economies or from new taxes, preferably from the former. The reserve for the first year will be about $25,000,000 and for each year thereafter $50,000,000.

The new Waukegan postoffice was dedicated yesterday with speeches by J. Austin Latimer, personal secretary to Postmaster General Farley, and Waukegan officials. The new building, located at Julian and Genesee streets north of the business district of the city, cost $140,000.

Colorado's Auto Tax for Idle Relief Held Illegal

Denver, Colo., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Colorado's motor vehicle tax for unemployment relief was held unconstitutional today by the state Supreme court. As a result of the decision, Gov. Ed. C. Johnson likely will call an extraordinary session of the state assembly to enact a relief revenue measure to replace the motor poll tax.

JEW TOURS WITH CHRISTIANS TO BAR INTOLERANCE

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—A traveling discussion unit, comprising a rabbi, a Catholic priest, and a Protestant minister, was commissioned today by the national conference of Jews and Christians to tour the United States for the purpose of "resisting the duplication in this country of the outbreak of intolerance abroad."

The members of the touring unit are Father John Elliott Ross of the University of Virginia, Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron of Baltimore, and the Rev. Everett R. Clinchy, a Presbyterian minister.

The move was announced in a joint statement by the three co-chairmen of the conference, Newton D. Baker, representing the Protestant viewpoint; Prof. Carlton J. H. Hayes of the history department of Columbia university, representing the Catholic viewpoint, and Roger W. Straus, vice president of the American Smelting and Refining company, representing the Jewish viewpoint.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 18.—"It was all she deserved," grimly declared 54 year old Mrs. Leon Paquette as police today released her 12 year old daughter, Rollande, from chains in which she had slept for two months.

Except for school hours, Rollande's brothers and sisters hesitatingly told police, the child had spent days and nights, Sundays and holidays, with a six foot iron horse harness trace clamped about her tiny waist. The trace and a massive padlock are held as exhibits in the mother's trial. Wounds and sores on the child testify to her ill treatment.

The father, who is subnormal, said he was too frightened of his wife's temper to interfere.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

will not accept Liquor Advertising

Advertisements of whisky, brandy, gin, rum and similar liquors will not be accepted by the Chicago Tribune with the repeal of prohibition.

Because it does not subscribe to the doctrine of unlimited custodial prevention as a substitute for self-restraint, the Tribune fought prohibition from the start. It has persisted in its stand.

Now, with sweeping victory at hand, it might be expected that the newspaper which dry zealots arraigned as "America's wettest newspaper" could with consistency accept liquor advertising.

The Tribune will not accept such advertising. Long before ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment the Tribune refused to accept it. Many of the methods then used to promote the sale and use of liquor were such that the Tribune did not wish to have any part in the business.

The new means to be employed to distribute liquor, if and when the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, have yet to be developed and put into practice. Whether they will prove helpful in promoting temperance cannot now be told. The Tribune feels it will serve its readers best by closing its columns to advertisements of whisky, brandy, gin, rum and similar liquors.

It will accept advertisements of wines and beers. It does not advocate their use, but believes it is preferable to the liquor and cocktail habits developed during prohibition.

A Swim Star Stirs Culinary Urge in Girls

Mr. Weissmuller Requires Good Cooking.

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Johnny Weissmuller recently told an interviewer how wonderful his girl friend Lupe is; how she cooks dinner for him, or personally supervises it, and "gives me the things she thinks are good for me."

Alas, just one year ago Bobbe Arnst was doing the same thing, cooking "chicken the way my Johnny likes it." It's sure funny how Johnny stirs the culinary urge in his women.

There's a funny story going around—one of those things it's hard to be sure of, because nobody will admit it; but here it is: They say a cowboy actor dropped $40,000 on a card game at a Hollywood gambling house. The actor discovered that the place was not on the level. Surprise! But the actor is plenty smart; he goes to Caliente and hires a plenty smart dealer, takes him to the gambling joint, and wins back all his $40,000 and a bit more.

Zasu Pitts used to be the forgotten woman in Hollywood. Folks used to say, "Poor Zasu! She's a really great actress, but she never gets a break." They were right; sometimes almost a year would go by with none of Zasu on the screen. Sledding was tough. She might be a great dramatic actress, as Von Stroheim proved a couple of times, and a great comedienne as well, but she wasn't getting work.

Suddenly something happened. Now she's so in demand she could make twice as many pictures as she does if she had a twin to do the work. She's under contract to make four features for Radio; she's working on four features at Universal, where they say she's their biggest money maker, and had to give up the series she was doing for Hal Roach with Thelma Todd because she simply hadn't time to do them.

James Timony, manager and companion of Mae West [some folks are sure they are married], is being made the hero of a funny tale. Seems he was talking to a supervisor who was anxious to have Mae do some film with him. "I think it's a great idea," said Timony. "But I was a little diffident about approaching you on it." "Diffident?" says the executive. "Where did you get that word?" "Aw, it's one of those words that Mae is always teachin' me," said Timony.

Joan Crawford is no longer the lovey dovey sort of sweetheart she used to be when Doug Jr. was her love interest. She acts in a restrained, mature manner when she's out with Franchot Tone, even dancing with other men at parties. It isn't near as exciting to watch as the former romance, but etiquette people would give it a higher rating.

Will James, the cowboy-author who has turned actor "just this one time" to play his own self in Fox's "Smoky," has so much distaste for the city that, in spite of the fact he lives on the expanse of a 20,000 acre ranch at home, he didn't open his hotel room window day or night during his first three days here. And he slept with his spurs on—admits it himself.

Burt Sturlin, prop man at M-G-M, says he has the "biggest job on the lot." He has to watch and wash 14 elephants daily as they perform on the "Tarzan and His Mate" jungle set.

Lupe Velez and Ramon Novarro are trying to find excuses to stay in town for another week or two while hot weather persists, while W. S. Van Dyke, their director in "Laughing Boy," is sweltering half to death at a Navajo reservation in Arizona.

Royal Players Survey String Quartet Music

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, whose beneficences in the cause of chamber music are nothing short of regal, has made it possible for Chicago to hear three concerts by the Pro Arte string quartet of Brussels, the court quartet of Belgium and one of the foremost organizations of its kind in the world.

Under the auspices of the Chicago Friends of Music, Inc., the quartet appeared for its first concert at Orchestra hall last night. It will be there again tomorrow night and for the third time on Sunday afternoon. In a foreword of thanks addressed to Mrs. Coolidge on the printed program the Chicago Friends of Music, Inc., says:

"With the same wisdom and discrimination that have characterized her untiring work for the upbuilding of American musical culture she has conceived these programs, presented during the closing days of A Century of Progress, as a condensed survey of the development of the string quartet literature in America and Europe during the past century."

This is not only a graceful acknowledgment but an accurate statement. The three programs, one already given, the other two in the future, are, as nearly as can be accomplished in the given time, a cross section of two continents as regards string quartet composition. That of last night can without difficulty bear the label of classical. Three works were presented, a late quartet by Beethoven, that in F, opus 135; one by one of America's most notable classicists, the late George W. Chadwick of Boston, in C minor, by Brahms.

What will come tomorrow night belongs to a quite different period. The three quartets then will be by Franck, in D; by John Alden Carpenter of Chicago, the only one from his pen that he has made public, and the G minor, opus 10, by Debussy. On Sunday afternoon the Pro Arte will go completely modern, playing Schoenberg's Second, in F sharp minor; Roy Harris' Three Variations on the Theme in C minor, which, incidentally, is dedicated to Mrs. Coolidge, and Hindemith's Third, opus 22.

With only keys and publication numbers as guides, a list of chamber music does not always sound exciting. Yet this class of music is an exalted one. Its devotees prefer it to any other form of composition yet devised, and they are entirely sincere in their preference.

Also, for its proper performance, it calls for some of the finest executants on earths, musicians who are not only brilliant soloists but who are able to sink their personal abilities into the give-and-take team play of a sensitive ensemble. For these reasons Mrs. Coolidge's sponsorship of three concerts by the Belgian Pro Arte classifies as one of the highly important musical events of the season.

Time Is Short for a Visit to Fair Art Show

Notable Institute Exhibition Closes Nov. 12.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Time is growing short in which to enjoy the magnificent collection of great paintings which the Chicago Art institute has brought together as its contribution to the dignity of Chicago and A Century of Progress. On various Sundays since the exhibition opened THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has reproduced in color the more significant canvases to be found in the museum. This Sunday and the week following will find more of these superb color reproductions in THE TRIBUNE rotogravure section.

Next Sunday two contrasting pictures will be shown. Above will be the gay and colorful "The Wedding Dance" by Pieter Breughel the Elder, a typical Flemish peasant scene crowded with movement and flushed with emotion. Below will be a tense moment at a prize fight, handled in the inimitable manner which George Bellows developed, a manner of broad treatment that still leaves nothing unsaid. The spectators are as cleverly brushed in as are the combatants. "A Stag at Sharkey's" is a brilliant record of a good fighting moment.

George Bellows was an American painter and his death just a few years ago left a gap in the ranks of contemporary craftsmen which no one has filled yet. His painting, the original, hangs among the American paintings of the 19th and 20th centuries, in galleries 25 and 53 of the Art institute. The Flemish wedding party by Pieter Breughel the Elder hangs in gallery 28.

The originals of these TRIBUNE reproductions are well worth searching out in A Century of Progress Fine Arts exhibit. To facilitate the seeing of these and the other gorgeous paintings, examples of art as America is collecting it, the Art institute will remain open until 10 o'clock in the evening, to the close of the Exposition, a date that now has been pushed back to Nov. 12. The paintings are beautifully lighted by artificial light, and the opinion has been expressed that perhaps they are more inspiring by night than by day.

A week from Sunday three more paintings will be reproduced in color. Auguste Renoir, John Singer Sargent, and Cecelia Beaux, two of these artists American and one of them, Miss Beaux, still living.

Music Friends Fill Hall for First Concert

Mrs. Elizabeth Coolidge Sponsors Series.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

A small manual entitled "Who's Who and What's What in the World of Music" would, without doubt, find a ready sale this week in the city's bookshops. Many a lady of fashion, and gentleman, too . . . even those who pride themselves on an intimate knowledge of music and musicians . . . might find it reassuring while they are meeting Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge at luncheons, dinners, and after the concert suppers.

Mrs. Coolidge, a former Chicagoan and the indefatigable aid of chamber music both in America and abroad, speaks with the same ease of Malipiero of Italy and Salzedo of Sweden, Spanish flutists, and French string quartets as she does of Chicago Symphony and Frederick Stock. She is here to give to the city a series of concerts by the Pro Arte String quartet of Brussels through the sponsorship of the Friends of Music. Chicago showed its appreciation last night by packing Orchestra hall with a distinguished audience for the first program of the series.

"There is only one thing I would like to ask," said Mrs. Coolidge when she paused in the foyer on the way to her place before the opening number. "Will your photographer make for me a picture of this grand audience? I want to send it to King Albert to show him what his splendid court musicians do when they come to America."

Mrs. Coolidge preferred a seat in the first row on the main floor last night to the box spaces occupied by the other members of her party. Regal in a cape of ermine, she arrived with Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who were her dinner host and hostess, and Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, who entertained for her at supper at their Lake Shore drive residence following the concert.

During the second intermission Mr. Carpenter expressed to Mrs. Coolidge the appreciation of the Friends of Music and called upon her to take a front row bow. Mrs. Carpenter was gowned in black with a scarf of silver fox thrown over her arm. Under a black velvet wrap heavily furred in mink Mrs. McCormick wore a stunning gown of red begheera velvet.

The recipient of much attention was another member of this party . . . Mrs. Moore Torlonia of New York, who before she dropped her title was the Princess Torlonia. Mrs. Torlonia arrived in Chicago yesterday with her daughter, the lovely blonde Donna Christina, to be the house guest the next several days of Mrs. McCormick, with whom she attended school at Farmington. Rather than the concert, however, Miss Torlonia chose a trip to the Fair, with Mrs. Francis Johnson as her hostess.

The Frederick Stocks were other guests of the McCormicks and Carpenters. And so were Mme. Olga Averino, who is to appear on Sunday as the assisting artist with the Pro Arte quartet, Mrs. Charles Deering, Mrs. William B. McClure, Bernard F. Rogers, and Mrs. Inglis Frost, another Chicago visitor.

Mrs. Coolidge's double cousin, Col. Albert A. Sprague [many is the time the press has made them brother and sister], was entertaining a party of friends in another box with Mrs. Sprague. The lovely Abby Beveridge, striking in a blue gown with silver epaulets, and Philip James were among the guests.

"Who's that . . . who's that" were the whispered queries when Mrs. Curtis Cowles of New York arrived well after the beginning of the program with the Walter Paepckes. Under a tan polo coat tightly wrapped Mrs. Cowles revealed a formal gown that was little less than a sensation. It combined a tawny skirt with an olive blouse. The trimming was mink bands delicately intertwined at the waist.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill had the same box they occupy for the symphony concerts. With them were Dr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harris Brewer. Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell, with Mrs. Eben Lane, arrived early to take places on the main floor.

Then there was Mrs. Charles H. Swift, gowned in silver lamé, with Mr. Swift, Mrs. Alden B. Swift, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Freund, and Dr. Ernest Schwartz, who has traveled all the way from Germany to see A Century of Progress. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell occupied still another box with Mr. Bissell's brother and sister-in-law, the Ritchie N. Bissells, who are here from Farmington, Conn.

A delicately jeweled headdress lent distinction to the formal dress of Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, who sat for the concert with Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Miss Alice Roullier. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Conrad occupied a box with the Louis K. Boysens.

Mrs. Edward A. Leight was vivid in red velvet. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Ganz were members of a party that included the Andrew R. Sherriffs and the Thomas Fishers. Miss Jane Fortune accompanied her mother, Mrs. John L. Fortune while Miss Ann Redheffer was with her mother, Mrs. Raymond L. Redheffer and Miss Elizabeth Singleton, the principal of the Girls' Latin school.

Russian Prince, Former Vice Consul Here, Weds

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Prince Nicholas Engalitcheff, one time imperial Russian vice consul at Chicago and a former actor, was married today in the municipal building to Mrs. Suzanne Bransford Emery Holmes Delitch, widow of Dr. Radovan Delitch of Paris. This is the third marriage for the prince, who is in his 51st year, and the fourth for his bride. Princess Engalitcheff's first husband was A. B. Emery, one of the founders of the Silver King mines at Park City, Utah, where she was known as the "silver queen."

New York Stage Pure; an Official Eliminates Sally Rand Influence

Commissioner of Licenses Sidney S. Levine said so. He said that nowhere in the five boroughs of the city does there exist even the slyest little hint of naughtiness in theaters.

"My fifty inspectors have just finished a complete survey and they report to me that no indency exists any longer in any shows," the commissioner said.

The commissioner said he was proud of his successful battle against the Chicago influence as personified in Sally Rand, fan dancer.

"Look," Mr. Levine said, exhibiting letters of congratulation.

He has been invited to go with an inspection group from the Women's Anti-Vice committee of New York to a performance next Monday night of a burlesque show at the Irving Place theater. He won't go, Mr. Levine said, because he is convinced the show, like all others in New York, is 100 per cent pure now.

Mrs. W. Walcott, chairman of the committee, wrote the commissioner a letter on behalf of 500 members. The committee, she wrote, attended the burlesque a few days ago.

"If you think Sally Rand was lewd," Mrs. Walcott wrote, "please attend the Irving burlesque in person so you may appreciate the justification for the complaint. Girls dance absolutely nude on the raised platform over the audience."

Society Wears Best Today to Fashion Show

St. Luke's Board to Hold Annual Benefit.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ANY ONE who hasn't $3.50 to spend going to the fashion show and tea this afternoon that the women's board of St. Luke's hospital is giving in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, but who wants to see some smart new fall and winter clothes, might just station herself near the entrance to the ballroom around 2 o'clock, for every woman who goes to the show will be in her very best daytime bib and tucker.

It's a fact that every woman makes a special effort to look smart and attractive when she's going to a parade of fashion, probably not to be too completely outdone by the mannequins, and for weeks the women—and there are quite a number of them—who "put on" the show as their annual benefit have been planning not only all the thousand and one details that go into making a successful show, but also their own costumes for the occasion. Eighty-eight of the prettiest debutantes, older girls and matrons of society will display the fashions that the various stores and shops elect to show today to the fashionable crowd that always attends the St. Luke's shows.

Afternoon Show Starts at 2:30.

The afternoon showing starts at 2:30 o'clock, but the audience will start assembling quite a bit before that hour, for there are no reserved seats except the boxes. The evening showing is given in connection with a dinner-dance, which will commence at 7:30 o'clock. Some of those who have boxes for tonight are Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the board and general chairman and treasurer of the show committee; Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Robert T. Newberry, the James R. Offields, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, the Philip Wrigleys, the Charles H. Schweppes, the John Simpsons, Walter Byron Smith, and the Stanley Fields. Others are the Charles F. Glores, Frederick T. Haskell, the Frank O. Lowdens, the John J. Mitchells, the Howard W. Fentons, the Stanley Keiths, Robert F. Carr, the Alfred T. Cartons, the Harold C. Smiths, Mrs. William E. Casselberry, the John A. Chapmans, Edward I. Cudahy, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, the A. Watson Armours, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes, the Benjamin L. Behrs, the Chauncey B. Borlands, and the George R. Carrs.

Tell Engagement of Leila Withers.

This morning we are announcing the engagement of Miss Leila Withers, daughter of Mrs. Allen L. Withers of Winnetka and Pasadena, to William A. Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Davidson of Santa Barbara.

Miss Withers, who is one of the most attractive and well liked young women in Chicago, was graduated from the Masters' school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and from Miss Risser's school in Rome. She made her debut in 1930 at a tea at the Indian Hill club, which was followed by a dinner dance for her assistants, and she is a member of the Junior league and the Service club. She has spent a good deal of the subsequent winters in California with her mother and late father.

Mr. Davidson attended St. Paul's and is a graduate of Leland Stanford university. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. Withers and Miss Withers are in Pasadena for the winter. Mrs. Withers' younger daughter, Allene, who is a debutante this year, is at present at school in the east, but she

WE hasten into print with the tidings that Mae West, the woman of the hour, is simply fascinated by Dr. Rudolph W. Holmes, elderly obstetrician of Passavant Memorial hospital. Miss West told him that she was—in a lengthy telegram inspired by Dr. Holmes' statement at a recent medical meeting in Milwaukee that if Mae West is responsible for the return to fashion of plumpness in women, his hat is off to her.

"The press reports you like my curves from a medical standpoint," the flamboyant lady of the films wires the conservative, white-haired medico. "If curves make women healthier I am glad I had something to do with it. An apple a day keeps the doctor away, but a curve a day is real health insurance. Seriously, though, the American physician is woman's best friend. You simply fascinate me."

MENTION of Passavant hospital brings to mind that a meeting of some sentiment and importance takes place this morning in the handsome, saffron-curtained board room. It is the annual meeting of the Woman's Aid society and Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, president of the society since the new hospital was built, and the moving spirit behind the raising of funds to build it, will become honorary president. Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, vice president, long-time associate of Mrs. Coleman in the affairs of the woman's board, and chairman of the decorating committee that introduced gay chintzes and chic furnishings into hospital rooms, will become president. The board will not lose Mrs. Coleman, however, as she says she will attend meetings regularly and that nothing can minimize her interest in Passavant hospital.

JACKIE McCUTCHEON, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, owns a family of white mice and through a lamentable catastrophe one of the baby mice was killed the other day when they were being shown the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis. Jackie was inconsolable.

"Only forty-nine," the lad wailed.

DRIVING through the country Sunday and observing the glory of the landscape, our thoughts turned to beautiful Brown county, Indiana, and we began to make plans to go there if possible next week-end. As if in answer to our thought a letter from Brown county was in the mail the following morning, penned by a stranger.

WE are a little late with this apparently, but maybe you didn't know it either. Daniel De Foe got out a little pamphlet in 1701 called "The Villainy of Stock-Jobbers Detected and the Causes of the Late Run Upon the Bank and Bankers Discovered and Considered." We've seen only a facsimile of the title page, as the book itself is one of the most unique items in an eastern bibliophile's De Foe collection. The name of the author is written in ink on the title page, rather than printed in the book, because pamphleteers who attacked the hallowed institutions of that day found anonymity the wiser course.

FOR no particular reason—probably by typing the word wiser, we are reminded of the comment made by a recent titled visitor to Chicago. He was addressing a charming lady, and said:

"I have been leestening to your hoosband talk wisenesses. You both must come visit us in Europe sometime and you will talk ze rubbish to my little Cecilia (his wife, the countess) while I talk wizz your hoosband."

Wise Engineer Solves Pesky Garter Problem

New Products Stay Where You Place Them.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Getting down to new gadgets that really simplify this hectic fashion life . . . try the new nonskid and super flat garters especially designed to anchor your filmy evening stockings without that distressing bulge or bump that has hitherto ruined the smooth surface of your most clinging evening gowns.

As far as that goes they are garters that can be used from dawn till midnight, the grandest "smoothies" ever invented. It is reported the things were invented by a helpful male, an engineer by profession, who probably spent his evenings worrying over the troubles of his dancing partners, and in an off hour concocted this foolproof pair of helpful rubber bands and tossed them casually into circulation.

Flesh colored, of smooth elastic, perfumed [don't doubt me], and made with a crease through the middle . . . you pull the top of your stocking over and down to crease, turn the rubber together, and turn it all over again and presto, chango, the trick is done . . . not a bump or bulge in sight. And the things stay where you park them, due to the alternating squares molded in the inner side of the garter that holds the stocking in a death clasp that prevents skidding or twisting.

It may sound technical or complicated, but the things are delightfully simple to use and operate. You can buy them for a very modest sum; they come in three circumferences—small, medium, and large—and they are fully guaranteed to wash like a rag and stay firm and unyielding after days of wear and service.

Just what you have been looking for, and presented just in the nick of time when dresses fit even smoother than your skin!

THIRD AND LAST

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, who works on a Paris newspaper, is her friend and counselor. Bun is appealed to by James B. Finlay, an elderly, wealthy American, to help find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war in Bucharest. He had installed her family, the Bobianoffs, in a villa on the Riviera at Grasse. Her brother, Ferenz, he had brought to America. No trace can be found of Helene and her parents since the last time she returned to visit them. Bun's suspicions are aroused by Finlay's niece, Mrs. Craymer, and her ominous appearing butler. She sympathizes with Finlay and accepts the job and 200,000 francs advance payment. A recent newspaper picture, showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz, is the only clew Bun has to go on. That night Finlay is murdered. Bun's apartment is broken into by a masked man and woman, her maid, Liberté, bound, and the money Finlay had given her stolen. Bun meets Finlay's son, Robert. His unlikeness to his father and his desire for secrecy puzzles Bun. She feels under obligation to continue the search. In Biarritz the photographer, who took the group picture, identifies the tall woman as the Countess de Vernadon, who has a villa at Grasse. Robert Finlay arrives at the hotel with a woman and registers as Count Morales and wife. Bun motors to Cannes. There she discovers that the Robert Finlay she had met was an impostor. The real Robert Finlay is at Cannes.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

LOVE COMPLICATIONS.

Bun chose a chair and indicated another for Robert Finlay. She offered him cigarets. Both smoked in silence for a full minute.

"I suppose I'd better begin with the meeting with your father—or better still with Mrs. Craymer. By the way, did you see her yesterday in Paris?"

"I tried to. She was out of town."

Bun inhaled slowly. "Ah!" Then, with a quick shifting of thought, she asked Finlay to tell her what had happened upon his arrival in Paris. "That would help me to explain more quickly to you. There's no use of going over the ground twice."

Finlay told her in a few words of the amazement of the hotel director when he arrived and gave his name. For a short time it seemed that he was going to have some difficulty proving his identity. However, friends at the Embassy came to the rescue. After that, he found himself caught in a series of long talks with police officials and detectives from the Sûreté. However, this had led to nothing except bewilderment. It was only when he had consented to see Crawford that any light had begun to be thrown on the case. He had made a quick decision to find her and had taken the night train to Cannes. Beyond his cousin, Mrs. Craymer, who was out of town, she appeared to be the only one who had seen his father in Paris.

Bun immediately recounted her experiences from the beginning, leaving out only Liberté's adventure and the loss of the two hundred thousand francs. Something, almost fear that he might think she expected him to reassure her about this loss, counseled her to save this confession for a later time. Finlay listened attentively, making notes from time to time on the back of an envelope. When she had finished he shook his head gloomily.

"Who do you think this man is who pretended to be you?"

"It all means nothing to me—absolutely nothing. I'm as much in the dark as ever."

"And this Countess Vernadon—did you never hear your father speak of her?"

"Never. But of course he had many friends over here that I did not know. I've never been much in Europe. Never even got over here during the war. My experience was in camps at home. But of course she might easily be a friend of my father's or"—a veiled look shot through his eyes—"or of my father's wife."

"By any chance, do you think she might be your stepmother's mother?"

"Her name was Bobianoff. She had no title."

"Still," Bun was wondering what the veiled look in his eyes as he spoke of his father's wife could mean. Some strange quirk drove her into a quick decision. "What you need, Mr. Finlay, is professional help."

"Yet you say my father did not want that sort."

"The situation is beyond what it was when he—" she stopped, seeing the flash of pain on his face, and put out her hand impulsively. "I'm a little late in saying it—but, I'm very sorry. Your father seemed so kind and gentle. I liked his loyalty to his wife—not wishing to embarrass her with any publicity in this matter. And yet—" she ended helplessly.

"Thank you for speaking of him. It makes me feel that you understand what I am going through. I've lost the best friend a man ever had." The muscles about his mouth tightened so that his face became quickly harsh. "I'm going to find out what it all means if I have to remain over here the rest of my life. This isn't the sort of thing one takes lying down."

"Then there is only one thing for you to do—put the whole case in the hands of French officials. The Sûreté is about as good as any detective agency in the world."

"I'm going to do that as soon as I return to Paris. In the meantime—I don't know exactly how to express it—can I retain you in what you agreed to do for my father?"

So he really wanted her to work with him! Bun looked down at some people bathing on the beach below. But she really did not see them. That was all subterfuge. She was trying to make herself believe that she was not experiencing a thrill of something that was ridiculously like joy. She put off answering his question at once.

"Who do you think this man is who pretended to be you?"

"I haven't the slightest idea—except—he must in some way know a great deal about us. From what he told you, he knows things from the inside. I can't tell you how I hate to say it—but—well, he must in some way be connected with my stepmother's family. "Or"—his voice fell—"with her."

"Forgive me for asking it, but—did you have entire confidence in her?"

"The utmost. She could not have been more loyal and devoted to my father."

"And her brother?"

His eyes fell. "Yes—Ferenz was all right. My father liked him more than I did. But with me—but you must know how it is with American men. We aren't very strong at hooking up with foreigners. He's done exceedingly well, though. Prides himself upon having become a typical American citizen."

"You don't think he knows anything about his sister's disappearance?"

"I'm dead sure of that. He's been terribly broken up about it—and about my father's death. I've had telegrams from him every day."

"Why telegrams? Wasn't he in New York with you?"

"He has been out west for several weeks. He wanted to rush back as soon as I sent him the news. He may join me here later, I left before he could return."

Bun lit a fresh cigaret. "Do you think your father's death will have anything to do with your stepmother's return?" Once more the veiled look in his eyes caught Bun's attention. She hurried on. "Is there any conceivable reason for her to have wished your father's death?"

Finlay drew up stiffly. "If you mean—would she benefit by it—yes; at least to the extent of having a fortune in her own name. But that is the last thing I would ever accuse Helene of." For the first time Bun realized that he was looking at her with a vastly unpleasant expression on his face—as if she had made a suggestion which he resented. The way he ground the cigaret into the ash tray was convincing evidence that she had touched on a vital subject. What did this mean? Her pleasure in the interview faded. She was stumbling in a direction she was sure she was not going to like.

"I beg your pardon if I have offended you," she said slowly.

He looked at her with a start. "Offended me! How?"

"In asking too intimate questions."

He thought this over through a short silence. "I suppose you have every right to. If we are going to get anywhere we've got to be perfectly frank." Again he was silent. "I dislike any one suspecting Helene of anything that isn't—well—fine and noble. If you knew her—"

"I've seen her photograph."

"In her case it is a good deal. I got the impression she was everything you say she was."

His frown disappeared and a frank, happy look took its place. "It's a comfort to hear you say that." So that was it! He was in love with his stepmother! Bun sank back in her chair with the feeling that all interest for her had gone up in thin air.

U. of C. Talkie Films Cut Teaching Time for Natural Sciences

How the molecular theory is now taught to students at the University of Chicago in 3½ hours by sound motion pictures whereas it formerly required 6 hours was explained to the Society of Motion Picture Engineers yesterday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The explanation was in an address by H. B. Lemon, of the university. It was made at the closing session of the fall convention of the society.

Not only is the molecular theory taught more quickly, but it is retained by the students more thoroughly, he said. Four films, produced under the direction of the University of Chicago, now are in use in classes in natural sciences, he said.

"The cost and time required to get a college education may be substantially reduced through the use of educational talking pictures," he said.

St. Luke's Board to Hold Annual Benefit.

Wednesday, Dec. 27, has been selected by the William H. Mitchells and the John Payne Kelloggs as the date on which they will entertain with a dinner dance for their niece, Miss Helen Hunter, who is coming with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter, from their home in California to spend December in Chicago.

Mrs. Coit to Introduce Her Second Daughter.

Well toward settled in her new apartment at 232 East Pearson street Mrs. Merrill Coit has decided that she will present to society this winter her second daughter, Eleanor, as well as her oldest daughter, Betty.

Mrs. Coit and her daughters, including her youngest who is named Celia, have just returned to Chicago after a three years' absence abroad. As yet she has not decided whether she will present the girls at individual parties or at one large affair probably during the holiday season.

Not in some time have there been so many interesting literary visitors to fête at one time. At a dinner this evening at the Casino Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Allen, Mr. and Mrs. John Farrar, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Johnson, Foster Damon, and Laetitia Irwin [Mrs. Wallace Irwin] are to be the guests of the P. E. N. club.

Tomorrow noon all of these authors and their wives will have luncheon in the Trustees' Lounge at the World's Fair as the guests of the writers' section of the social functions committee with Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank as the chairman. While in Chicago the Johnsons are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake. Mrs. Irwin is being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Fairbank.

Honor Library Donors Today.

That generous minded group of English men and women who helped establish the Chicago public library after the fire of 1871, through their gift of some 700 volumes, are going to be represented at the library donors' luncheon this noon at the Congress hotel by Arundell Esdaile, secretary of the British museum and vice president of the British Library association. Mr. Esdaile is to be one of half a dozen speakers.

The luncheon is being given by the American Library association for all of the generous Chicagoans who have made notable gifts to the city's libraries and to libraries elsewhere. It is one of the events of the Library association's 58th annual meeting this week in Chicago.

Other foreign delegates who will attend as special guests are Dr. Thomas P. Sevensma, librarian for the league of nations at Geneva; Dr. Ernest Wickersheimer, administrator of the National library at Strassbourg; Msgr. Eugene Pisserant of the Vatican library in Rome, and Dr. Isak Collign, librarian of the Royal library in Stockholm.

The state's official hostesses and the members of the literature committee of the Illinois Host house will receive the library delegates between 3:30 and 5:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Host house at A Century of Progress. Such well known authors as Mr. Allen, Miss Harriet Monroe, Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, and Mrs. Cecil Barnes are expected to attend and take part in a brief program.

A socially important audience is going to fill the little theater on the Enchanted Island at A Century of Progress at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Last June's graduates of the University School for Girls are going to give Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" and the event is creating no little excitement among the many older alumnae of the school.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Robert M. Curtis, the alumnae association president, dropped in to tell us about the play, the cast, and the many groups that are going to attend. The play is the first of a series of five or six presentations that Miss Josephine Blackstock has planned to have as many private schools in and about Chicago give during the remaining weeks of the Fair.

Elsa Durand Mower is the director of this play, the cast of which has Miss Helen Brooks and Miss Marjorie Hills in the two leading rôles of John Worthing, G. P., and Algernon Moncrieff. The others who will be playing include Miss Ellen Heyworth, Miss Helen Henri, Miss Betty Harbison, Miss Virginia Johnson, Miss Mildred Best, Miss Barbara Lawrence, Miss Marjorie Berger, and Miss Ann Huston.

Mrs. Curtis will have a party of friends with her for the performance. And so will Mrs. Henry K. Chapin, Mrs. Helen Walton, Miss Ethel Dixon, Miss Jane Ripley, Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Charlotte Robertson, Miss Eunice Eastman, Miss Betty Kellogg, Miss Barbara Senn, Miss Florence Otis, Mrs. Eugene Talbot, Mrs. Frederick Lawrence, Mrs. Joseph Schreiner, Miss Suzanne Morris, and Miss Priscilla Sims.

Harvard Club Will Elect Next Week.

Howard F. Gillette will preside for the last time as president of the Harvard Club of Chicago at the annual meeting next Wednesday night at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club, for the election of officers will take place after the dinner. In addition the program will include remarks about the new president of Harvard, James B. Conant, by some of his contemporaries who were graduated about the same time he was, 1914, and discussion of the work of the scholarship committee, which is headed by William C. Boyden. Others on the committee are Laird Bell, Clay Judson, and Thomas Fisher.

With the San Marco safely anchored in Venetian waters, Robert Hall McCormick has returned to Chicago, after a gay and interesting summer abroad. Mr. McCormick spent a good portion of his time aboard his yacht cruising in the Adriatic, and then traveled up to Badgastein, in Austria, where he spent six weeks taking the cure. From there his itinerary took him to Salzburg for the music festival, then into Switzerland.

During most of his holiday Mr. McCormick was accompanied by his sister, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, who is avidly adding to her already famous collections of historic costumes, shoes, and that exquisite French beadwork. He left her in Paris ten days ago, where she will remain for another month, then returning home with all of her trunkloads of new treasures.

Mr. McCormick's two daughters, Patty and Eleanor, have also returned from a European vacation.

Mrs. Ernest Hughes Moves to Town.

Mrs. Ernest Lee Hughes and her daughter, Kean, have come to town to the Lake Shore Drive hotel so that Miss Hughes can be nearer the center of the debutante activities than she would be if she were at home in Barrington. They plan to be in town until after the Christmas holiday season.

The Arthur Bissells have Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Bissell of Farmington, Conn., as their guests this week. The two Mr. Bissells are brothers.

The Count and Countess Allesandro Cenci Bolognetti of Barbiarreggio, Italy, who were recently in town to see the Fair and their great friends, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde and her daughter, Miss Sarah Hinde, have left Chicago for Elkhart, Ill., where they are visiting John Oglesby, the countess' brother. Countess Bolognetti was Felicite Oglesby before her marriage.

Dudley Palmers in Hubbard Woods.

After several weeks of house hunting, the Dudley Palmers finally found one in Hubbard Woods and are nearly settled in it now. The Palmers have been living away from Chicago for several years. Their daughter, Miss Anne Palmer, who is a debutante this winter, is living at the University of Chicago, where she is a freshman. No definite plans for her formal presentation to society have yet been made. The Palmers' son, Russell, is at the University of Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baum and their attractive daughter, Miss Brownie Bess Baum, who made her debut last winter, are back in their lovely Lake Forest home, which the Frank E. Wilhelms occupied last summer. The Baums went to Florida last winter after Christmas, and they spent the summer in Canada. Miss Baum will be here with her parents for the present. Her brother, Richard F. Baum, is at Harvard.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henry Beuttas are giving a cocktail and buffet supper party next Monday from 5 o'clock on in their penthouse atop 720 North Wabash avenue.

The Winnetka debutantes who are to model in the St. Luke's fashion shows today will use to good advantage a week from Saturday what they learn today about how to display clothes, for they are to model in another fashion show on Oct. 28 in Winnetka.

The show is to be given for the benefit of Northwestern university settlement, and the Winnetka board, of which Mrs. Warren Lamson is chairman, is giving it. This is the sixth annual show the Winnetka board has given, but for the first time it is to be held at night, with dancing and bridge following. The Skokie school is the place chosen for the affair. Mrs. John Nash Ott and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish are assembling the models and Mrs. Robert O. Butz is general chairman of the show.

Monkey Fur Lends Seductive Grace to Evening Gown

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Ladies with opera and other elegant engagements this winter will be interested in the fur fringed evening frock that the Paris dressmakers are showing. Jeanne Lanvin shows frocks with fringes of fox fur, and other houses make use of the really graceful monkey fur fringes. Dresses like this look very sirenlike and mysterious and Marlene Dieterichish. The sketch shows how.

This is a model from Lucile Paray, and it is made of Coudurier's new bagheerita velvet, a velvet no heavier than crêpe georgette, which the makers swear will not be the worse for being sat upon. It is, as it should be, an inky black, and the monkey fur fringes are in the same color.

The skirt is so narrow that in order to permit stepping it is slit a way up at the left side of the front, but one sees only a well turned [we hope] ankle through the monkey fringe hem. Two box plait panels fall from the waistline to the bottom of the skirt in back, and it is otherwise covered with fur fringes. A fitted velvet bodice is square cut in front, and has a V shaped décolleté in back, bordered with a bias band of velvet and bordered with monkey fur fringes which fall over the tops of the arms. A diamond pin is placed at the back of this décolleté.

BY MARY MEADE.

Planning a tea for two or twenty is a problem. Since the variety of finger foods is comparatively limited, we often fail to put our imaginations to work and instead serve thin, round sandwiches and small cup cakes just as Mrs. Smith next door served the week before.

But let's don't.

Tea tables may be arranged most attractively with the best silver, thinnest china and dainty foods, but the trick is to avoid having too many centers of interest. If you crave a variety of foods, have some of them simple so the fancy ones may draw their share of attention.

But perhaps you'd like some suggestions for that bridge tea you're planning for next week. Chances are you want something that can be prepared before the party starts so you can take tricks with the best of them until the last minute. Then here are some suggestions:

TEATIME PRETZELS.

2 tablespoons sugar.
2 tablespoons milk.
1 tablespoon melted shortening.
1 cup flour.
1½ teaspoon baking powder.

Add the sugar, salt, milk and shortening to the beaten egg. Mix and sift the flour and baking powder and combine with the mixture. Roll out on a floured board, cut into narrow strips and form each strip into a bowknot resembling a small pretzel. Brush with beattn egg and fry in deep fat which has been heated to 370 degrees F. Drain on paper and dust with a mixture of rolled nut meats and powdered sugar.

CHEESE TWISTS.

1 cup flour.
1-3 cup grated Parmesan cheese.
⅛ teaspoon paprika.
Water.

Combine the flour, cheese, paprika and salt. Work in the shortening with the finger tips or with knives. Add the beaten egg yolk and enough water to make a stiff paste. Roll the dough thin and cut into long strips one-fourth inch wide. Wind around greased wooden meat skewers and bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] until a delicate brown. When cool slip off the skewers to serve.

You've most likely cut small cakes in diamonds, squares and circles galore. But have you ever baked a spice cake in a shallow pan and cut it out with a doughnut cutter? Frost the spicy doughnuts with chocolate icing and decorate with crisp blanched almonds. They're most fetching!

Tiny cream puffs are dainty, too. Each one should make but one or two bites. For different fillings, use chocolate with peppermint, coffee or lemon flavoring.

There's been much questioning as to where the holes of the doughnuts go. The answer is—these centers may be fried, split and put together with cream cheeses as tea time accompaniments.

Children's Theater Opens Season Next Saturday

The Children's theater of the Goodman Memorial theater will open its eighth season at 2:30 o'clock Saturday with a dramatization of Robert Browning's poem, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." Arrangements have been made to admit groups of public school pupils to the performances each Saturday, which will run through November.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Nothing to Do.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow who likes some one else and doesn't pay any attention to me. How can I win him? WONDERING."

It's useless to try under those conditions, Wondering. You can see his interests are centered in the other girl, so your efforts would be ignored.

Fresh Cranberry Sauce In 10 Minutes

You can change a drab meal into a glorious success by serving fresh cranberry sauce. Ten-minute Cranberry Sauce always makes other foods taste better. It's quick and easy to make and costs little. Just follow this recipe—

"10-Minute" Cranberry Sauce
(Stewed Cranberries)

Boil 2 cups of water and 1½ to 2 cups of sugar together 5 minutes, then add 4 cups Eatmor Cranberries. Boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from fire when the popping stops, and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool.

Mole Removing Requires Skill of Able Expert

Task One for Physician, Not Beautician.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Dr. Disraeli Kobak, of Chicago, speaking recently at a meeting of the All American Beauty Culture Schools, Associated, on skin conditions and skin growths warns of haphazard treatment of moles.

"There is a certain type of mole that carries dynamite," he warns. This is the black mole. It may be flat. It may be raised, but whenever you see a black, brown, or charcoal blue mole, remember you are dealing with dynamite. To encourage a person to have ordinary removal of that type of mole is to assure yourself that you are signing the death warrant of that person.

"I bring up this subject today because before me, as I write, is a letter from a woman asking to what beauty parlor she might be referred, to have a large black mole removed. With such expert opinion offered by a conscientious member of the medical profession and his argument against haphazard choice of medical operator, you may be sure it is an unwise procedure to entrust anything so fraught with danger to less than the ablest hands. With all due respect to beauty operators, they cannot qualify as experts in handling such things. This is a purely medical office, or surgical, calling, as one of the profession advises, for the most skilled of treatment.

For the treatment of warts, too, the physician is your best recommendation. Sometimes warts come on and disappear without leaving any trace of themselves. But, again, with this type of growth, seemingly harmless, it is better to consult with a medically trained person for relief measures.

Thomas Boodell was Mr. Wilson's best man, and ushering were the brother of the bride, Robert Gibbs, John MacGregor Fraser and James Channon. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left immediately after the reception for a motor trip south. They will be at home after Dec. 1 on Washington boulevard in Oak Park.

Riot of Flowers Typifies Breath of Springtime

A Breath of Springtime.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The middle of October is a good time for a quilter to begin a coverlet that will brighten one of her rooms through the winter. And no quilt pattern could be gayer than this, which is quite appropriately called "A Breath of Springtime." It can be a riot of fresh flower colors.

For a quilt pattern in this design send five cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, writing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Drab Menus May Make Children Hate Breakfast

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We were talking yesterday about the school child's breakfast—how his lack of appetite was often due to hurry and fear of being late. These two, plus fatigue from insufficient sleep, were mentioned as actually robbing him of his appetite.

There are several other factors that figure in this indifference or actual aversion to breakfast. For instance, the child who is worried about his school work or unhappy over home work he hasn't finished the night before wakes up with a load on his mind—and that is often destructive to his appetite.

Nagging or scolding or unpleasant scenes in the early morning also will steal away the desire to eat. Too many chores or the necessity of getting in piano or violin practice will give the rushed feeling that is not conducive to the eating of a proper morning meal. All these causes, once perceived, are quite easily removed.

There is one other reason why children lose interest in breakfast which may be related to none of these. Sometimes when the older child's appetite lags it is because his early morning meals have become monotonous.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

One mother I knew of whose child had a rather long journey to school grew quite desperate. He wasn't quite up to par and eggs and bacon and cereals and their minor variations left him cold. So one day she had an idea. She'd "lay off" the conventional breakfast foods and give him dinner and luncheon dishes. The next morning fruit and a lamb chop and carrots and potatoes and milk were the viands he sat down to. And "Boy," said he, "this looks good to me!" That scheme was worked for about two weeks, with the result that he'd get along until lunch time without that "gone" feeling. Then he was able to go back to ordinary breakfast menus and enjoy them.

MINUTE MYSTERY
By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE SEANCE.

The professor, who had seen many strange things, had kept an open mind on the veritability of psychic phenomena which is one reason he had arranged the seance.

Marshall Adams had been murdered several days before. While he and Fordney had been close pals in the fifth grade, they hadn't seen each other since.

Margatha, Adams' sister, a well known medium, who, because of a divorce in the family, hadn't seen her brother since they were youngsters, on learning of his death had traveled from a distant city for the funeral.

On Fordney's suggestion, Margatha agreed to hold a seance the night of the funeral.

The medium, in a trance, sighed deeply and from her lips came the boyish voice of his school chum that Fordney so well remembered.

"Is Joe Fordney there?" the voice asked. "Yes. I see you now. Wise killed me. We had an argument over a loan. He pulled out a revolver. He shot me. You'll see that justice is done, won't you, Joe? I've just passed over . . . and . . ."

"Tell me," she inquired, "did you get anything? I never know, of course, what the spirit is saying. I'm not always successful but I hope. . . ."

"Not only was your seance a mockery," angrily exclaimed Fordney, "but you tried to prove Wise guilty. I'm confident he's innocent. You'd better leave!"

WHY DID FORDNEY BELIEVE THE SEANCE SPURIOUS?

BEG YOUR PARDON

H. A. Ripley, author of Minute Mysteries, dictated an apology to his public yesterday after receiving a deluge of telephone calls from readers who announced that the solution to his mystery printed in THE TRIBUNE of Oct. 18, was incorrect. The message follows:

"Readers, I made a typographical mistake in the solution to the Minute Mystery of yesterday, Oct. 18. Prof. Fordney, having received many telephone calls stating that both he and I were wrong, looked over my dictated notes and found that Dec. 24, 1928, was Evan's 13th birthday instead of her 14th as printed. The professor with his usual understanding has forgiven my error. Will you?"

Seeing Old Beau Shouldn't Mean Tense Situation

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"How should I act when I meet my old beau? I was engaged to him for a year. We broke off. He's not married; neither am I. We are due to meet at a house party soon. Meg."

Don't act. Just be yourself at your best, with a not too long memory about things you two said and did and planned in the romantic yesterday. Unless, of course, he volunteers the memory revival first, or unless you sense that he would like to be on the old tooting again, and you want things to turn out that way.

But if you're through and you suspect he is, too, then he is just an acquaintance or friend calling for no particular effort on your part. What with all the quick and easy getting engaged so popular nowadays and engagements broken without any great heart dents, running into an old boy friend is of common occurrence. And the clever girl makes no attempt to betray an intimate past association before others. Her attitude is fairly detached, without, however, unfriendliness.

If you have a chance to give the young man a boost, give it. Don't knock him. It's not smart billiards. Makes you appear to have gone a bit sour, been the disappointed, the jilted one. And this is no recommendation to a possible successor.

Incidentally, this is the smart policy for any girl to pursue in conversation about any young man from whom she has received attention for awhile. The fact that she didn't hold on to him, which may be no reflection whatever on her, doesn't entitle her to talk him down. Better go to the otner extreme and give him more credit than belongs. Praise him, in other words. Say everything nice she can think to say.

Passion Play Characters May Appear as Jews

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 18.—John, Judas Iscariot, Peter, Mary, Mary Magdalene, and other Jewish rôles—not forgetting Christ himself—in the traditional Oberammergau passion play are not to be turned into "pure Aryans" after all. After a long series of discussions in the offices of the minister of propaganda for Bavaria at Munich that proposal was turned down and the actors and actresses were given permission to make up as Jews, according to Inpress, a German émigré news agency.

TORTURE SLAYING CASE IS PLACED IN JURY'S HANDS

Newton, Ill., Oct. 18.—(AP)—The case of Harry Shelby, 44, and his nephew, John Allen, 26, charged with the torture slaying of Mrs. Mary Schrader reached the jury at 11:02 tonight.

In his closing argument State's Attorney Homer Kasserman of Jasper county described the crime as "the most terrible I can think of," and reiterated the plea of other prosecutors for the death penalty.

Defense attorneys argued the case against Shelby and Allen was "mostly circumstantial," and that there was "reasonable doubt" as to their guilt.

The state completed its case late today and defense attorneys, after a conference, announced they would present no witnesses.

Judge Thomas Jett indicated he would be available anytime tonight to receive a verdict.

Farley will receive the endowment from the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen upon his retirement in a few months. He has been a railroad employé for 40 years. The couple were married in 1888, and have 15 children, all living. Mrs. Farley charges that her husband began to drink and left her in February, 1932.

SCORES SEE WOMAN LEAP 11 STORIES TO DEATH IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Scores of school children, neighbors and passersby, watched today as Mrs. Hortense Osterman, 59, sat for five minutes on a window sill of her apartment on Central Park west, then jumped eleven stories to her death in a concrete court.

The cries of witnesses, seeking frantically to dissuade the woman, were heard two blocks away. Children crowded to the windows of the Columbia grammar school, which faces the court.

When Mrs. Osterman, the invalid wife of Emanuel Osterman, president of Charles Jacquin et Cie, Inc., cordial manufacturers, finally plunged from the sill four or five women fainted. The body fell a few feet from persons who had crowded into the narrow court.

Eluding her Negro maid, Edna Davis, as they prepared for a walk, Mrs. Osterman had entered the bathroom and locked the door behind her. After futile knocking, the maid went to a bedroom window and saw Mrs. Osterman climbing from the bathroom six feet away.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

WOMAN KILLED, COMPANION HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Elizabeth Feehan, 47 years old, 1465 Olive street, was killed and her companion, Arthur Gross, 39 years old, 4910 North Washtenaw avenue, was severely injured yesterday when the car in which they were riding collided with another automobile at Touhy avenue and Mannheim road, south of Desplaines. Witnesses said that the driver of the second car, Carmen Perrino, 158 North 20th avenue, Melrose Park, was protected by a stoplight while driving in Mannheim road.

Gross was taken to the Desplaines Emergency hospital, where physicians said his cheek bone had been fractured and that he had suffered possible internal injuries.

Mrs. Feehan's death and one other yesterday brought to 831 the Cook county motor toll for 1933. The other victim:

Calvin Culpepper, 7 years old, 3519 Flournoy street. Died in Bethany hospital of injuries suffered Saturday when he was struck by an automobile near his home. The driver, Meyer Cohen, 1417 South Clifton Park avenue, was not held by police.

87,000 AT MICHIGAN TO END FOOTBALL SLUMP

This Is the Battle They've Waited For.

The psychological build-up for a head-on collision between the Chicago and Purdue elevens at Stagg field Saturday has reached the boiling point at the Midway. The Maroon team, without any encouragement from Coach Clark Shaughnessy, thinks of the game as the climax of all its activities since last spring, and the players believe that Purdue will be equally determined to win.

CLARK SHAUGHNESSY.

This spiritual ferment, one evidence of which is the planning of the biggest pep session the old Midway ever has seen, which is scheduled for tomorrow night, results on the Maroon side from the presence of new athletic blood and from Chicago's two topheavy practice victories.

Maroons Have Big Edge.

The records in the 38 games Chicago and Purdue have played, including the S. A. T. C. game of 1918, show 27 victories for Chicago, 10 for Purdue, and one tie, with a continuous series since 1898.

Merritt Bush worked at tackle in Rice's spot during part of the session; Johnny Baker, who looked good against Washington, took over John Womer's post at end temporarily, and Wallace and Flinn were tried in the back field. Bill Langley, reserve end, has developed a shoulder injury which will probably keep him out of the game. The offense was effective against a team of picked freshmen.

PURDUE SCRIMMAGES

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Building a defense again occupied Purdue coaches tonight in a long scrimmage. Purdue has been able to get a line on the offense Clark Shaughnessy will use in his Big Ten debut Saturday, but a freshman eleven emulated the tricky offense the Maroon coach used at Tulane. It is thought the Maroons may present a similar attack.

The squad will get its final hard work-out of the week tomorrow night, and only a light drill Friday afternoon. It will not leave here until Saturday morning, going direct to Stagg field for the game.

BABE RUTH MAY MANAGE YANKS—AFTER M'CARTHY

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Babe Ruth may be the next manager of the New York Yankees, but he will have to wait at least two years for the job, Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the club, said today. Joe McCarthy's contract still has two years to run, and there isn't likely to be a change, even when it expires, unless he runs into difficulties piloting the Yanks in the next two seasons.

"I think Ruth will make a splendid manager," Ruppert said. "He's settled down and is very serious about his future. He's talked about managing a team. I'd like to keep Ruth with the Yankees, but I'll not interfere if he gets a chance to better himself."

Ruppert added he hadn't given any consideration yet to the Babe's contract for next year.

Coaches Svenskers and Germans, Italians and all.
This excellent Clark, this Shaughnessy gent,
Whose teams from all races are happily blent,
Spent much of his time [nor did he spend it in vain],
Developing teams way down south in Tulane.
Loyola called next, but you know all the rest,
How the U. of Chicago took him for a test.
He coaches his charges sans cussing or roaring,
But you've noted, we hope, that his players are scoring?
He weighs on the hoof maybe twelve stone and two,
"Just show me a laddie," Dan Shaughnessy shouts,
"That can carry a football—I'll settle your doubts
"Whether races or credos interfere with my schemes
"When it comes to the business of forming my teams!
"There's Womer and Heimer; and Wells, he's a wow.
"Manelkis, Perretz, Berwanger, and Deem;
"I'm telling you, fellows, they sure make a team!
"Patterson, Nyquist, Sahlin, and Rice
"Are players about whom you needn't ask twice.
"I got full backs and half backs, and quarter backs, too,
"Who'd sooner be Comanches than lose to Purdue.
"Paternal, maternal race, line or descent
"Doesn't hamper the laddie whose actions present
"Some bent for the contest of toting the ball

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Forty years ago at the time of the World Columbian Exposition I had a hotel at 17-21 Congress street, across the alley west of the Congress hotel, then called the "Annex." I saw the building of the Annex with all the slugging and general strife in connection with labor troubles attending its construction. Victor Faulkenau, a great little man, was the contractor, and no labor trouble maker could scare him.

The most interesting tenants on the Congress street side of that hotel were the fine young Englishmen who ran the tallyho coaches to the World's Fair.

I became a stanch admirer of Mayor Carter H. Harrison—the first Carter H.—when I saw him wade in among a bunch of rowdies on the lake front during the bread riots of forty years ago. Armed only with an old umbrella, he stood his ground and told the outfit what he thought of them, and they took it, too.

The Sigma Chi fraternity held its convention that year, with my hotel as headquarters. I cashed checks for the brothers from far and near. One of them for $300 was written on the back of an envelope—and every check was good. [Editor's note.—C. A. K. is a Sigma Chi.] You can see how young and innocent I was forty years ago.

A man committed suicide in my hotel. Another one lost all his money trying to beat Al Hankins at Al's own game. A jealous husband had a fight with his wife and got whipped. One of my porters was a doctor of medicine. One of my chambermaids was a thief. In fact, I don't know where a young man can get more experience in six months than he can by running a hotel downtown when there is a World's Fair. C. A. K.

The Leopold & Austrian Transportation company, in 1877 and later, had its dock on the east side of the river at the foot of Washington street. The company had a fleet of boats plying between Chicago and Duluth. The finest steamer was the Peerless, of then de luxe class. In season the Peerless and one or two others made excursions from Chicago to Duluth and return, two weeks' trip, with meals and berth included, for $40.

WILDCATS HOPE TO END HOOSIER JINX SATURDAY

Victory Will Even Series for Hanley.

Subduing the Indiana jinx will be the major objective of Northwestern's football eleven when the two teams clash at Dyche stadium Saturday afternoon.

A victory for the Wildcats will even the score as far as Coach Dick Hanley is concerned. At the present time the Hoosiers hold a three to two advantage over Northwestern in the five games played since Hanley took over the Wildcat coaching duties.

Starting in 1927, Indiana scored three successive victories over the Wildcats. However, in 1930 and 1931 the Purple won two in a row. In 1931 Northwestern came from behind to win, 7 to 6, when Reb Russell plunged over in the closing minutes to score a touchdown and Tiny Engebretsen kicked the point after touchdown.

Wildcats Get Hard Scrimmage.

An intensive scrimmage yesterday concluded Northwestern's final heavy workout in preparation for the game. Today's drill will be devoted largely to a study of Indiana plays and formations.

Considerable time was spent with other reserve backs to get them in readiness for relief duty. Chilly Sutton is being drilled to support Chuck Duvall at full back, while Augustson will be called upon to share the quarter back duties with Olson.

Purple Will Be Outweighed.

Whatever doubt may have existed concerning the ability of Heuss and Riley, the two senior tackles, was removed in the Stanford game. Kawal and Whalen, guards, and Hajek, center, also revealed ability.

Indiana's line will outweigh the Purple considerably. Antonini and Lyons, the starting ends, weigh 205 and 200 pounds, respectively, while the tackles, Anglemyer and Renegar, weigh 208 pounds each. The guards average 200 pounds. Jack Sprauer, center, is the lightest member of the line, weighing 180 pounds.

HOOSIERS SEE N. U. PLAYS

After the bruising encounter, Coach E. C. Hayes renewed his search for a full back to replace the injured Walker. Keck looked best and will probably get the assignment against the Wildcats at Evanston Saturday.

GABBY STREET TO MANAGE MISSIONS IN COAST LEAGUE

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Joseph Bearwald, president of the San Francisco Mission baseball club of the Pacific Coast league, announced today he had signed Charles [Gabby] Street, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals when they won the world's championship in 1931, to manage the Missions.

Bearwald said Street accepted terms offered him recently and will leave his home in Joplin, Mo., soon to start organizing the club for the 1934 season. Bearwald did not disclose the salary involved.

Fred Hofmann, manager of the club during the 1933 season, was offered a position as a player, Bearwald said, but was given his unconditional release when he refused the demotion.

Building Navy Should Start with Football

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 18.—Inasmuch as the government is fixing to spend large sums of money building the United States navy up to strength, this would seem to be a good time to abandon some of the more fastidious notions of athletic eligibility which are now in effect at the naval academy and promote the navy's prestige and popularity with some winning football teams.

Nobody has any idea, of course, that the next war, if any, will be fought under the revised intercollegiate football rules. But along with the development of the navy's tonnage there should be a corresponding revival of the naval academy's old glory in athletics and especially in football, which is the most spectacular form of college sport and the best course of propaganda through sport.

Navy Admits Fault.

As matters have stood for several years now, the navy, in football, is one of the recognized pushovers. The superintendent of the naval academy, himself, Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, by name, said at the time of the navy's quarrel with the military academy that the morale of the regiment of midshipmen had suffered from frequent defeats which were chargeable in part to the handicap imposed by his own school's rules of eligibility.

The naval academy then, as now, denied midshipmen the right to play football with the 'varsity if they had had a total of three season's varsity experience. By this rule a midshipman who has played, say, two seasons of college football before entering Annapolis is permitted to play only one season on the academy team. He is not allowed to play 'varsity

NO CRIPPLES IN ILLINOIS RANKS, ARMY WILL FIND

Portman and Walser Will Not Play.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Barring accidents between now and Saturday, the Illinois team that opposes the Army in Cleveland will be in superb physical condition.

Capt. Herm Walser is still favoring the leg he injured early in the season and has not been counted on. Otherwise it appears as if all regulars can start in good shape. The only exception perhaps is Fred Frink, acting captain, who was bruised a bit in the Wisconsin game.

Crain Portman, 150 pound half back, who injured an ankle in kitten ball game before the season, reported and will strive to get into shape for the Michigan game on Nov. 4.

ARMY RELIES ON SPEED.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—It's to be Army's speed against Illinois' heft when the Cadets meet the Illini at Cleveland Saturday. This at least is the view of Army's head coach, Lieut. Gar Davidson, and he believes the Cadet backfield of Paul Johnson, Jack Buckler, Travis Brown, and Joe Stancock should be able to develop sufficient speed to offset any weight advantage Illinois may have.

Davidson counts heavily on the improvement the Army has made since the V. M. I. game and expects the West Pointers will take the field on even terms with the Illini.

The improvement has been the development of a running attack, one that is well balanced and makes the most of a modified Warner system when using either the double or single wing back. Most of the line improvement has come by placing Beall at left tackle and Gooch at left guard.

NO ILLINOIS CRIPPLES.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Coach Clarence W. Spears conducted an intensive search today for a half back who can fulfill the Badger varsity needs in offensive blocking. None of the half backs appeared to have more than a superficial knowledge of this phase of the game and Spears looked in vain for a man with ability comparable to that of Nello Pacetti or Walter McGuire, who performed last year.

Scrimmage was raised to its highest pitch of the week in preparation for the game with Iowa Saturday. The Badgers concentrated upon running plays. Spears appeared satisfied with the ability of the Badger half backs in carrying the ball, but poor blocking cut down the varsity gains against freshman and second team lineups.

PASSES FOOL IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Coach Ossie Solem gave the University of Iowa football team a hard scrimmage today, but worried all the time that injuries would weaken his squad further before the Wisconsin game here Saturday.

Solem tried Bill Hawkins, Wilmon Hass, and Lumir Kouba at the first string right guard position, but indicated that he would use Hass if Zud Schammel is unable to start Saturday's game. Schammel this afternoon had not returned here from Des Moines, where he is confined to a hospital with a leg infection.

Nearly 35,000 tickets have been sold for the homecoming game, and a record crowd is expected. The record in the new Hawkeye stadium to date is 38,000, at the dedication game against Illinois in 1929.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

THERE is little doubt that greed and selfishness gradually are disappearing from American life.

All you have to do is read the literary contributions of the football coaches for evidence. One of the beautiful things about intercollegiate football is the unstinted flatteries conferred upon other members of the brotherhood by coaches who permit pieces to appear in newspapers under their name.

The altruistic esteem in which they hold one another, almost without exception, betokens a new era in competitive athletics. Of course, it may be that some of this gazette back slapping is the McCoy, but I doubt it. Judge Walter P. Steffen is the only notable exception that comes to mind. After his Carnegie Tech eleven thrashed Knute Rockne's Notre Dame team in 1926, 19 to 0, the headlines for several days were crowded with stories of the great upset. "Upset, hell," remarked the judge, "it was a setup."

This, of course, was a deplorable violation of coaching etiquette and Mr. Steffen's brethren must have sat upon him rudely, for I have read no such comment by him in the last seven years.

It is really heartening to pick up a paper that sponsors this free style journalism and read that Coach Blank of Onion seminary finds himself at a loss to describe the raw genius of Coach Bloke of Slippery Rock who has just whipped him decisively. In an adjoining column you will find that Coach Bloke considers himself pretty lucky to have defeated good old Blank, inventor of the flicker flea shift, because he had no idea it could be done, for Blank certainly is a wizard of the gridiron, if there ever was one.

The week before Coach Bloke sends his team against Notre Dame his syndicate piece will describe at length the difficulties involved in stopping the Notre Dame system. What he means, no doubt, are the difficulties in stopping the Notre Dame ball carriers.

It remained for Pop Warner, one of the most skilled in the magic of the craft, to introduce a new system of predicting winners. He waits until after the game is played to give you his selections. In last Saturday morning papers he picked the Haskell Indians to whip his Temple boys. The game was played on Friday night and Temple won by five touchdowns. Those telegraph operators certainly do gum things up.

These little deviations from routine are trivial, after all, and as long as the boys continue to say nice things about one another, they'll get along, provided, of course, they can find sympathetic editors who will permit their columns to be cluttered up with such nonsense.

Amid the conjecture anticipating the results of Saturday's Big Ten games protrudes the impression that not in years has the conference had so many teams of matched ability. Based on their showing the first three weeks of the season, there isn't a weakling among them.

Look over the schedule. Michigan vs. Ohio State, Chicago vs. Purdue, Iowa vs. Wisconsin, Northwestern vs. Indiana. Would you be willing to bet the little woman's jewels that you could name the winner in any one of them? I would be glad to give you my selections, but it would be a tip-off to the gamblers. They would rush out and lay their dough on the other teams and this department always tries to make it tough for those sure shot fellows.

Here's a wager you can make without quaking—no other section of the country can present ten teams the calibre of Michigan, Purdue, Chicago, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Northwestern, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Ohio State.

SELLOUT AT OHIO GAME TO BRING $175,000 GATE

30,000 from Detroit to Attend Saturday.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 18.—President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Gen. Hugh Johnson and the few million others who have been alert to perceive signs of economic uplift would be made very happy if they were to step in on the University of Michigan ticket office from which credentials for the Ohio-Michigan game here Saturday are being purveyed. Indications are that the huge stadium will be sold out, and maybe some circus seats besides.

HARRY KIPKE.

If the game is played to capacity there will be 87,000 spectators and the gross dough will reach the plump total of $175,000, a neat sum, indeed, when you realize that tops, except for a mere 1,000 box seats, is $2.75. The boxes are going for $3.30.

There still are seats to be had. We promised to put this in one of the early paragraphs. There is no need to scare anybody away until the last ticket is gone, it was pointed out by the practical lads in the counting room. While the supply is not exhausted, it will be if the fine weather keeps up. Later on in this piece we will set down figures reflecting the demand, and you will see why you should hurry if you want to be a part of the biggest football crowd east of Los Angeles since the Army-Notre Dame game at Soldiers' field in 1930.

The gathering will be the largest that Michigan's big league stadium has held since the Harvard game in 1929 and, if capacity, will tie the record for patronage at a Buckeye-Wolverine battle. The stadium was dedicated with the meeting between the two universities in 1927, and, of course, packed 'em in, those sweet days being what they were. In 1929 Ohio State drew the season's largest crowd, but it was 12,000 under the total expected for Saturday. At the last Buckeye visit here, two years ago, 60,000 were entertained, a nice turnout, of course, but 27,000 under the potentialities of the coming Saturday.

Hottest Feud in Big Ten.

The Ohio State-Michigan rivalry has become the most feverish of all the Big Ten rivalries and this fact, combined with the tendency of red hot sports to loosen up under the new deal, has much to do with the potentialities of next Saturday's gate. Then, too, it promises to be a whale of a ball game, even if the athletes weren't representing two great rival institutions.

Ohio State has played two games, in which a total of 95 points to none has been amassed. On this basis Michigan must be admitted an underdog. Michigan has made 60 points in its two games as contrasted with six for the opposition. But Michigan doesn't mind being the underdog under these conditions. Those 95 points have churned up the customers in Columbus twice as much as expected, with time for further rise in sporting enthusiasm.

Columbus Buys and Buys

Ticket handlers at Columbus at first allowed that 5,000 tickets would be just about the proper quota. Every time Ohio State made a touchdown against Vanderbilt last Saturday the demand went up, and the 5,000 initial order was gone by the time the lads got out of the showers. One thousand more were peddled on the Sabbath and 1,500 were bought up Monday and yesterday. Today an additional order of 3,000 tickets went forward to fill orders already on file.

Most of the out of town folks are expected to drive to the game, but not all of them. Today the Michigan Central and Wabash railroads sold 2,000 football tickets in their Detroit office. The demand from Detroit, where sports have been suffering as never before during the bank mixups and one thing and another, has been tremendous. Thirty thousand of those who will attend the game probably will be Detroiters. Five different paved roads cover the 38 miles from here to Detroit and traffic plans are being made on the expectation that all these highways will be jammed dur-

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Glenn Presnell, former Nebraska star, led the Portsmouth Spartans to a 25 to 0 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles tonight. He scored one of the Spartans three touchdowns, and kicked a field goal.

Held scoreless in the first quarter, Portsmouth loosed a powerful offensive in the second period, climaxed by Presnell's 32 yard run for a touchdown. He later added his field goal.

Early in the second half Ernie Cadell, one time Stanford ace, ran 22 yards for the second touchdown. Presnell's 64 yard pass to Gene Alford of Texas, in the fourth quarter, netted the third touchdown, which was followed a few moments later by Cavosi's placement.

The Eagles, playing in their second league game, made 12 first downs to seven for the Spartans. They have not scored yet.

JOCKEY LONGDEN IS NEWEST IDOL; SCORES DOUBLE

BY FRENCH LANE.

He skimmed around them just as if they had been made for him at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon, and after the cheering was over and the customers were dashing happily toward the payoff windows it was discovered that Longden had piloted the winners home in the two best races on the program.

The high spot in Longden's afternoon's toil came in the Lincoln Park Purse, which was at 5 furlongs and engaged some of the better 2 year olds still in training around Chicago.

The brilliant Lunabright, which has demonstrated great speed at times on all the tracks in Chicago, dashed out into the lead early. She is an extra large filly and of the long striding type. Many wondered if she would be able to take the short turns. Longden took her around them scarcely an inch from the inside rail. Gale Way challenged for five furlongs and finally dropped out of it.

Lunabright races for Richard Watts of Chicago, and over the drying out but dull track she ran the five furlongs in 1:02 1-5, only four-fifths of a second off the track record held by the speedy Hot Shot and established over a lightning fast track. In the mutuels she had an army of backers and paid $5.64.

They Were All Chestnuts.

They made no mistakes, for six horses—all chestnuts—paraded to the post to battle it out at 6½ furlongs. The oldest old timers couldn't recall a race in which every horse starting wore a sleek chestnut coat.

The chestnut that won it was Mild, a 5 year old daughter of King Gorin-Parley, and it was the rousing ride she got from Longden, which made it possible for her to beat Eisenberg, the chestnut from A. G. Tarn's barn, by a narrow margin. The Irish chestnut, Miss Marr, on which there had been quite a plunge, finished third.

The varsity blocking was effective in spots, but generally it was a case of open field running by Lukats and Pilney, each of whom made two touchdowns.

Gaul May Start.

Frank Gaul, diminutive sophomore quarter back from Waterville, Me., ran the team well today and will undoubtedly play with the varsity against Pitt. The cast was removed from Tony Mazziotti's injured knee today, but he will be unable to play Saturday.

The reserves, using Carnegie Tech plays, were unable to score, but made several long gains on passes. The Carnegie running attack was stopped, with the exception of two lateral pass plays which worked for substantial gains.

Pass Defense Weak.

Anderson obviously was dissatisfied with the pass defense. Kansas completed five out of 12 attempts and Indiana made two out of eight attempts. In both games receivers were free, but the opposing passers missed their marks.

Notre Dame will leave tomorrow night, arriving in Pittsburgh Friday morning.

GOPHERS PREP OFFENSE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Having found his squad, with the exception of Pug Lund, half back, completely recovered from the Purdue game, Coach Bernie Bierman gave the Minnesota players their first hard workout of the year today. It also will be the last hard drill for the Pittsburgh game Saturday.

Lund is not so severely injured that he cannot play, but he has an injury which, if aggravated, might become serious. Lund did engage in dummy scrimmage, however.

Bierman had stressed defense this week in hope of stopping Pittsburgh's spinners and trick plays. Today, however, he will concentrate on the Gopher defense in an effort to improve its timing.

PITT WORKS OUT HERE TODAY.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Just prior to the departure of the Pitt football squad for Chicago tonight en route to Minneapolis for its game with Minnesota Saturday Coach Jock Sutherland intimated during practice that there will be more changes in the lineup than at any time since the start of the campaign.

The Pittsburgh squad of 32 will spend tomorrow in Chicago, working out briefly in the morning at Stagg field and touring A Century of Progress in the afternoon.

One of the changes may take place at quarter back. Miller Munjas has an excellent chance of displacing the bulky Bob Hogan as field general.

NAVIN DENIES COCHRANE WILL MANAGE TIGERS

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Frank Navin, president of the Detroit American league baseball club today denied reports that Mickey Cochrane would be appointed as manager of the Tigers for the 1934 season, succeeding Bucky Harris, who resigned shortly before the end of the 1933 season.

"I haven't negotiated with Cochrane. I have several other prospects in mind and don't plan to make any decision for several weeks," Navin said.

Hitchcock May Lose Ten Goal Rating in Polo

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—One of the warmest debates polo has known in years centers about the prospective national ranking for 1933 of the country's three foremost players, Thomas Hitchcock Jr. of New York, Elmer J. Boeseke Jr. of California, and Cecil Smith of Texas.

The official list will not be passed on until the annual meeting of the United States Polo association in January, but the official canvass of opinion has already begun, it was learned today. At the same time indications point definitely to the end of Tommy Hitchcock's reign not only as the world's only 10 goal star but as the top ranking American player.

A consensus of metropolitan polo writers and authorities, polled by the Associated Press, revealed a belief that all three aces of American polo should be rated the same, at nine goals, with a shade of opinion in favor of Smith, if any one of the trio is to be given the top ten goal rating. Smith is now rated at 9 goals, Boeseke at 7.

Hitchcock has been rated at the maximum since h first rose to international fame in 1921. Since he supplanted Milburn at the top he has been considered in a class by himself, comparable to Bobby Jones in golf, Babe Ruth in baseball, Jack Dempsey in the ring, and Bill Tilden in tennis.

On this year's performances, however, Hitchcock not only yielded the spotlight and bowed to the superior play of Smith and Boeseke in the outstanding matches of the season, the East-West series at Chicago, but he emerged from that embattled affair with a concussion that kept him out of the national championship tournament for the first time in his big league career.

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW About FOOTBALL STARS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

PRACTICALLY every major league football team in the country has its mascot or luck bringer, whether it be an animal, an old star's kicking shoe, or a well battered ball from some bygone victory. Even the most orthodox technician among the country's coaches is willing to concede the element of luck in a big game, and many of them will admit that the last minute break which decides a hard game for the home team may in some strange fashion be attributed to whatever charm or token the team may be carrying.

A perfect example of this can be found at the University of Michigan, although you couldn't say luck has played the all important part in the victories of a team which has numbered among its players such as Harry Newman, Maynard Morrison, and Bill Hewitt. Even though Coach Harry Kipke is willing to admit that the luckpiece in this case may have had much to do with the Wolverines' success, he still smiles when he hears the claims of Michigan critics that the team's run of victories since 1929 is due entirely to luck.

But you can't tell the fans at Ann Arbor that Ducky Simrall's rabbit foot didn't have a lot to do with the string of 30 victories starting in 1929, which included only one defeat. It was early in November of that year that the Wolverines, after having been pushed around considerably by other opponents, played Harvard at Ann Arbor. Just before the game an admirer of Simrall's from his home town of Lexington, Ky., had presented him with a rabbit's foot. Ducky promptly sewed it in his pants. Michigan whipped Barry Wood and Harvard in what is still regarded as one of the most thrilling games in Wolverine history.

The next season the rabbit foot was transferred to Simrall's new pants. With Ducky as captain the team won eight games and was tied once. The charm deserted Simrall only once, in the Illinois game of that year. Ducky, in tackling Capt. Robinson of the Illini, was knocked out, but did well enough to knock Robinson down. The Michigan captain was out of play for two weeks.

When Simrall finished his football career he turned it over to Cecil Cantrill, another Wolverine from Lexington. He won his letter for two years, and during that time the Wolverines lost only one game, in 1931, when Ohio State surprised them. What may be the fate of the rabbit foot this year is unknown, for it mysteriously disappeared, and those who believed in its potency are still hunting it.

Regeczi Relies on His Lucky Ring.

Another believer in the efficacy of charms is John Regeczi, whom Yost has characterized as "the best punter I have ever seen." John's charm is a ring. Just before his first big game last year, the Michigan State contest, he handed it to Dr. Frank Lyman, the team physician, and told the latter to rub it hard when he made his first kick. It failed to work the first time, but on the next Regeczi booted the ball so far into State's territory that the Spartans never did get out.

A little known fact about Ted Petoskey, the big Michigan end who on the field appears to be the most spectacular player of the team, is the least so in fact. It's all system with Ted, largely through the work of his father, Sam Petoskey, back in St. Charles. His dad has brought him up as an athlete since he was a youngster, boxing with him and helping him to keep fit for football.

Chuck Bernard, who is being talked of as more than a successor to Maynard Morrison at center, will probably cause a riot on the streets of Ann Arbor if seen wearing a hat. The only head covering Chuck has sported in all his time at school is a football headgear, and he needs one, judging from the manner in which opposing teams direct plays at him, if hopelessly.

Good Times Note: 87,000 at Michigan

Toledo, which is a city of mixed football emotions, being only 56 miles from here but still an Ohio city, will send upwards of 5,000 fans to the game. Every city and hamlet in Michigan has made application for seats.

Coach Kipke hasn't answered a telephone this week. Everybody who ever had met him at a barbecue banquet or stag was calling up to see what "old pal" could do.

Editors by the millions, at least thousands, have been asking Mr. Yost for space on "Pneumonia terrace," which is the nickname for Mr. Yost's personally designed and deservedly famous fresh air press pavilion. Two hundred and seventy-five authors have qualified for the right to sit on the picturesque structure.

Hot Dog, Mister?

The permanent population of Ann Arbor is 28,000. Many of these good citizens are too proud to vend hot dogs and such, but many are not. With a crowd of 87,000 in prospect for the first time since 1929, those who put out victuals already are steaming and should be in a high frenzy by Friday night.

Florists, too, are on the qui vive, for the gals who attend games here ever have been great hands to wear chrysanthemums. There will be more chrysanthemums sold here Saturday morning than lots of people think there are chrysanthemums in the whole world. And, purely incidentally, we are offering a special prize to the printer who can set three chrysanthemums right in the same paragraph.

Sixty thousand spectators, averaging four to the car, will drive to the game. It is expected there will be 2,500 cars here from Columbus, 175 miles away. On the basis of the round trip, that's 85,000 car miles, you can tell Mr. Roosevelt. And maybe Mr. Rockefeller would be interested, too.

Twenty-six thousand of the seats will have sold at the depression price of $1.10. These are being sold in advance, but haven't been going as fast as the $2.75 numbers. It is figured that a lot of softies are afraid it's going to rain or snow and are fixing to wait until the day of the game, then dash to $1.10 section. If these can be sold out in advance, however, no provision will be made for the barometer watchers.

BAER'S MANAGER TO SHUN MATCH PENDING TRIAL

Santa Monica, Cal., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, said tonight he would make no matches for the Livermore heavyweight until after settlement of a suit now pending over the managerial rights of the title contender.

A trial will be held at Sacramento Nov. 10, Hoffman said, and after that he will be ready to consider a number of offers.

Hawks Try Out Two Edmonton, Can., Players

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Two members of the Edmonton hockey team will be sold to Chicago Blackhawks provided they make good in tryout, Gordon [Duke] Keats, manager of the club, said today. The players are Ernie Kenny, defense man, and Ade Johnson, brother of Ching Johnson of the New York Rangers. Johnson is a wing. Both men are from Alberta.

Four Prep Teams Start League Play Saturday

Roosevelt, Fenger, Lindblom, and McKinley will make their belated debuts in the Chicago Public High School league football competition Saturday. All drew byes in the opening sectional schedules last week. Roosevelt will meet Lake View, Fenger will seek to hand Parker its second defeat, Lindblom opposes Hyde Park, and McKinley will meet Austin.

Evanston will meet Oak Park in the most important suburban game at the Oak Park stadium Saturday. Each has scored one league victory, defeating the same team, Deerfield of Highland Park. Evanston won, 24 to 0, while Oak Park piled up a 26 to 0 victory. Evanston is the defending champion in the Suburban league.

Coach Jack Lipe of Thornton High school of Harvey announced yesterday that Beinor, full back, will be moved to tackle for the game against Thornton Fractional of Calumet City Saturday at Harvey. Beinor was the leading ground gainer against Bloom last week.

Mount Carmel will seek its third consecutive victory in the east division of the Chicago Catholic High School league against Loyola. The game will be played Sunday afternoon at Loyola field, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue.

Blue Ribbon Horses Arrive for Fair Show

Champions of many classes and types were unloaded yesterday at the 124th Field Artillery armory for the World's Fair horse shoe, which will open Saturday night and continue twice daily thereafter up to and including Oct. 29.

Handled with special care upon arrival was Roxie Highland, world's champion three gaited saddle horse belonging to and entered by Miss Mary Gwyn Fiers of Oklahoma City.

Two famous strings of jumpers also made their appearance. They are the gray hued nominations of Mrs. Jock Whitney and the leapers of Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, both of New York.

The Cleveland police team entered in the inter-city competition of mounted officers arrived during the afternoon. In their honor Capt. David Flynn turned out some of Chicago's finest to escort the visitors to their hotel headquarters.

Capt. Flynn announced the personnel of the six man team that will represent Chicago in these events. They are Allman Specht, Thomas Walsh, John F. Walsh, K. C. Smith, James O'Malley and John Connors. The sextet were trained by Capt. Flynn and Sergt. William Kublak of the traffic division.

During the afternoon the members of the four international military jumping teams from the United States, Irish Free State, Czechoslovakia, and Sweden were received by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commandant of the Sixth Corps Area.

8 YEARS, STILL GOING STRONG

Johnny Blood, veteran back, who is playing his eighth season in professional football and his fifth with the Green Bay Packers, is expected to lead the attack against the Chicago Bears at Wrigley field Sunday. Blood, famous for years as a half back, is playing at quarter this season.

Doehring Will Return to Bear Drills Today

With Bull Doehring, who was on the hospital list last week, ready for action against the Green Bay Packers Sunday afternoon the Bears' forward passing attack is expected to function at top speed.

Doehring twisted his ankle in a practice game in Washington, but has been taking daily treatment. With the swelling gone he planned to join practice today. The news that Doehring will be available and the acquisition of Dick Stahlman brought a note of cheer into the Baer camp. They will be at full strength for the return engagement with the Packers.

Coaches Halas and Walquist are looking for means to end Herber's success with passes. A large part of the Packers' yardage this year is directly traceable to Herber's arm.

A slow start against the fast starting Packers would complicate matters, in the opinion of Bear coaches. In previous Bear-Packer rivalries the team which scored first generally has won. In 18 of their 27 battles the winner's score was only a touchdown better than that of the losers.

Stahlman, a former Packer, was in uniform yesterday and went through the regular drill. He is 28 years old, is 6 feet 2 inches tall, and weighs 220 pounds. He started in the pro game with Pottsville in 1925 and the next year divided his time between Rock Island and the Chicago Bulls, which was a member of the American league.

Stahlman played for New York in 1927 and was also a member of the Wilkesbarre baseball team. In 1928-'29 he was on the Cleveland baseball roster. He played football the last three years with Green Bay and in baseball with Newark and Reading. Coach Halas will use Stahlman as a half back.

Kid Irish and Levine Meet on Cicero Card

Kid Irish, Benld, Ill., featherweight, and Sammy Levine of the west side will meet for the fourth time in one of three six round feature bouts at Cicero stadium tomorrow. Bud Saltis meets Ray Tramblie and Joey Kleko clashes with Steve Pajdo in the others.

In previous encounters with Levine, Irish won one and was held to a draw in the other two. All were at six rounds. Since their last meeting Irish won three of four matches in California and whipped Joey Bozak and Johnny Fitzpatrick here. Levine recently returned from Minneapolis, Minn., where he was awarded a decision over Jackie Sharkey, who held Irish to a 10 round draw at Sparta stadium early this year.

Johnny Liston, south side 155 pound boxer, and Johnny Roth of the north side have signed to meet in a four round encounter tomorrow at the Rainbo Fronton. Fred Hawkette will face Paddy Waltier in another. Other matches:

Scotty Sylvano vs. Al Beel [4].
Al Schiarto vs. Jim Richards [4].
Ed Van Horrick vs. Frank Walsh [wrestling].

Eddie Ward and Kid Carson [4].
Eddie Stiegal and Chuck Reed [4].
Jimmy Eliopoulos and John Mirabal [4].
Zack Malkov and George Schwab [wrestling].

Jim Londos, claimant of the heavyweight wrestling title, has been signed to meet Joe Stecher or Jim McMillan in the windup bout at the Chicago Stadium on Nov. 15. Stecher and McMillan will wrestle at the Stadium next Wednesday for the right to meet Londos.

An innovation may be produced on this card, Joe Foley, official of the Stadium Operating company, announced yesterday that he plans to present a boxing match in conjunction with the show.

Luke Ebel, Two Rivers, Wis., middleweight, representative of St. Timothy parish, is expected to qualify in the opening preliminary matches of the Catholic Youth organization amateur tournament at Loyola university gymnasium next Wednesday. Ebel won the Wisconsin state Golden Gloves 160 pound title last year.

NEW DUCKS MOVE INTO MARSHES FROM NORTHLAND

Shooting Along Illinois River Will Improve.

BY BOB BECKER.

Thousands of "new ducks," which, in the language of the waterfowl hunter mean migrating birds just coming in the north, appeared over the Illinois river marshes and sloughs early this week. On Tuesday morning when we were sitting in a duck blind with L. H. Barkhausen of Chicago on his Cuba island hunting preserve near Saidora, Ill., we watched flock after flock of high flying ducks appear in upper flight levels and then start cruising around the country looking for a suitable landing.

It was a beautiful sight to watch these traveling birds. The sky was dark and overcast following a brief, light shower. Our spot [known as the ash thicket blind], which looked out over a broad expanse of marsh filled with water and smart weed, faced the northeast. To the north of us was Mound lake and the Wild Wing club property, where a number of Chicago executives do their duck shooting. Speeding back and forth on the lower flight levels the ducks were popping out of the timber behind us, coming from the southeast beyond the Cherry Circle club property, and wheeling around our blind in a small stand of dead trees.

Know Where They're Going.

From the northwest toward Crane lake big flocks of sprigs or pintails came sailing over the marsh, wings set, teetering back and forth as they lost altitude quickly. All of these birds had the "home" label on them. They had been in the bottomlands for some time and apparently knew where they were going and why.

But as we looked beyond and above these waterfowl we could see the new birds, sometimes so high in the air that they appeared to be just fast moving specks in the sky. Each leader had his flock in perfect flight formation, but directed his charges as if he needed a road map of the river bottoms.

Shooting Should Improve.

With new flocks of ducks moving in from the north, the mallard and pintail hunting along the Illinois should be better this coming week-end than it was on opening day. In fact, from now on the shooting should show a constant improvement.

'CHICAGO'S OWN CHRISTMAS FUND' FILLS VITAL NEED

Co-Ordinates Drives and Ends Frauds.

With the season nearing when many so-called Christmas charity benefits are promoted by minor racketeers who prey upon business firms and private individuals for "donations," an appeal was made yesterday to Chicagoans to choose with care the benefit funds they may wish to support this year in keeping with the Christmas spirit.

Mayor Kelly recently launched a charity benefit movement for poor families with the object of providing them at Christmastime with something additional to the bare necessities of life in the form of extra food, clothing, and toys. The Democratic organization of Cook county is actively supporting this event which is known as "Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit," with headquarters at 33 North La Salle street.

Takes Place of Other Funds.

This benefit, backed by responsible business men, political and civic leaders, should effectively take the place of most of the scores of political "Christmas basket funds" which have sprung up in past years, it was pointed out. While some of these funds have been honestly operated for the benefit of poor families in the various wards, others have been an excuse for an unscrupulous ward committeeman or office holder to gain a neat profit for himself, it was asserted.

"In the past, scattered groups throughout the city have sponsored the distribution of Christmas baskets," Mayor Kelly commented. "Whereas their efforts were no doubt worthy, only a small percentage of Chicago's needy benefited. Every cent that is collected by Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit, except only the most essential expenses, will be used to buy Christmas baskets. I am certain it will enlist the support and sympathy of every Chicagoan."

A committee on purchases composed of leading business men and civic leaders will be appointed, it was announced. Every recognized charity in Chicago will be consulted in the drive.

Leave Sponsors Poorer.

In former years, some of the local Christmas basket distributions left their sponsors poorer in pocket because of a desire to inspire the beneficiaries with that good-will which means votes at election time. But too many such drives in the past have resulted in the distribution of comparatively few baskets of food and a pocketing of most of the proceeds by those in charge.

Almost without exception, members of the city council, of the county board, and city and county officeholders have loaned their names to such Christmas basket distributions in the past. Some of them were the unwitting dupes of their henchmen, but in addition to the racketeering angle of such benefits, such unorganized distributions often resulted in certain families getting four or five baskets while others, more deserving, were neglected.

PROBE REVEALS WIGGIN'S BANK 'COVERED' LOSS

Huge Reserve Set Up for Purpose.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Through the highways of high finance, Ferdinand Pecora, counsel, today traced for the senate banking committee a trail of millions piled up in stock issues by the Chase Securities corporation and then set aside to meet losses.

Albert H. Wiggin, former head of the Rockefeller controlled Chase National bank, conceded the securities unit was created to engage in a business denied the bank by law.

To the closely following committee members, Pecora then presented a table to show that the securities corporation had taken $120,000,000, or 77 per cent of its capital and earnings, for reserves for losses and revaluation downward of its holdings.

Early in the hearing Pecora developed that the securities corporation, through a subsidiary, bought, sold, and traded in $900,000,000 of the stock of the Chase National bank and other banks it acquired through mergers. He emphasized the law prohibited the bank from dealing in its own stocks.

Sets Up Subsidiary Units.

Previously he had brought out that under national banking laws the Chase National was prohibited from underwriting securities issues, but formed the Chase Securities corporation in 1917 to conduct this business, in which it set up from time to time subsidiary security companies.

Efforts of Pecora to go into "rescue loans" by the Chase National to aid business companies in distress were halted by the committee with the announcement by Chairman Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] that it "would only involve the use of names that might do more harm than good."

After bringing before the committee the record of increased capital stock issues by the securities corporation since 1917, Pecora told members its capital and earnings to last June 30 aggregated $156,453,000.

Dividends totaling $21,907,000 were paid out to 1931, when they were discontinued, Pecora developed.

Capital and surplus as of June 30, the committee counsel said, totaled $14,407,000, about evenly divided. Only $407,732 was described by Pecora as "earned surplus."

Pictures Huge Losses.

Of the huge sum set aside against losses, Pecora showed that $117,000,000 was during the three and one-half years ended June 30 and that the total reserves were equivalent to wiping out the net earnings of sixteen years, exclusive of dividend payments.

"Then you have lost over five times what you have paid in dividends?" asked Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.], when Pecora concluded presentation of the tabulation.

"They are mark downs in some cases," replied Wiggin. "We haven't liquidated it all."

He agreed it was "a very unfortunate record," but said it was "probably better than the average because some security companies were wiped out entirely."

"Money for Stockholders."

In explaining the organization of the securities affiliate, Wiggin told the committee that "we thought the securities company would make money" for stockholders in the bank, who held equal shares in the securities unit at its inception.

"Weren't the funds of the bank used to underwrite securities?" asked Pecora.

Pecora put before the committee evidence to show that shares of the Chase National, selling for around $1,000 on the stock market, were split five for one in 1928 and their par value cut from $100 to $20, while the market price fell to $195.

Then he brought out that the Metropolitan company, a subsidiary wholly owned by Chase Securities, which in turn was owned by the bank, traded in $900,000,000 worth of shares of the bank and other banks acquired by it in various mergers.

Pecora said that in transferring approximately $51,000,000 from surplus and undivided profits to reserves against losses, the securities corporation made no mention of its action to stockholders, but Wiggin disagreed.

Favored Worker Pay Cut.

Pecora developed that Wiggin, in his report for 1930 as chairman of the bank's governing board, recommended industrial pay reductions at about the same time his own salary was being increased from $218,000 to $250,000 yearly.

The counsel read from the report a statement by the banker that 'it is not true that high wages make prosperity . . . prosperity makes high wages," and holding that in many industries "capital can ask reductions" in the pay to workers.

"That was my conviction at the time I wrote that, in 1931," Wiggin replied, adding that he could not see anything irreconcilable, because his salary was increased late in 1930, while his report, made early in 1931, was another matter.

Questioned by Pecora and Couzens, Wiggin listed four officers of the bank who had been employed after service as bank examiners. Pecora read a number of compliments to Wiggin and his bank from reports of bank examiners.

"It is a quite common practice for banks to employ bank examiners, and I suspect they sometimes are employed because of these fulsome compliments," Couzens said.

Big N.Y. Banks Join RFC Plan; Will Sell Stock

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 18.—In response to a request from the President the New York Clearing house banks today finally agreed to "take the lead" in the government's campaign to expand bank capital preparatory to the initiation next January of federal insurance of bank deposits.

The agreement today was signalized by adoption of a resolution of the Clearing house announcing support of the President's program and recommending to its members "their cooperation in carrying out his suggestion."

At the same time Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical Bank and Trust company and chairman of the Clearing house committee, announced that his bank, the Guaranty Trust company, the Bankers Trust company, and the Bank of the Manhattan company, had already approved plans for selling capital notes to the RFC.

Others Join Movement.

Subsequently other banks, including the Chase National bank, the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, and the Corn Exchange Bank Trust company, stated that they also expected to issue capital securities, either notes or preferred stock, to the RFC.

Mr. Johnston estimated that the big New York banks might issue as much as 200 million dollars of new capital, which would be an increase of about 15 per cent over the current 1 billion 340 million dollars of capital funds reported by the 19 Clearing house banks. All banks of the country, he suggested, might increase their capital by one billion dollars under the President's plan.

Text of Resolution.

"The President of the United States has publicly stated his belief that the banks of the nation should strengthen their capital structure.

"We believe the President's objective is constructive and sound and that bankers generally should support the plan to strengthen the capital of the banks of the nation.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the New York Clearing House association supports the President in his program and recommends to its members their cooperation in carrying out his suggestion."

The decision of the Clearing house banks to sell capital securities to the RFC was reached only after the President had indicated his strong desire for the action. The majority of bankers here had been extremely reluctant to make the move which they considered uneconomic, unfair, and a useless gesture.

The cooperation will cost the New York banks an amount estimated at $1,500,000 a year, Johnson said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 18.—The worst break in French francs in recent years, precipitated by a wave of alarm in Paris over the European political situation and the safety of the gold standard in France, today sent the dollar up 2.68 cents in gold value to 70.84 per cent of parity.

The franc was strong in early trading, rising to 5.80½ cents, contrasted with a closing price of 5.74¾ cents at Tuesday's close. In the afternoon, however, heavy purchases of sterling by Paris in such volume as to cause talk of a flight of capital, fell upon the market. The French unit dropped rapidly to 5.53 cents and closed at the bottom.

The fall of the franc carried the dollar up from 67.49 per cent of parity early in the day to 70.84 per cent, an extreme gain of 3.45 cents, one of the widest on record. The treasury's daily gold price, however, having been based on the morning price was 47 cents an ounce higher at $30.33. The Federal Reserve bank announced the shipment abroad of 30,789 fine ounces of newly mined gold for sale in the world market.

The unsettlement caused by the weakness of the franc dragged all other currencies downward in terms of the dollar. Sterling fell 9 cents, to $4.50½, the guilder lost 2.25 cents, to 57 cents. Canadian dollars cheapened ⅝ cent, to 96.56¼ cents.

F. D. GALLAGHER MAY HEAD LOCAL OFFICE OF RFC

F. D. Gallagher, assistant chief of the agency division of the RFC, is reported as the probable successor of Ira Moore as head of the local office of the government body. More has resigned to head a bank in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Gallagher joined the RFC in 1932. Before that he was in the investment business on the west coast. He is a brother of J. D. Gallagher, receiver for the Chicago Joint Stock Land bank.

Hint Germany Is Buying Canada's Nickel Exports

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Montreal, Que., Oct. 18.—Shipments of Canadian nickel in oxide form to The Netherlands, through the port of Rotterdam, for six months of 1933, have been six times the volume exported in the same six months last year. Speculation started today as to whether the nickel is really finding its way into Germany for armament manufacture.

STEEL INDUSTRY DROPS TO 39%; ORDERS DWINDLE

Costs Rising, Profits Face Decline.

Production of steel ingots has broken five points in the last week to 39 per cent of capacity. The urgency for completion of orders against third quarter contracts helped raise output two points to 44 per cent a week ago, but it has now been withdrawn as an important stimulus.

"With output definitely lower in all principal producing districts and much lighter demand reported in leading consuming areas, the steel industry faces the remainder of the year with increasing pessimism," says the Iron Age.

"Manufacturing costs are still rising and steel makers are yet to benefit materially from increased selling prices under the code. The profits from such tonnage as now comes in will almost certainly be pared down by decreased volume, and it is difficult to derive much encouragement from any angle of the current situation."

Output has fallen three points to 45 per cent of capacity at Chicago; 6 to 34 at Pittsburgh; 5 to 52 in the valleys and northern Ohio; 7 to 27 in Philadelphia; 5 to 35 at Cleveland; 10 to 35 in Buffalo; and 8 to 38 in Birmingham.

Practically every branch of production save tin plate is curtailed or in prospect of curtailment, and little new business seems indicated.

Finishing mill schedules are definitely lower. The decline in automotive demand has reacted upon sheet and strip mill operations. The agricultural demand anticipated for the autumn has failed the wire-makers. If the output of bars, plates, and shapes has been fairly well supported by backlogs, there are not enough releases to sustain it much longer. Meantime, tin plate production is holding at about 95 per cent of capacity.

Railroad Buying Negligible.

"Railroad buying has practically disappeared from the market, presumably because of the efforts of the government to establish lower steel prices by group purchasing," says the Iron Age. "The rail makers have made no move to accept the rail tonnage offered two weeks ago at a substantial reduction, and it is indicated that an increase rather than a reduction in the current $40 a ton price would be more in keeping with steel making costs in the last quarter of the year."

Although allotments of public works are announced almost daily they have not yet been translated into any considerable structural steel inquiries. Awards for the week were 10,200 tons, against 19,300 in the preceding week.

The Iron Age composite price for finished steel remains at 2.036 cents a pound for the third week. The pig iron composite is also unchanged at $16.61. The scrap composite has fallen from $10.87 to $10.54 per ton.

NEW HARTMAN'S TAKEN OVER BY STRAUS-SCHRAM

Barton H. Sackett, vice president and treasurer of the New Hartman's, Inc., yesterday announced that because of the termination of its leasehold at the northwest corner of Wabash and Adams, it has sold its business, name, goodwill and merchandise inventory of Straus & Schram. The price is understood to have been more than half a million dollars in cash.

The Hartman name for more than sixty-seven years has been kept before the public with the slogan "Let Hartman Feather Your Nest." Straus & Schram, have been in business in Chicago for a little over half a century, growing from a small concern to their present chain of seven stores in the metropolitan area.

Their new loop store on the east side of Wabash, just south of Monroe, was opened in July. With the acquisition of Hartman's, it is claimed it becomes the largest retail furniture dealer in Chicago.

First National Stores Sales Exceed Year Ago

First National Stores reported that sales for the five weeks ended Sept. 30 were $10,098,950, or 1.7 per cent more than those of the like period of 1932, which amounted to $9,929,321. Sales for the preceding four weeks' period were only one-tenth of 1 per cent above those of the corresponding weeks of 1932. For the 26 weeks ended Sept. 30 sales amounted to $52,563,468, against $51,059,073 in the parallel period of 1932.

Deny Delay in Bank Deposit Guaranty Plan

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—Federal insurance of bank deposits up to $2,500 will go into effect on Jan. 1, without change from the original program, it was stated authoritatively at the White House today.

Plans to put the guaranty plan into effect are in an advanced stage and their furtherance was discussed by President Roosevelt this afternoon in conference with high officials, including Eugene Black, governor of the Federal Reserve board; Henry Bruere, an administration aid in coördinating federal credit operations, Walter J. Cummings, who heads the Deposit Insurance corporation, and Gov. George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve bank.

Treasury employes working under the Deposit Insurance corporation were said to be compiling the lists of banks that will be open when the guarantee practice goes into effect. These lists are expected in official quarters to include practically all the banks that have reopened since the bank holiday.

Ends Rumors of Delay.

The pronouncement of federal deposit insurance definitely set at rest recent reports that plans for deposit would be modified or possibly abandoned before Jan. 1. Any changes that may be made in the plan, according to government officials, will be only those shown to be necessary under actual operation of the Deposit Insurance corporation.

This corporation is authorized to make small assessments against bank deposits and to assist in the quick liquidation of failed banks. As another phase of assisting the banking situation the federal government, through the agency of the Reconstruction Finance corporation is moving forward with plans to provide funds for the reopening of solvent banks that have been closed since Jan. 1. These plans involve banks which would be sound under ordinary conditions but which now are over burdened with good but frozen assets.

Plan to Free Assets.

Plans also are being studied under which the good assets of banks which probably could not be reopened could be freed in the near future in order that depositors might recover as much as possible of their money. The reopening of closed banks has been urged upon President Roosevelt by his advisers both as a means of increasing normal purchasing power, and of creating new credit channels.

Representative Steagall, chairman of the house banking and currency committee, conferred today with treasury officials and later declared that in his opinion the house would not sanction any salient changes in the banking act of 1933.

Mr. Steagall said that undoubtedly there would be a great demand from the larger banks to get a modification of the section dealing with additional assessments to carry out the insurance of deposits feature. This, he contended, was one of the strongest provisions in the bill.

CURB AIDS FIGHT ON DOUBTFUL WHISKY SHARES

Coöperation of the Chicago Curb exchange with the state's attorney's office in an endeavor to protect the public from the flotation of doubtful distillery stocks was pledged yesterday at a meeting of curb officials with Assistant State's Attorneys James J. Cherry, Eugene O'Connor and W. J. Lynch.

Following the conference Mr. Cherry said that "an exchange of pertinent information" had been agreed on and that he had been greatly pleased by the recent action of the curb officials in removing several brewery stocks from exchange listing.

Allen S. Noyes, president of the exchange, said that his organization welcomed an opportunity to collaborate with Mr. Cherry, who is in charge of all blue sky matters coming to the state's attorney's office.

Copper Continues Drop; Delivered at 7½ Cents

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Copper continued its decline today, selling at 7½ cents a pound delivered in the domestic market. The decrease since early last week, when the quotations began its slide, has been 1½ cents. Producers continue to hold at the old 9 cent level.

Continental Can Earns $3.59 a Share for Year

Net income of the Continental Can company for the year ended Sept. 30 was reported at $6,221,177, equal to $3.59 a common share, compared with $4,470,850, or $2.58 a share for the preceding year.

NEW U. S. BONDS. SOLD FOR CASH, OVERSUBSCRIBED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—President Roosevelt has been informed by Secretary Woodin that the treasury's current offering of $500,000,000 in 10-12 year bonds had been oversubscribed about four times, but that all the mail subscriptions have not yet been tabulated.

The books on the issue were closed at the termination of business last night, but subscriptions placed in the mails before midnight as shown by the postoffice cancellation are being accepted. The new bonds bear 4¼ per cent interest the first year and 3¼ per cent thereafter.

No statement was made as to the subscriptions in payment of which Fourth Liberty 4¼ per cent bonds were tendered. The treasury called $1,900,000,000 of thes Liberties, automatically terminating interest payments April 15, 1934.

Exchange Privileges Kept Open.

The books on the exchange subscriptions will remain open until further notice. While not all of the $6,268,000,000 outstanding Fourth Liberties were called, any of these bonds tendered in exchange for the new securities will be accepted.

The bulk of the called bonds undoubtedly will be exchanged. However, it is not anticipated that a large amount of the others will be tendered because of the higher interest rate on the present issue and the virtual certainty that other bond issues with as favorable interest rates as the new issue will be authorized by the treasury before maturity of the Fourth Liberties in 1938.

The large subscription to the new bonds, in spite of conditions that were none too favorable, indicates that on the basis of the present situation the entire Fourth Liberty may be called.

Expect Further Retirements.

According to some experts a call for another one-third of the bonds may be issued in April and the final one-third in October. The bonds are callable on six months' notice at the interest bearing dates.

The allocations for the cash subscriptions to the new bonds will be announced within a few days. They will be allocated on a graduated percentage basis. Among the subscriptions is one of $20,000,000 from the farm credit administration. It was said at the treasury today that the administration will be given a pro rata allocation along with the others, and will not have a preferred status.

The subscriptions for which Fourth Liberties are tendered in payment will be allocated in full. It is expected that the cash issue will be somewhat more than the offering.

WESTINGHOUSE DEFICIT LOWER; BOOKINGS GAIN

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced today an operating deficit of $1,818,845 for the quarter ended Sept. 30 compared with a deficit of $2,715,123 in the same period last year.

The company said third quarter bookings were the largest for any like period since 1931 and added that unfilled orders increased from a low of $23,337,000 in the second quarter of last year to $28,508,000 as of Sept. 30.

Treasury Asks Tenders on $80,000,000 of Bills

WHEAT MOUNTS AGAIN WHEN U. S. KEEPS UP BUYING

Gains Over 3 Cents; Corn Also Rises.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Further buying of cash wheat and futures in leading markets which the trade attributed as for the government was in evidence yesterday. This buying resulted in net gains of 2⅞ to 3¼ cents in futures in Chicago, and of 4¼ to 4⅝ cents at Minneapolis, with all markets closing at the best figures of the day.

Cash wheat led the advance. No. 2 hard winter in Chicago selling at ½ cent over the December delivery, or around 1 cent higher compared with Tuesday, while at Minneapolis the cash grain was up as much as 6⅝ cents compared with sales of the preceding day, gaining 2 cents on the December option. There are no restrictions on price advances on cash wheat, although fluctuations in futures are limited to 5 cents either up or down.

Say U. S. Buys Futures.

It is estimated by pit brokers that a house presumably acting for the government bought around 500,000 bushels of futures in the last fifteen minutes of the session yesterday. December closed at 78¼ to 78¼ cents, and May at 81⅝ to 81¾ cents, showing 11 to 11½ cents above the low on Tuesday.

Corn fluctuated in an erratic manner but closed 1⅛ to 1¾ cents higher, with December at 42⅝ to 43 cents at the finish. Oats developed independent strength with reports of liberal shipping sales of cash grain a factor, and closed 1¼ to 1½ cents higher with December at 29⅞ to 30 cents, or 5 to 5⅛ cents above the low on Tuesday. Rye lost 1¼ to 1⅜ cents on the active futures, refusing to follow the upturn in wheat. December was 51⅛ cents at the close. Barley was ⅝ to 1⅛ cents lower with December 43½ cents.

Longs Take Profit.

The sensational advance which has occurred in the grain markets from the low on Tuesday induced heavy profit taking sales by some of the buyers of the preceding day but there was a general broadening in the trade and all recessions ran into good support.

December wheat gained ½ cent on the May in Chicago for the day, being affected by the active demand for the cash grain. There were intimations that millers, as well as the government, were good buyers.

The upturn in the grain markets yesterday was in striking contrast with the action of most commodity markets and stocks, but all bearish the government buying.

Cash corn and oats have developed rather decided strength in the last few days with No. 2 yellow corn up around 2 cents as compared with the December option since Saturday. Six leading markets received a total of only 17 cars of oats yesterday.

SUGAR PROCESS TAX PLANNED TO AID PRODUCERS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—(AP)—A compensatory processing tax of one-tenth of a cent a pound on sugar used in American consumption became a possibility today in a new relief proposal for American cane and beet sugar growers.

Secretary Wallace said legal aids are making a study of the possibilities of levying this tax, that it would be capable of raising about $12,000,000 and that this could be used to pay bonuses to domestic cane and beet producers to increase their income. He said the plans have not taken specific form but suggested that beet and cane growers might be paid a bonus of $1 a ton. The program might be coupled with production control so as to prevent stimulation of beet and cane production.

The hog-corn production control program announced by the farm adjustment administration calls for a processing tax on corn among other things. The corn which would be subject to taxation would include that used in the manufacture of corn sugar.

A provision of the farm act authorizes Wallace to levy compensatory processing taxes on products sold in competition with those on which a tax has been fixed. A tax on cane and beet sugar would be levied on the theory that it would offset any trade disadvantages incurred by corn sugar as a result of the processing tax.

SCHENCK SEEKS TO GAIN CONTROL IN UNITED ARTISTS

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Joseph M. Schenck, head of the recently organized Twentieth Century Pictures, Inc., said tonight he is negotiating in behalf of that company for purchase of a controlling interest in the United Artists Studio corporation, which is owned by Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, Samuel Goldwyn, Schenck and others.

The transaction involves approximately $750,000. Fairbanks and Miss Pickford own the property, improvements and equipment of the United Artists studio and lease them to the studio company.

Those involved in the negotiations said the deal in no way is connected with the drawing of a property settlement between Miss Pickford and Fairbanks, who are separated.

Stocks Break; Traders Heed Gloomy News

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 18.—Various phases of the day's news put the Wall street speculative element in a mood to look on the seamy side of things again today.

The dollar was up and a report was going the rounds that the administration had definitely decided against a greenback issue either as a means of price or currency inflation. Steel production was reported down sharply this week. Europe was reported to be selling American stocks on a heavy scale.

All of this combined to make the share market decidedly reactionary. Prices opened irregular and drifted steadily downward with selling assuming rather heavy proportions in some directions in the afternoon. The losses in the active list ranged from 1 to more than 6 points, wiping out yesterday's gains in most instances and in some cases sinking stocks to the lowest prices since last May. New bottoms for the movement were registered in nearly all departments.

Liquor Shares Get Drubbing.

Liquor shares, always sensitive to changes in the speculative atmosphere, came in for the worst drubbing as a group. National Distillers gave up 6½ points of the runup it achieved in yesterday's rally and declines of 2 to 4 points were registered by such issues as Schenley Distillers, American Commercial Alcohol, Commercial Solvents, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

United States Steel was set upon by sellers, who took discouragement from the mid-week reviews, and the common shares were battered down to 37⅞, a dip of 3⅛ points from last night's close, with the preferred giving up nearly 6 points. Bethlehem and lesser issues of the group went down with the leader.

Rail stocks were sold freely, especially in the later trading, with New York Central, Union Pacific, Illinois Central, and Delaware and Hudson as outstanding targets for bear sharpshooters. Delaware and Hudson gave up 6 points.

Farm Shares Weaken.

Wheat's comeback left the farm implements cold and J. I. Case dropped another five points. Brokers said that those selling these shares had interpreted the necessity of government support for the grain and cotton markets as a symptom of illness in spite of the price markups of yesterday.

The oils resisted selling stoutly for a while and on the whole fared better than some other groups, due in some measure to news of impending gasoline price rises here in the east. Utilities were depressed by the decline in power output.

The motor group was affected by reports of seasonal slackening in sales and production. Chrysler dropped 3¼ and General Motors was down 1⅞ points. Weak spots in the general list included Celanese, Johns Manville, General Electric, and United Aircraft, with losses ranging from 1 to 5 points.

SEEK TO BLOCK PYRAMIDING HOG PROCESSING TAX

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Although higher prices for pork chops, sausage, ham, bacon, and cornmeal are in store for the consumer, federal administrators will endeavor to prevent distributors from running up prices more than necessary. Members of the farm administration staff have been assigned to study the effects of the processing tax on hogs and to employ the full powers of the farm act to prevent profiteering and pyramiding of the tax.

The tax on hogs is expected to produce $348,000,000 during the two years it will be in effect and unless the tax has the tendency of cutting market prices of hogs to farmers the entire tax will have to be borne by consumers, as processors from whom it will be collected are not expected to assume any portion of it.

Already processing taxes are in effect for wheat and cotton and have been the subject of controversy between farm administrators and representatives of those who process and distribute the products of these commodities. Dr. Fred C. Howe, consumers' counsel for the farm administration, today reported a substantial rise in the margins retained by bakers and retailers in the price of bread during the four weeks from Aug. 29 to Sept. 26.

He said the average price to consumers in 49 selected cities advanced from 7.5 cents per pound loaf to 7.9, while materials declined from 2.94 cents to 2.89 cents.

Hupp Motor Car Reports Quarter Loss Is $414,699

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Hupp Motor Car corporation had net loss of $414,699 in the September quarter, against losses of $258,435 for the preceding quarter and $1,925,004 a year ago. Loss for the first nine months of 1933 was $1,196,131, compared with a loss of $3,405,190 in the same 1932 period.

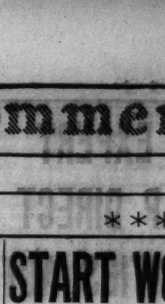
START WORK OF REORGANIZING NATIONAL LIFE

Reinsurance Likely, Says Palmer.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Plans for the reorganization or reinsurance of the National Life Insurance Company of the United States of America were set in motion yesterday at a conference attended by Superintendent of Insurance Ernest Palmer, Receiver Patrick J. Lucey, and officials of the company, which went into receivership Tuesday.



ROBERT D. LAY.

Mr. Palmer issued the following statement:

"Every effort is going to be made to reorganize the company. Just what will be done, of course, will depend upon conditions as they are found in checking the affairs of the company.

"Indications are, from a cursory examination, that the condition is not so bad as to preclude the possibility of reorganizing the company. At any rate, it is certain that there will be either a reorganization or reinsurance plan."

Hope for Outside Bids.

It was learned on good authority that the state insurance department hopes to get two or three and possibly more bids from outside interests to take over the company's business, either by reorganizing the company with new capital or by reinsuring the business.

The department hopes to accomplish this within the next few weeks in order to avoid the dissipation of business that would result from a long period of receivership. Long receiverships are expensive, as was shown in the case of the Illinois Life.

If new money can be brought into the situation in short order the department believes that death claims can be met in full although liens would have to be placed on policies for a period of years during which interval cash surrender and loan privileges would be limited.

The story of the National Life is the story of sound insurance methods and good actuarial handling but exceedingly poor investment policies and poor financial management. It is likewise the story of too heavy cash takeouts by the management group.

Management Gets Five Millions.

It is estimated that during the last six years the management group took approximately five million dollars out of the company in dividends and salaries.

Practically all of the stock, except directors' qualifying shares, is understood to be held by Albert M. Johnson, chairman of the board, his family and an investment holding company owned by them.

Despite the collapse of the stock market in 1929 the company in that year paid a hundred per cent cash dividend on its stock. The 1929 dividend amounted to $2,000,000, because the outstanding stock in that year amounted to $2,000,000.

Last year the company's investments had deteriorated to such an extent that the capital was written down to $1,000,000 and the other million was transferred to surplus. Again in 1930, although values had slid off considerably, the management group paid itself a 50 per cent cash dividend on the stock, this dividend amounting to a cool million.

Now Need $3,000,000.

In view of the state insurance department's estimate that about $3,000,000 of new money would put the company on a going basis, it is believed that had the management refrained from declaring dividends in 1929 and 1930 the company would not now be in trouble.

The matter of salaries was "corrected" several months ago at the insistence of Supt. Palmer, and since then Chairman Johnson and President Robert D. Lay are reported to have been drawing salaries at the rate of only $12,000 per year. Prior to that correction Chairman Johnson is understood to have been receiving about $84,000 per year and President Lay approximately the same.

The $3,000,000 cash dividends in 1929 and 1930 were nearly 50 per cent of the total cash dividends of $6,165,000 paid by the company since its organization. Stock dividends since organization have totaled $1,500,000.

Record of Dividends.

Following is the record of dividends paid by the company since 1920: 1920, cash 14 per cent; 1921, cash 20 per cent; 1922, cash 20 per cent; 1923, cash 50 per cent, stock 100 per cent; 1924,

UTILITY EXPERT TO HELP DIRECT SECURITIES ACT

G. C. Mathews, Chicago, Will Take Federal Post.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

George C. Mathews, for the last few months a vice president and rate expert of the Middle West Utilities company, will assume his post as a member of the federal trade commission in the next two weeks, he indicated yesterday.

Mathews' appointment to the trade commission, whereby he is expected to take an important part in the administration of the new federal securities act, is regarded as significant. He is a Republican and for many years served with the Wisconsin public service commission in various capacities. He served as head of the Wisconsin security "blue sky" department in recent years. Last spring he was hired by Receivers Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCullough of Middle West Utilities as an expert on utility rates.

Will Get Less Salary.

Mathews will make a financial sacrifice in accepting the government post, which will pay him $10,000 a year. He is understood to be receiving a salary of $16,000 a year from the former Insull holding company.

Mathews' appointment is regarded as nonpolitical. He is reputed to have voted for Hoover in the last election. He served under several administrations in Wisconsin and earned a reputation as a progressive and capable administrator.

Although coming from a state which is popularly regarded "radical," Mathews is highly regarded in business and investment circles. His appointment is hailed by security lawyers as promising a sane administration of the new securities act, which is regarded in some quarters as a bar to new financing. The Roosevelt administration is prepared, it is understood, to make certain modifications in the securities act at the next session of congress.

May Mollify Investment Bankers.

Mathews' appointment and the promised revision of some of the "unworkable" features of the law are expected to go a long way in bringing support for the law from the investment bankers, who up to now have been critical of it.

Mathews faces the possibility of holding a payless position, at least temporarily, with the trade commission. He is to fill the position of William P. Humphrey, a Republican, who was removed by President Roosevelt. Humphreys refused to recognize the Roosevelt ouster and said he would petition the courts to tie up his successor's salary.

Mathews is said to have been hesitant about accepting the post and to have consented only after the personal solicitation of President Roosevelt.

General American Transportation.

Investors' Guide: Will you please furnish me any information that you may have on General American Transportation?—G. L.

Answer: General American Transportation company, formerly General American Tank Car corporation, manufactures and leases special type freight cars, tank cars, etc. Car leasing is the major source of income. The company owns about 55,000 cars of which 25,000 are of the refrigerator type. It has long term contracts with many industrial concerns, including Swift & Co., Armour, Borden, Du Pont, and others. It also supplies the entire refrigerator service for several railroads, numbering the Rock Island, Erie, and Missouri-Kansas-Texas among its major customers.

Handling of foodstuffs is the chief item of this company's business, followed closely by petroleum. Other products handled are chemicals, liquified gases, and beer.

Wide diversification has enabled the company to operate profitably for many years, in contrast to the experience of most other transportation organizations. Approximate net income for the first half of 1933 was $860,000, or $1.15 per share, against $769,000, or $1.02 per share, for the corresponding 1932 period.

Gross revenues in 1932 and 1931 reflected decreased activity of the manufacturing division. Transport division has held stable. Gross for 1932 totaled $17,958,000, against $29,185,000 for 1931 and $36,651,000 for 1930. Net income in 1932 was $1,639,000, or $2.20 per share, against $4,011,000, or $5.34 per share, for 1931, and $6,518,000, or $8.03 per share, for 1930. Per share earnings for 1929 were $7.56, against $5.64 for 1928.

Current assets at the close of 1932, including $5,000,000 cash assets, aggregated $12,275,000, and current liabilities, including $3,490,000 due to banks, amounted to $5,142,000.

Funded debt of $36,558,000, maturing serially, is high in relation to capital stock, but is apparently justified by earnings. Stock equity consists of 745,708 shares of $5 par stock. The stock pays 50 cents semi-annually, Jan. 1 and July 1. It is somewhat speculative.

Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Investors' Guide: As the owner for some years of Standard Oil of New Jersey common, I expected to receive the usual dividend check on Sept. 15. This check did not reach me. Will you kindly advise me of the necessary steps to take in order to secure this dividend payment?—R. H. M.

Answer: There is nothing you can do but wait. With the payment of the June 15, 1933, dividend, the management announced that future dividends would be paid semi-annually.

U. S. COMPLAINT ALLEGES UNFAIR TRADE IN TIRES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—A complaint has been issued by the federal trade commission against the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company charging it with price discriminations in violation of the Clayton act in its sale of products in favor of Sears, Roebuck & Co.

The complaint requires an answer by Friday, when the commission will consider whether a cease and desist order should be issued. The case involves alleged practices which are said to have led over a long period to a price war between mail order houses and other rubber tire dealers.

Litchfield Welcomes Inquiry.

P. W. Litchfield, president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber, said in a statement today he welcomed the inquiry, asserting that "when the case comes up for hearing we expect to prove that no law has been violated and that our stockholders, our dealers, and thousands of employés directly engaged in the production of Sears tires have been greatly benefited" under the contract between the two companies.

Litchfield also declared that "three of the four largest tire manufacturers produce special brands for other large distributors," and that "there are many others."

"The manufacture of special brand merchandise for large distributors," he added, "is common practice in most lines of manufacturing and merchandising. We do not know why this particular contract has been singled out."

Contract Made in 1926.

"On May 1, 1926," the complaint charges in part, "respondent [the Goodyear company] entered into a contract with Sears, Roebuck & Co. whereby the company agreed to buy and respondent agreed to sell a minimum quantity of rubber tires and inner tubes over a fixed period of time in return for a special price. Said products are sold by Sears, Roebuck & Co. to consumers under its own brand names or trademarks.

UNION PACIFIC'S VALUE IS PLACED AT 500 MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—The value for rate making purposes of the Union Pacific railroad system and the Terminal company which it controls jointly with other carriers, was placed at $501,258,082 in a final report made public today by the interstate commerce commission. The figure included $15,845,234 for working capital. Valuation dates ranged from June 30, 1916, to June 30, 1919.

In a tentative report the commission also placed the following values on properties owned or used by the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific system as of Dec. 31, 1932: Owned and used, $437,176,012; owned but not used, $1,716,729; noncarrier property, $8,738,130. These figures included $6,011,750 on account of working capital, but not assets held by the system in the form of securities of others, recorded in the accounts at a book value of $119,115,821.

NATION'S OUTPUT OF ELECTRICITY DECLINES AGAIN

Power Use Runs Against Seasonal Trend.

Another contra-seasonal recession in the national output of electric power occurred last week. The total for the week ended Oct. 14, according to the Edison Electric Institute, was 1,618,948,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,646,136,000 in the preceding week.

At the same time the production was only 7.4 per cent over that for the corresponding week of last year, which amounted to 1,507,503,000 kilowatt hours. The margin was the smallest in recent months and compares with 9.3 per cent for the week ended Oct. 7.

It was said that labor difficulties contributed to the recession.

Chicago Reports Small Gain.

On the other hand, electricity output in the Chicago district for the week ended Oct. 14 rose slightly, to 100,663,000 kilowatt hours from 99,435,000 in the preceding week. The margin in the yearly comparison, however, fell to 9.0 per cent, compared with 10.1 per cent in the preceding week.

"The electricity output for the last week is about the same as for the last four weeks," said the announcement of the Commonwealth Edison company. "The percentage of increase compared with last year continues to drop, partly the result of bright weather this year, compared with unusually dark weather last year."

Figures for Chicago District.

	1933.	1932.	Increase. P. C.
Wk. ended Oct. 7	99,435	90,347	10.1
Wk. ended Sept. 30	101,429	90,121	12.5
Wk. ended Sept. 23	97,109	87,599	10.9

The most unfavorable showings were made by the southern states, the New England district, and the Pacific coast. Output in the south was only 8.2 per cent ahead of that in the like week of 1932, compared with 14.8 per cent for the preceding week. In the New England district the percentage margin sank to 5 per cent from 8.4 per cent. Production on the Pacific coast was 0.4 per cent more than that in the corresponding period of 1932, against 2.7 per cent the week before.

The middle Atlantic region reported its gain for the week slightly higher than for the preceding week.

COTTON PRICES BREAK WHEN U. S. BUYING STOPS

Liberal buying of the July option helped the cotton market for a time yesterday. The government also was credited with buying July cotton, which advanced 35 points early. After the buying passed it left the market without support and a realizing movement, due to the break in stocks, increased offerings. The close was around the lowest of the day. There were net losses of 5 to 17 points on futures in Chicago, while other markets were off 7 to 15 points, New York showing more strength than expected. Spot markets were 10 points lower—New York at 9.35 cents, and New Orleans, 8.95 cents. Galveston and Houston were the same as New Orleans. Liverpool was 7 to 8 points net higher. Prices:

ARE YOU READY FOR REGULAR PAY-DAYS?

How much money have you made recently? Has it averaged $50.00, $65.00, $75.00 or $100.00 a week? How much money did you make back in the good old days? How much would you be willing to work for today? Don't you realize that most positions for some years to come are likely to be based on the amount you would be willing to accept? Suppose you knew of a place where men are paid more for what they do than they were paid in 1929? There is such a place. This office is one of many branches of this world-wide business where men continually succeed in a bigger way! Of course, that depends on the men. There is no room for idlers or wishers here. We don't pay men to play golf or bridge. We have plenty of REAL CASH to pay them for their productive efforts.

Although some men who join us make big money almost from the start, we do not expect a man to do that. Ordinarily, men who come into this work begin with a first month ranging from $100.00 up to $150.00. The second month they usually add $50 00 to $65.00 to that sum. By the end of the second month they usually can count on $50.00 or more a week. In 6 months, they step into $75.00 annually to $65.00 a week. By the end of six months most of them are able to show weekly earnings of $75.00, and some as high as $100.00—but they have not paid a penny for their training, which they would expect to pay for in other lines. They have not lost time gaining this education. Men who are already money makers help them teach and train them, correct them in their mistakes.

Nationally, as well as locally, we have many splendid examples of money-making. There are scores up in the $150.00 a week class; individually. Some men make regularly $1,000.00 a month—and a few much more. Yet every one of them started from scratch. They come from all walks of life. In this office we have men who were technical men, engineers, railway men, salesmen, clerks, bookkeepers, draftsmen, teachers, and the like. They meet here on common ground, do not invest or deposit a dime of their money, are trusted with their equipment, put up no collateral, make no investment, or do anything else, that deprives them of their money. They fear no lay-offs or shut downs, and can look forward with certainty to getting the money they have earned.

It is true that all men are not qualified for this business. We have found that men who did not work the way successful men should work, had other means of income. We like the man who has to work and will put in his time methodically and regularly—and do not like to work away from supervision as he would under it. This company is always anxious to pay men more money. We make our money through money-makers—and throughout the world we have a reputation for connecting men with opportunities. There is no particular type of man who will fit in. Some of the best all types can and will work—but we have found that men who wish to do things for their families and who come with good references, are the best. Also men between 25 and 47 usually are better suited to this work than those younger or older.

We are not looking for geniuses, and we do not wish partners in this business. We want workers who can and will continue to add to their income. This business has been years building up to its present size, where it dominates its field throughout the world. It will be here decades hence, and there will be more and more men each year who join the ranks of these forces, owning their homes, owning good cars, all paid for—with money laid away and a certainty as to their future. There are many men in this business—many dozens of them nationally—who have large families, and they are educating their children, usually better by far than they themselves were educated!

If you believe that you are the type of man who will be glad to get ahead, and improve your opportunity, then you will be given a personal interview if you call here Thursday, Oct. 19, any time between 9:30 a. m. and noon. Ask for Mr. Crissman. Come to Room 430 at 1525 East 53d-st. If you like the work and are acceptable to us, then we shall have you ready to start Monday morning in the money making field. This training is entirely without cost. We then will furnish all equipment you need absolutely free.
